25,000 WATCH RACERS DIE IN MIDAIR CRASH

PILOTS ARE FORCED TO WAIT FOR DEATH

Machines Plunge Slowly; One Flier Had Tossed Coin to Use Ship.

MRS. OPAL KUNZ HITS BACK AT CRITICISMS

Handled Her Craft Rightly, She Says; Harry K. Thaw's Son Wins Prize.

Mercer Airport, Trenton, N. J., Oct. 19 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A mad scramble around the home pylon in the last event of the all-Eastern State air races this afternoon cost the lives of two pilots in a mid-air collision and double crash in full view of 25,000 spectators. Both airmen were unhurt in the initial accident and had to sit helpless in the century-long seconds that elapsed before their craft went into the inevitable plunge to earth.

The men killed were R. W. MacKie and George Zinn. Their planes and two of the other four, entered in a commercial free-for-all that was the feature of today's program, were closely bunched as they came down the homestretch in front of the stands. All that any of this group stood to win was a $75 prize, but they were fighting for the turn as though half the world had been at stake.

Zinn, like many flyers on the ground, apparently sensed disaster impending at the pylon and zoomed straight up with his taper-wing Waco open-cockpit biplane in an effort to pull clear and avoid it.

Strikes Other Plane.

Whether he did not see the slightly higher-flying Cessna cabin monoplane piloted by MacKie or whether the latter, unable to see behind him, cut in front of Zinn may never be known, but the Waco, climbing vertically, struck and cut off the tail surfaces of MacKie's ship while a gasp of horror went up from the crowd.

Its own propeller doubtless was bent like a pretzel, and even the ground wings could be seen to have suffered from the wreckage of the other ship, but for a moment it seemed the Waco might be brought down under control.

Thus the crowd's eyes followed with horrible fascination the fate of the tailless Cessna. For a second or two it continued in level flight, as though a miracle were about to happen and a plane stripped of its control surfaces come down to a safe landing. Then its nose dipped in a steadily increasing arc and the stricken ship plunged almost straight down into some underbrush beyond the field.

Flames Envelop Other Ship.

Back came the eyes of all to the other ship to see how it was faring. The Waco had turned over on its back, out of control, and was plunging earthward, its nose slightly down. Thus it struck on the far side of the field, with an impact that was made all the more sickening a few seconds later when the wreck burst into flames. There ensued the usual surge of the crowd onto the field, but State troopers and National Guardsmen stemmed this rush almost as soon as it started and good order was maintained. Fire engines and an ambulance were on the scene in Secret Notes on War Are Revealed by U. S.

Gerard Interview With Kaiser in Which Peace Overtures by America Were Discussed Is Bared; In 1916 Powers Were Watching Balkans.

(Associated Press.)

The curtain of secrecy behind which many of the international negotiations preceding the entrance of the United States into the World War were conducted was removed yesterday by the State Department.

In a 1,000-page supplement to the 1918 volume of papers dealing with the foreign relations of the United States, the department made public for the first time documentary details of many of the events of that tumultous period.

Many of the notes between the American Government and the nations already in the World War and between this country and other neutrals at the time of exchange were made public. The supplement contains extensive exchanges of notes and records of conversations by State Department officials with diplomats of foreign countries on many questions of moment at that time.

The first document in the publication is the memorandum sent by Frank L. Polk, then counselor for the State Department, to Representative John J. Fitzgerald in response to the latter's request for information on action taken by the department in protest to certain acts of belligerents in violation of international law. This memorandum mainly answered criticism that the department had been unneutral in its attitude toward the central powers.

The documents showed the principal attention of the world powers early in 1916 to be centered about the prospect of the smaller countries of the Balkans joining in the war, particularly Albania and Roumania, and the question of concerted unification of the Allies' efforts to stem the tide of defeat which threatened.

Closely following in interest were the early efforts toward peace, the documents presenting a number of communications between the State Department and American Diplomatic and Consular Missions abroad on this subject. One of the messages was from James W. Gerard, then American Ambassador to Germany, on May 2, 1916, in which the diplo-

BRITAIN SUPPORTING JEWS, SNELL HOLDS

SESSION TO END TONIGHT

Characterizing the Jewish claims to racial preservation as "almost incontestable," the Hon. Harry Snell, member of the British Parliament and distinguished labor leader, told the American Jewish Congress last night that his government would steadfastly support the mandate calling for the establishment of a Jewish center in Palestine. Mr. Snell's address, delivered at a banquet in his honor, was the highlight of the open day's sessions. More than 400 delegates from all sections of the country are in Washington for the two-day convention.

Explaining that he was not Jewish, and was allied with no Jewish organizations, Mr. Snell declared that Great Britain had consistently followed a "sympathetic" policy with respect to Jews in all that nation's possessions. "Every nation has a rightful claim to racial preservation and to cultural identity," he said, "and the Jewish contributions to civilization make its claim almost incontestable. Nationalism is an evil only when it develops into extra-nationalism and self-adoration."

Beginning with the Balfour Declaration, later incorporated in the mandate for Palestine, Mr. Snell gave a comprehensive analysis of political, social and economic conditions in Palestine, and predicted a satisfactory solution of differences between Jews and Arabs in the area.

"I would say that there appears to me little to justify the depression which has settled upon the Jewish people," he added. "The disappointments of the past ten years are small in comparison with the results achieved. The Jewish people have been trained to endure and to overcome difficulties, and they have always found their Mordecai in their

DISCIPLES DEDICATE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Sunrise Services Attended by More Than 10,000 at New Building.

HOOVER SENDS MESSAGE

Crowds conservatively estimated at more than 10,000 persons massed at Thomas Circle at sunrise yesterday to dedicate the new National Christian Church as the major event of three affiliated conventions that brought here Disciples of Christ from about 35 lands.

Its participants at 8 o'clock in the afternoon met in the new $1,500,000 edifice, Washington Auditorium and Constitution Hall at communion services held jointly to mark the close of the five-day international convention of the Disciples of Christ and the World Youth convention, and to formally open the five-day first world convention of the Churches of Christ.

Following the services a message from President Hoover praising "gatherings for spiritual fellowship" was read. "I send cordial greetings to the World Convention of the Churches of Christ," the President wrote. "These great gatherings for spiritual fellowship contribute not only to an enrichment of the life of those participating, but also an inspiration and example of good will and service of high value in the life of our people. You have my best wishes for a fruitful and happy meeting."

Entering immediately on its lengthy program, the Churches of Christ held concurrent meetings last night at the Auditorium and Constitution Hall with the roll-call of nations as a feature.

Dedication of the new church building climaxed dedicatory services of the pulpit on Wednesday, the baptistry on Thursday, the choir on Friday and the organ on Saturday. The edifice formally was accepted for the denomination by Robert A. Long, prominent lumber dealer of Kansas City, Mo., president of the International Convention of Disciples of

SNOWSTORM COVERS AREA NEAR BUFFALO

1,000 CARS STALLED ALONG MAIN ROADS

24 PERSONS ESCAPE BY FLEEING BUILDING

20 Girl Campers Marooned on Lake With Little Food and No Heat.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—With heavy snow still falling, the freak blizzard that struck western New York Saturday, blanketing some communities and missing others in the same general area, tonight was tightening its grip on the south shore of Lake Erie. Traffic was blocked on highways leading south and west out of Buffalo, but only a few scattering flakes fell in the downtown section of the city. South Buffalo was blanketed with 6 inches.

The heaviest fall of snow was reported at Angola, where it was 4 feet on the level. The situation was acute tonight in that vicinity. More than 200 cars from various States were stalled in the main road within a mile of the village and the occupants of the machines were cared for by residents. It was estimated that at least 1,000 motorists were stalled between Wakanah and Dunkirk.

To add to the hardships, the village waterworks at Wakanah was out of commission, due to power wires being torn down. This afternoon the roof of the Angola Hotel caved under the weight of snow. Twenty-five persons fled from the place to safety when a bulging wall gave warning.

Twenty Girls Marooned.

Twenty girls in a Y. W. C. A. camp at Brant, on the lake shore, were marooned with little food and no lights or heat. The camp is on a road off the main highway. Snow plows were at work trying to make the Brant road passable.

Saranac Lake, in the heart of the cold north country, reported today a typical winter day, with snow flurries, a temperature below freezing and high winds. The surrounding mountains were mantled in white.

Plattsburgh reported somewhat warmer weather, but with snow in the Dannemora neighborhood. The Adirondacks appeared to have been a good barrier for the wintry blasts for Glens Falls, seated on their southeastern rim, reported the temperature did not go below 39 degrees.

Center of State Shivers.

The central part of the State shivered, with the temperature in many places around the 36 mark, with snow flurries and high winds. Syracuse reported a light snow falling tonight after flurries during the day. The lowest temperature there was 36, Albany's lowest, too.

The outposts of winter reached to the southern border, where Bingham-

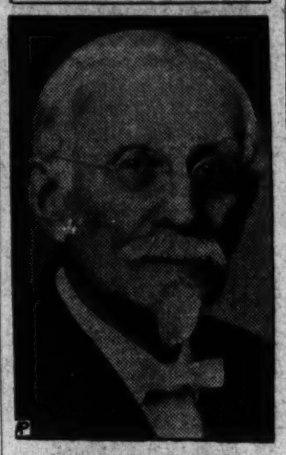
SCULPTOR DIES



EDWARD V. VALENTINE.

FAMOUS SCULPTOR OF VIRGINIA IS DEAD

HOME WAS IN RICHMOND

Richmond, Va., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Edward Virginius Valentine, famous sculptor, who was known principally for his recumbent statue of Robert E. Lee in the Lee Chapel at Lexington, Va., and other Southern subjects, died at his home here today. He would have observed his ninety-second birthday on November 12.

Mr. Valentine had been in failing health for several months, but his death came unexpectedly.

In the chapel of Washington and Lee University lies the marble figure of a sleeping soldier, the right arm resting across the chest, while the fingers of the left hand lie where they have fallen on the hilt of a sword. It is the recumbent statue of Gen. Lee, the work of art for which Valentine gained world-wide fame.

So lifelike is the statue that art critics have said the visitor speaks softly as though afraid of awakening him who has "lain down to pleasant dreams."

Probably no other work of Edward Valentine is so well known, although some critics have pronounced his "Andromache and Astyanax," in the Valentine Museum at Richmond, his masterpiece. The talented sculptor, who placed his art first throughout his life, held his association with Gen. Lee as one of his most treasured memories, and many of his critics say he carved much of the Southern leader's strength of character in the marble of the recumbent statue.

Valentine was born at Richmond on November 12, 1838, a member of a family prominent in Virginia history. He first resolved to study drawing and modeling when, at the age of 17, he attended the World's Fair in Chicago and was attracted by the art exhibits.

He entered the Medical College of Virginia at Richmond when 18 years old, and worked on anatomical studies and drawings for plaster casts. In September, 1859, he sailed for Europe to study under Old World masters of art.

Until 1861 Valentine was in Paris with Couture as his teacher. He next went to Florence, where he was under the influence of Michelangelo, Raphael and Da Vinci. He continued his studies at Rome, Naples and Milan before going to Berlin, where

WEST VIRGINIA FIGHT FOCUSED ON COAL ISSUE

STATES AT ODDS OVER PREFERENTIAL RATES

HATFIELD CAMPAIGNS FOR ERSTWHILE FOE

Jones Also Gets Support of Atterbury; Charleston Welcomes Hurley.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 19.—The fight in this State, as usual, turns on West Virginia's coal industry and the moot question of what is to become of it.

Because of a preferential freight rate to the lakes which the Pennsylvania fields enjoy this State's industry has been in the slough for several years. And the enmity that has grown up between the two States in their constant controversy over this rate is now giving the Democrats a most unique argument, whether convincing or not.

The Republicans have taken their cue from President Hoover's Boston speech, in which he referred to the plight of the coal industry and suggested that the antitrust laws might be lessened to cope with it, and they insist that the State's future lies with him.

G. O. P. Grip in Pennsylvania.

The Democrats say that this is a bad time to be talking about lessening restraints on mergers and monopolies and that therefore the President's speech did the party no good. Of course, they would say that.

More interesting and probably more effective is their argument that the coal industry had better throw its lot once and for all with the Democrats.

The powerful State of Pennsylvania has a grip on the Republican party which West Virginia can not hope to cope with, they contend. It is pointed out that Pennsylvania has two members of the Cabinet, the chairman of the Tariff Commission, and that it is strongly represented on the major committees of both the House and the Senate.

"Now what chance," asks the venerable former Senator Chilton through his Charleston Gazette time and again, "have we in Washington against such a powerful Pennsylvania array?"

Neely's Past Performances.

What West Virginia should do, he argues, is to go with the Democrats who will appreciate it and with the help of Southerners and Westerners keep constantly hammering away until relief is obtained.

And former Senator Neely's record, when he was in the Senate, is cited in support of the argument. Neely, it is recalled, got his Southern and Western friends together on two occasions to defeat appointees to the Interstate Commerce Commission that were considered inimical to West Virginia's side of the controversy.

PREDICTS WIN

SHOUSE FORECASTS DEMOCRATIC HOUSE

Gain of 60 Seats in Coming Election Is Conservative Estimate, He Says.

SENATE HOPE IS STRONG

(Associated Press.)

For the first time, Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, predicted yesterday that the Democrats will gain control of the House, the prize in the election two weeks hence.

In a formal statement, Mr. Shouse said he based his revised estimate of the forthcoming congressional election "on a dispassionate summary of the facts, allowing full consideration to overoptimism in some of our reports."

An overturn of 54 seats now held by Republicans is necessary for the Democrats to win control of the House. Mr. Shouse predicted a minimum gain of 60 seats and said he believes the total would be nearer 70.

Less hopeful of winning the Senate, the Democratic executive asserted that if the Democrats win in three of five States now classed as doubtful they will have a majority of one in the next Senate. He classed the States of Illinois, Minnesota, South Dakota, Colorado and Wyoming as doubtful in the Senate contests.

Mr. Shouse said his figures show the Democratic party will gain at least seven members from New England, at least fifteen in the group comprising New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia, together with all the seats in the South lost in the last election.

"From the Middle West," he continued, "extending from Ohio to Kansas, our gains will be not far short of 30. This may seem excessive, but when it is realized that at present we have only three seats in Indiana, three in Ohio, six in Illinois, three in Kentucky, and six in Missouri, whereas we will have a majority of the delegations in most of these States this time, it will be seen that there is no exaggeration."

Regarding the Senate, Mr. Shouse said there were too many States in which the issue is close to justify prediction of a Democratic majority. He expressed confidence, however, that "we will make many gains in the Senate."

"The present complexion of the Senate," he continued, "is 39 Democrats, 56 Republicans and 1 Farmer-Laborite. The most conservative estimate for the Senate after March 4, 1931, according to our reports, give us

WOMAN TAKEN ALSO AND ONE MAN ESCAPES

Police There Were on the Lookout for Trio in Bus.

REQUEST RELAYED FROM WASHINGTON

SHOOTING OCCURRED NIGHT OF OCTOBER 6

Police Have Had Little in Way of Clews to Base Work Upon.

A man who gave his name as Frank Mahoney was arrested yesterday in Pittsburgh, Pa., in connection with the fatal shooting of Louis Bush, philanthropist and bus line owner, near his home, 3534 Fulton street northwest, on the night of October 6. One woman, whose name is withheld, also was arrested. Another male companion escaped, according to word received at police headquarters.

Washington authorities advised Pittsburgh police that the man believed to be Mahoney and a companion sought in connection with the killing were on their way to Pittsburgh. More than a score of Pittsburgh officers met the bus at its terminal.

All the passengers were herded into a waiting room to be questioned, one by one. The second man who was sought is believed to have mingled with the crowd and escaped.

Name Unknown to Bush Son.

William L. Bush, 3701 Massachusetts avenue northwest, son of the slain man, at his home early today said that he had never heard of the man and could not recall whether he ever had been employed as a chauffeur by his father.

Mr. Bush, who was owner of the Gray Line Motor Tours, a bank director and a prominent philanthropist, was attacked by a robber just after he had placed his car in his garage in the rear of his home.

He grappled with his assailant and in the struggle one shot was discharged which entered Mr. Bush's abdomen and resulted in his death two days later in Emergency Hospital.

Before he died he explained to detectives and hospital attendants that he thought a friend was playing a joke on him when he was told to "stick 'em up."

The robber fled, without loot, after the shooting. Mr. Bush staggered to the front door of his home, where he collapsed. He was treated by a physician at his home and later taken to the hospital.

His assailant was described as 5 feet 8 inches tall, about 30 years old and white, dressed in a dark suit and wearing a gray cap.

Little in Way of Clews Found.

Since the crime Inspector William S. Shelby and Capt. Edward J. Kelly have had little to work upon in the way of clews. There was a bloody print of the heel of a man's hand on an automobile in the garage. One of the bullets which were discharged in the struggle was found lodged in the wall of a house across from the garage.

Since the murder authorities have conducted a diligent search for clews. Recently a lookout was sent to all precincts to check pawn shops and second-hand stores in the city for persons who purchased revolvers.

Rites Held in Alexandria Mark Fall of Cornwallis

Third Secretary of French Embassy Honor Guest at Exercises Before Tomb of Unknown Revolutionary Soldier, Commemorating 149th Anniversary.

Impressive ceremonies under the auspices of the Washington Society of Alexandria were held yesterday afternoon at the tomb of the Unknown Revolutionary Soldier in the churchyard of the old Presbyterian Meeting House on South Fairfax street, in Alexandria. The exercises commemorated the 149th anniversary of the surrender of Lord Cornwallis to the French and American troops.

William B. McGroarty, president of the Washington Society, presided. The Rev. Percy Foster Hall, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, welcomed the guest of honor, Phillippe Baudet, third secretary of the French Embassy.

M. Baudet conveyed the regrets of the French Ambassador at not being able to be present on account of his absence in Maine, and then, before placing a wreath on the tomb of the Revolutionary Soldier in the name of the Republic of France, knelt before the tomb in tribute to a member of the body of patriots of whom his own countrymen had been allies.

Miss Ann Carter Waller, as representative of the Children of the American Revolution, placed a wreath on the tomb. The organization which she represented was in charge of Mrs. C. A. S. Sinclair, regent of Ann McCarty Ramsey Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

A wreath was also placed on the tomb by Clement Conger, whose great-great-great-grandfather was Col. Dennis Ramsey, one of the pallbearers at the funeral of George Washington, and whose home, at King and Fairfax streets, was the scene of many social

Calvin Coolidge Says:

Newspapers always have a very serious problem in giving the public what it wants to read and so getting a circulation, and at the same time presenting a candid report and comment on really consequential current news and so promoting general education and forming sound public opinion. This is important because newspapers are more and more read, are the chief medium for distributing information, are generally accepted by people as accurate and authoritative and ought to be a cross section of the record of contemporaneous history. Future historians will have to rely on them largely for enlightment concerning the most important events. That is a great responsibility for newspapers to discharge.

Like almost everything else the standards of the press are ultimately set by the people themselves. They will get what they insist on having. If they want a reliable, serious, informing newspaper, it will be furnished for them. If they are content with exciting, highly colored sensationalism they will get that. The present tendency is toward higher standards. The once purely ephemeral and sensational paper is changing its tone. It is a healthful and encouraging development indicating the advance of the people to a broader culture.

Earthquake Shocks Felt In New Orleans and State

People Are Shaken Out of Their Beds by Tremors That Rock Area at Dawn; Disturbance Is Recorded Here.

New Orleans, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Distinct earthquake tremors today shook thirteen or more towns and cities of southeastern Louisiana, including New Orleans, but no damage of any consequence was reported.

The earthquake occurred about 6:15 a. m., literally shaking some residents of New Orleans and surrounding regions out of their beds. Thousands of telephone calls poured into newspaper offices from persons feeling the shock and wishing information.

Doubt existed as to whether two tremors occurred, or only one. Some narrators were positive that there were two shocks, about five minutes apart. It was definite that the first tremble lasted a full 30 seconds.

In Plaquemines, La., about 85 miles northwest of New Orleans, the quake was severe enough to shake the glass from street lights.

No record of the vibrations was made at the Loyola University seismographical observatory, as the equipment was reported out of order.

Prof. J. Adair Lyon, head of the physics department at Newcomb College, said that the gradual fading out of the vibrations in northerly, easterly and westerly directions, probably indicated that the center of the disturbance occurred beneath the floor of the Gulf of Mexico several hundred miles from land.

Todays' earthquake is the first ever felt in New Orleans, according to older inhabitants, and no historical record has been found of any previous similar shock.

LOSS OF $12,000,000 SEEN IN BOB FRIMS

Rambou Luminous Products Concern Believed to Be Still Solvent.

CHICAGO DEAL IS BARED

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—A new and higher estimate of the possible losses to investors in the enterprises of Charles V. Bob, missing promoter, was made tonight by Watson Washburn, assistant attorney general in charge of the State Bureau of Securities. He said the losses might amount to as much as $12,000,000.

Of this amount "pretty close to $6,000,000" probably will be accounted for by the collapse of Metal & Mining Shares, Inc., the investment trust controlled by Bob, Mr. Washburn said.

Though Rainbow Luminous Products, Inc., another Bob concern, is believed to be still solvent, Mr. Washburn said that nevertheless the loss to the public through the operation of this corporation would "probably be greater" than that caused by the Metal & Mining Shares concern and "at any rate will run into several millions."

Stock Value Believed Inflated.

George F. Thompson, who has been retained as counsel for the Rainbow concern, and R. R. Machlett, its president, have both announced that an audit of the company's books almost certainly will show the corporation to be solvent. Mr. Washburn also has said its present board of directors probably will be able to save the company, so that his announcement today was something of a surprise.

He explained it, however, by saying he understood much of the stock of the corporation had been sold at inflated prices due to the alleged manipulations of Bob, a director of the concern.

CHICAGO HEAD REVEALED

Chicago, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—John F. Gilchrist, president of the Federal Electric Company of Chicago, an Insull subsidiary, said today that Charles V. Bob, missing New York banker, in 1929 negotiated for purchase of the company for $7,000,000 and had put up $500,000 to bind the option.

Gilchrist added that Bob's unsuccessful effort to obtain control of the Claude Neon lights Corporation interfered with his plans for acquiring the federal company and that Bob and his associates forfeited the $500,000 option. Bob was unable, Gilchrist said, to interest Chicago banks in the venture.

Mr. Gilchrist stated that he knew nothing of reports that $3,000,000 had been placed in escrow by the Bob group in an effort to consummate the federal deal.

POLICE PISTOL TEAM ISSUES CHALLENGES

SILVER TROPHY OFFERED

A pistol team challenging all comers, has been organized by members of the police department of the Seventh Precinct, under the direction of Lieut. Lloyd E. Kelly, second in command at the station house.

Practicing twice a week at the pistol range of Georgetown University, under the instruction of Lieut. H. J. Hunt, Prof. of Military Science at that institution, members of the are rapidly becoming chack shots. Private K. G. McCormack holds the record for the highest scores.

A silver trophy, donated by J. Clinton Tribby, local jeweler, will go to the man having the best record following a series of matches soon to be held.

The team, something new in police organizations, was started by Lieut. Kellq, in order, he said, to give the men a better knowledge of the use of their fire arms.

Contests with Georgetown University and other schools, as well as with teams representing precincts throughout the city, are planned.

Miss Mary Virginia Agnew then placed on the tomb a wreath of leaves gathered yesterday morning from the oak trees on the Mount Vernon estate, which wer planted under the personal supervision of Gen. Washington.

Among those attending the ceremones were Mrs. Eleanor Selden Washington Howard, the last Washington child born at Mount Vernon before the estate passed out of the hands of the Washington famiyl, and a vice regent general of the Daughters of the American Revolution; Mrs. Quirollo, and Mrs. Gardiner, both vice regnts of the D. A. R.

Gen. Saunders S. Simmons, a member of the Eighth Virginia Infantry in the Confederate Army, now commander of the Pacific Division of the United Confederate Veterans, delivered a short address.

$62,471,504 SLUMP IN TAXES REPORTED

INCOME LEVIES DROP

(Associated Press.)

A decrease of $62,471,504 in Government tax receipts in the first quarter of the present fiscal year as compared with the same period last year was announced yesterday by the Internal Revenue Bureau.

From July 1 to September 30 the Government income from all tax sources was $708,363,707, as compared with $770,835,212 in the first three months of the last fiscal year.

The major part of the decrease occurred last month when the tax collections dropped $48,847,552 from $593,983,224 for September, 1929.

Only 6 of the 36 classes of taxes showed increases, and they were minor items. Income taxes registered the greatest drop, being $55,740,192 less than collections in the first three months last year.

Other Collections Decline.

Corporation tax collections declined $14,055,350 while individual income tax receipts decreased $41,684,842. The total income tax receipts, from July 1 to September 30, was $553,725,824, composed of $302,675,818 corporation taxes and $251,050,206 individual.

The six classes that showed increases included taxes on rectifiers, retail and wholesale liqour dealers, manufacturers of stills, &c., case stamps for distilled spirits bottled in bond and brewers, retail and wholesale dealers in malt liquors. The increases in these divisions totaled only $274.

The tobacco tax was the only general subdivision that showed an increase and this was due to a jump in the manufacture of cigarettes and cigarette papers. Cigarettes paid $97,881,500 for the first quarter, compared with $96,020,274 last year, while cigarette papers paid $413,373 this quarter as against $376,096 a year ago. The total tobacco tax, however, was only $9,450 more in the first quarter of this year, due to decreases in large and small cigars, large cigarettes, snuff and chewing and smoking tobacco.

Stamp Taxes Drop.

Documentary stamp taxes, which advanced during the stock market boom, dropped away $7,936,343, showing a decrease from $24,606,196 in the first quarter of last year to $16,642,835 this year. Of this decrease, $3,507,556 occurred last month as compared to September, 1929.

Taxes on bonds of indebtedness, capital stock issues, &c., and on capital stock sales or transfers, which had increased during the stock market boom, dropped off $1,350,770 and $5,314,147, respectively. The playing card tax declined from $954,584 in the first three months of the last fiscal year to $827,701.

Miscellaneous taxes dropped from $3,330,402 for the first quarter of the last year to $1,369,138 for the same period this year.

The greater part of the decrease in tax collections was due to the drop in income taxes collected last month as compared to those received in September last year. The collections this September were $497,388,740 as compared to $542,065,837 last year.

Among the major tax items, only those on the transfer of estates of decedents showed an increase, advancing from $9,549,128 in the first three months last year to $13,318,330 this year.

RACING AIR PILOTS KILLED AT PYLON

short order, but the fliers were beyond help.

MacKie, an Army flier during the war, formerly was chief pilot of Colonial Airways, and at the time of his death was operations manager of Curtiss Field, Valley Stream, Long Island. He was flying a Curtiss-owned plane when he crashed.

Zinn was a wealthy sportsman pilot who lived at Rydal, Pa., a son of the late Capt. George Zinn, and was reputedly a millionaire. He formerly managed the Rainbow Flying Field at Washington Crossing, Pa., and represented this airport and the City of Trenton in one of the transcontinental derbies from New York to Los Angeles for the 1928 national air races. He was about 26 and unmarried. MacKie was some ten years his senior.

MacKie Had Won Toss.

J. C. Tarr, assistant manager of Curtiss Field, who flew here with MacKie, matched coins with him today to see which should fly the ill-fated Cessna in the free-for-all. MacKie won—and lost his life.

Mrs. Opal Logan Kunz, former wife of Dr. George F. Kunz, Tiffany gem expert, was flying one of the four ships figuring in the fatal turn.

Being the only woman in the race and not as skilled a pilot as most of her rivals, she came in for some criticism from other pilots for her part in the affair, but hotly defended herself as having been on the outside of the turn and above the other planes as required under the rules of the National Aeronautic Association and the Federation Aeronautique, whose double sponsorship the two-day air meet enjoyed.

In this she was supported by many airmen, including Maj. Robert L. Copsey, of Newark Air Service, who witnessed the accident from a point of vantage atop the big airport hangar. Morgan Harding, of New Brunswick, who flew the fourth ship in the disastrous huddle, an Aristocrat low wing monoplane, also seemed to think the fault did not lie with Mrs. Kunz.

Question Has Been Raised.

Some question has been raised as to why women pilots were permitted to participate in this and other events of the meet inasmuch as it has been a rule of the N. A. A. and F. A. I. in the past not to allow "mixed" races but to promote separate events for both men and women. It was in Mrs. Kunz's plane, a sister ship of the Travel-air, Betsy Ross Second, which she flew today, that her instructor, Capt. John O. Donaldson, was killed a few weeks ago at an air-meet in Philadelphia.

First and second places in today's fatal race already had been cinched by Art Davis, of Lansing, Mich., and Russell Thaw, son of Evelyn Nesbit and Harry K. Thaw, at the time of the accident, which came in the fourth round of a six-lap event.

Davis led the field in a Waco similar to Zinn's and Thaw, who flies at Roosevelt Field, L. I., for Air Services, Inc., was close behind him with a Lockheed Sirius Monoplane similar to the one used by the Lindberghs on their transcontinental flight. They won $350 respectively, Harding and Mrs. Kunz taking the other two prizes of $75 and $50.

Floridian Wins Prize.

The only other race of the day was a commercial event for planes of smaller horse power and was won by F. M. Snyder, of Kissimee, Fla., in a Bird Biplane at 110 miles an hour. R. Don Rae was second in a Challenger Biplane at 105 miles an hour and W. A. Newhouse third at 103. Prizes in this event were $200, $100 and $50 respectively.

Those in charge of the air meet, which was sponsored by the American Legion Memorial Chapel Association to raise funds for the erection of the "Cathedral of the Air" at Lakehurst, N. J., Naval Air Station, as a national shrine to the heroes of aviation, were uncertain tonight whether these races have accomplished much beyond adding two names to the already over-long roll of those who have given up their lives to flying. They fear that when the expenses of promoting the meet and entertaining the crews of 200 odd ships which came here for it have been deducted from total gate receipts, there may not be anything left, if an actual deficit does not exist.

This is due chiefly to the fact that a bitterly cold wind held down the attendance yesterday far below the expected figure and that conditions today were only slightly improved.

In Flight Over Australia to Reach Sydney and Greet Fiancee.

Port Darwin, Australia, Monday, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith, continuing across continent his record-breaking England-Australia flight, took off from the airdrome here at 6:30 a. m. today for Sydney, where he will meet his family and his fiancee, Miss Mary Powell.

The Australian ace, flying in his airplane Southern Cross, jr., sped away above the wild desert country of the northern territory of South Australia on what may be the last of his great long-distance flights. He is said to have given a promise to his fiancee that he will abandon such attempts after his marriage.

Half an hour after he had left for Sydney, Capt. R. F. Matthews, who also had flown from London to Australia, followed him into the air.

Received Help From Rival.

A fine act of chivalry marked the last lap of the flight of Wing Commander Kingsford-Smith, who arrived here yesterday from England to make a new record of less than ten days for an airplane trip between the mother country and the Dominion.

As Kingsford-Smith sought to land at Atamboea, Island of Timor, Saturday, he saw the plane of his rival in the race from England, Lieut. C. W. Hill, apparently dismantled, about 50 feet from the airdome.

Flight Lieut. Hill greeted Kingsford-Smith as he landed, and told him the wing of his machine had caught on a wire fence, as he attempted to rise, not far away. The machine turned over, damaging its undercarriage, breaking the propeller and smashing both wings. Since it was impossible to repair the plane on the spot, Kingsford-Smith suggested that he should abandon his own flight temporarily and return to Singapore to arrange for Royal Air Force engineers to make repairs or return the machine to England.

Takes Hills' Boat.

Hill, who was not hurt in the crash of his plane, refused the offer and insisted on Kingsford-Smith continuing, taking with him the small rubber collapsible boat which Hill had brought from England, particularly for the trip across the Timor Sea. Kingsford-Smith, while crossing the Timor Sea, one of the most dangerous stretches of water in the world so far as flights are concerned, had the added confidence of possession of his friendly rival's life-saving apparatus.

"It was a pitiful sight," Kingsford-Smith said, "to see Lieut. Hill's machine smashed up and see a gallant pilot lose all he had fought for so pluckily and had endured so much to attain.

"His flight was infinitely more difficult, and therefore a finer achievement, than mine."

England Greatly Stirred.

London, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—England was stirred to the depths today by news of the safe arrival in Australia, after a record-breaking flight, of Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith, the empire's Lindbergh.

The mother country, which has been following with the closest attention the details of his speedy flight from Heston Airdrome to Port Darwin, has fully appreciated the romance of the fact that he was racing to meet his future bride. King George himself sent a message of warm congratulations on the achievement of the Australian ace, requesting the Governor General of Australia to convey them personally in his name.

Among the thousands of messages sent direct to Port Darwin was one from Prime Minister MacDonald, saying: "Most hearty congratulations on your wonderful flight."

No one gave heartier tribute to Kingsford-Smith than Capt. J. Errol Boyd, Canadian hero of the most recent transatlantic flight.

Knighthood Is Suggested.

"It is a most wonderful feat. I met Kingsford-Smith in America, and he is a great man. If he goes after something he does it. He deserves every recognition."

Discussing the question of recognition, some of London's newspapers have suggested that a knighthood be conferred on the ace.

The News of the World says that as a matter of fact King George is understood to have expressed this wish some time ago, but that the Australian Labor government, which has no love for titles, brought pressure to bear on the airman to persuade him to refuse.

Official confirmation of this story is lacking, but it is accepted by many persons who in the past have commented on what they considered the strange absence of official recognition of the empire's greatest airman.

"Legs" Diamond Held Improving

Gangster Displeased at His Removal to City Hospital.

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—A series of bulletins issued today at the Metropolitan Hospital on Welfare Island gave assurance that the condition of Jack ("Legs") Diamond, gangster, who has four bullet holes in his body, was "satisfactory."

The racketeer protested against his forced removal to the Municipal Hospital and expressed a belief the public officials around him would "put something over on him" when he was able to walk. He was quoted as telling his few callers that he wished he had been taken to his fortified country home at Acra, N. Y.

Meanwhile detectives searched the Hotel Monticello, where Diamond was shot and savagely beaten last Sunday by unknown gunmen, for a possible trace of the assailants' pistols. They found none.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS

Just a few decades ago the most unremitting toil secured only the bare necessities of life for the great majority of the American people. Today every one has conveniences, even luxuries, that a king could not previously command . . . We delight to speak of the "good old days," yet few would now care to live under similar conditions. Our improvement has been the result of our willingness to buy our neighbor's products, thus increasing employment opportunities and providing markets for our own products . . . By continuing our liberal buying habits we insure continuance of national prosperity.

HOOVER CAMP VISIT MAY BE YEAR'S LAST

President Goes to See Son Before Latter Is Moved to North Carolina.

WATER SUPPLY IS SCANT

Orange, Va., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—President Hoover today paid what may be his final visit this year to his Virginia mountain camp.

The Chief Executive motored here this morning from Washington to see Herbert Hoover, jr., who is ill, and expected to return to the Capital early tomorrow.

It may be the last time that Mr. Hoover will see his son before he is moved about November 1 to Asheville, N. C.

The Chief Executive intends to go to Princeton next week-end to see the Navy-Princeton football game, and plans have been made to take his son to North Carolina the following week.

Alterations are being made to the home on Sunset Mountain at Asheville, which the son of the President will occupy, and the family hopes these will be completed by November 1, as the presidential lodge is not equipped for comfort in cold weather.

President Hoover was accompanied today by Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sullivan, of Washington, and Capt. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician. Mrs. Hoover arrived earlier in the week to be with her son.

With the flow of water curtailed by the drought, the President found the water supply at his camp near the vanishing point. He was advised yesterday by Maj. E. C. Long, commandant of the camp's Marine detachment, that it would be undesirable to bring many guests to the lodge, as was his custom during the summer, because of the lack of water.

One Killed, Two Hurt When Auto Turns Over

Hezekiah Boykins, 30 years old, was almost instantly killed and his wife, Lillian, and a friend, Sam Taylor, all of Baltimore, were injured when the automobile in which they were riding turned over between Waldorf and White Plains, Md., about 9:30 o'clock last night.

The car, according to reports from Baltimore, was goin agt a high speed when it skidded from the road, turning over. It had not been fully determined at a late hour last night who was driving. The man's wife and Taylor were not seriously injured. They were treated by Dr. O. G. Munro, of Waldorf, Md.

Los Angeles, Oct. 19.—A third divorce from the same husband was won by Mrs. Clara Kornowski when Superior Judge Hazlett gave her a decree, dissolving her third marriage with Joseph Kornowski. The Kornowskis originally married in 1913, she divorcing him in 1915, remarrying in 1917 and divorcing him the second time in 1928, the records show.

CAMPBELL DEFENSE FINDS NEW EVIDENCE

List of 24 Witnesses in the Baker Trial Will Be Submitted Today.

PHONE CALL IMPORTANT

New alibi witnesses have been found by counsel for Herbert M. Campbell to support his story that he was at home when Mary Baker was slain.

Charles Henry Smith, his counsel, today will submit a list of 24 witnesses who will give testimony at the defendant's trial tending to prove that it was impossible for him to have committed the murder.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. McLane, of Falls Church, Va., are the two most important witnesses of the lot. Records of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. show that Campbell made a call to their home at 6:17 o'clock on the night of Mary Baker's murder.

Mr. McLane recalls that Campbell talked with nim on a personal proposition and at the time one of the McLanes asked Campbell to stop at their home on the following night, April 12, to transport them to a "Back-to-Washington" meeting which was held in Arlington County on that night.

Campbell's telephone bill shows that this was the only call he had made to Falls Church in that week and the witnesses clearly recall that mention was made of the meeting.

Wed 60 Years, Now Sues.

Bedford, Ind., Oct. 19.—Sixty years after becoming the bride of Willis Stevens, 82, Mrs. Angeline Stevens, 76, has filed suit for divorce here. Mrs. Stevens charged her husband with cruel and inhuman treatment. They were married December 30, 1870, and separated January 15, 1925.

SPANISH PREMIER LASHED AT MEETING

LEGAL ACTIONS URGED

Valencia, Spain, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The second big meeting of the Spanish Republicans during the parliamentary elections campaign passed off quietly today in this city, the third largest in Spain.

Large detachments of troops and police were on hand, but no disorders were reported. There were 35,000 persons present at the meeting, which was opened by Sigfrido Blasco, son of the celebrated Valencian novelist, Vicente Blasco Ibanez.

Rafael Sanchez Guerra, son of the Liberal leader and former prime minister, drew an ovation from the crowd when he accused Premier Damaso Berenguer of military incompetence during the Spanish campaign against the Riffians in Morocco.

Describing his visit to Monte Arruit, scene of one of the greatest disasters to Spanish arms in the Riff campaign, he cried:

"I saw thousands of corpses on the field. They seemed to avert the possibility of Gen. Berenguer's ever attaining the premiership of the country, since the disaster was due to his military incompetence."

Alejandro Lorroux, veteran Republican leader, counseled those present to adopt legal means and refrain from violence in establishing a republic.

He described the separatist movements in certain regions of Spain to maladministration by the monarchy.

Umbrellas Cause Riot On Laccadive Islands

Calicut, Madras, India, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—A job lot of western umbrellas and shoes caused a riot on the Laccadive Islands, 150 miles off the Malabar coast.

The Koyas, or aristocracy of the islands, long ago decreed that they alone might go shod and carry umbrellas but when the western shipment came in the Malumis, or sailor caste, and the Melacheris, who nick coconuts, decided to try dressing up.

They picked eleven Melacheris and nine Malumis to defy the old edict and it was a gala day for the strutting low castes until the Koyas chief heard about it and ordered out his spearmen. After the fight the mannequins found themselves in jail.

Lisbon Cats Killed Off, Mice Having Their Day

Lisbon, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Lisbon authorities, who fought public opinion and irate cat owners when they recently captured and killed 5,000 stray cats, are now paying the piper.

Widespread damage has been done to warehouses and shop stocks since the "cat riots" ended, the mice frisking gaily and devouring fabrics and foodstuffs at will.

The National Association of Shopkeepers and Grocers appealed to the town to establish a cat farm where a breed will be developed to wage a relentless war upon rodents.

Gale Keeps Liner Out of Port.

Cobh, Irish Free State, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Because of a southerly gale, which is raging here, the liner Britannic, from New York, did not put in here today although she had 117 passengers and 109 sacks of mail aboard destined for Ireland. The vessel continued to Liverpool after passing by the mouth of the harbor.

BRAZILIAN REVOLUTIONARY TROOPS GATHER IN RIO GRANDE DO SUL

The top picture from Santa Ana do Livramento, Brazil, is among the first to reach the United States showing movement of men and equipment toward the front at the outbreak of revolutionary activity in the State of Rio Grande do Sul. Troops with the exception of some army units which deserted the government were entrained volunteers at the opening of the campaign. Below are shown adherents to the revolutionary cause being cheered by the populace of the City of Santa Ana do Livramento as they depart for the front.

STEPMOTHER SEIZED IN DEATH OF GIRL, 10

HIS FATHER LAYS ILL

Denver, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Toxologists examining the viscera of Leona O'Loughlin, 10, found slain last week in a city park lake, announced tonight that ground glass had been discovered in vital portions of the body.

The child's father is in a hospital suffering from what was believed to be food poisoning. The child's stepmother, Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin, was arrested today and taken to the police station.

No special charge was lodged against the prisoner.

The foster mother was arrested at the home of a sister, Mary Belle Shannon, and taken to police headquarters, where she was closeted with the captain of detectives, Albert T. Clark.

The girl was last seen alive Tuesday, and her father, who is ill, reported her missing Wednesday afternoon. After making the report he went home ill from poisoning, said by the family to have been from food. The illness grew more pronounced and he was removed to a hospital, where an analysis of the contents of his stomach is under way.

Laceration on the girl's head and arm were caused by violence before she apparently was thrown into the lake, police said.

A blood-stained rag and wisps of the child's tam-o-shanter were found in the pocket of a car in a garage at the O'Loughlin home yesterday. George Bostwick, deputy coroner, announced that the stains on the rag had been caused by blood. Toxologists are analyzing the child's viscera for possible traces of poison.

No Change in Snails Since Ancient Times

He has completed a comparison of 5,000 living specimens of snails sent from Algiers with fossilized snails from the same place—and found them the same.

FOUR-FOOT SNOW BLANKETS TERRITORY NEAR BUFFALO

ton had high, cold winds. Poughkeepsie, down the Hudson Valley, reported similar weather.

At Eighteen-Mile Creek, near Buffalo, there were many stalled cars today. One section of the highway was opened, freeing some of a long line of cars blocked last night by the stalling of a large truck in the deep snow.

Winter Drives South.

Kansas City, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The advance guard of winter neared the Mason-Dixon line today on a foray that began in the Northwest last week.

Snow filtered through leaden clouds over much of the Middle West. Flurries reached the central section of Missouri before the sun broke through in a belated rear guard action for summer's cause.

Temperatures continued below freezing in Illinois and adjacent States. Generally fair weather was reported in the Rocky Mountain area. Autumnal showers fell in Oklahoma. Rains were general in north Texas.

Clear, cool weather prevailed in Utah, southern Idaho, Oregon, Washington and Colorado. Western Wyoming reported lower temperatures.

The maximum today in Dallas, Tex., was 65, slightly warmer than yesterday. Temperatures in Kansas City remained near the freezing point until noon. The low in Salt Lake City last night was 39, the temperature rising today to 60.

Wheat farmers of Missouri and Kansas welcomed the moisture as part of winter's contribution to the stand of grain next spring.

Earliest of Season.

The snow was one of the earliest of the season in this section. Ice rimmed the farm ponds where work animals quenched Sabbath day thirst. The flakes stenciled designs on shocks of fodder and nestled on the backs of live stock. Persimmons and paw paws along the creek beds mellowed with the cold.

With the emergence of the sun here late today, Andrew M. Hamrick, Federal meteorologist forecast another killing frost tonight. The damage, he said, would be confined to such garden stuff and late corn as had had previous visitations. Most staple crops already have matured.

The weather, Mr. Hamrick said, would remain cool the forepart of this week.

Unemployed Are Mobilized.

Erie, Pa., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Erie tonight mobilized its unemployed to fight one of the worst early season blizzards of recent years.

Representatives of railroads, traction companies, and of the State highway department recruited helpers wherever they could be found to battle snow that, whipped by a 25 miles an hour wind, has fallen almost steadily for 24 hours and was falling still late tonight, bearing trees and telegraph and telephone wires to the ground and seriously hampering road and rail communications.

Automobile traffic ashore was almost at a standstill, with several cars abandoned in the face of driving snow and mounting drifts. On Lake Erie shipping kept to port rather than breast the mountainous waves driven before the gale.

Ashore, the snow had covered the ground to a depth of more than a foot, with drifts several feet in depth. Cold accompanying the fall was believed to have ruined the remainder of the Chautauqua-Erie grape belt crop, and possibly crops still in the ground as well.

Chilly Winter Weather To Remain for Two Days

Washington is going to feel the chill of winter for the next two days at least, according to the Weather Bureau.

Yesterday was one of the coldest days of the season. Aided by a brisk wind, the mercury dropped to 36 degress at 6:30 a. m. The highest temperature recorded for the day was 61 degrees at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Light frost was predicted in the suburbs last night.

G. O. P. CLUB HEAD HIT

Boston, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The Boston Central Labor Union decided at its meeting today that members of organized labor who have been working for the election of William M. Butler, Republican senatorial nominee, had not been paid for their support with the exception of Charles J. Hodson.

E. A. Johnson, of the Boston Building Trades Council, and others associated with him in the formation of Republican workmen's clubs, were criticized, however, as worse than Communists in attempting to wreck unions by boring from within.

Hodson, a member of the Boston Street Carmen's Union and field secretary of the Workers' Republican Committee of Massachusetts, was termed a paid agent of the Republican State committee. Johnson is president of the organization, which pledges its members to vote for Republican candidates regardless of whether they have been, like Butler, condemned by the State Federation of Labor as enemies of the workers.

Frank H. McCarthy, general organizer for the American Federation of Labor, said: "I recommend the repudiation of all such clubs, as they are an injury to labor, being only turmoil, and are an attempt to break the unity needed for the salvation of the labor movement."

The Central Labor Union has been investigating for several weeks the activities of Johnson and his associates. During the primary campaign Conrad Crooker, of the Liberal Civic League, had charged that Butler was bribing members of organized labor to vote for him.

BRAZIL REBELS PLAN TO PEN ENEMY SHIPS

FEDERALS CLAIM GAINS

Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The Brazilian revolutionary government, claiming advances along the long Sao Paulo-Parana front, hopes soon to remove a federal thorn in its back which has hampered operations in the north.

The thorn is the city of Florianopolis, island capital of the State of Santa Catharina, which the federal government has held since beginning of the revolution three weeks ago, with a small force of men and several warships which have been assembled to harass the coast of the rebel states of Rio Grande do Sul, Santa Catharina and Parana.

Osvala Aranha, president pro tem of the State of Rio Grande do Sul, announced today the revolutionary government had resolved to mine the channel between Santa Catharina Island, on which Florianopolis is situated, and the mainland.

Bombings Peeve Rebels.

The operation, it was expected, would pen federal warships in the harbor, and so prevent their bombarding cities and towns along the rebel coastline. The revolutionary government has complained frequently of such alleged bombardments at Imbituba and elsewhere, contending that there are no defenses, nor troops, at such places and that the bombardments are needless.

An official announcement today said the Fourteenth Regiment of Cazadores, or scouts, sent from Florianopolis across the channel to Bigussu, had revolted and joined in the revolution.

In an exchange of telegrams with Capt. Juarez Tavora, leading the revolution in the northern part of Brazil, Capt. Juarez Tavora stated he was advancing down the coast from Sergipe toward Sao Salvador or Bahia and meeting with little resistance.

Martial Law Reported.

While no details were given, rebel quarters today claimed further "advance" along the Parana-Sao Paulo frontier, where, at Itarare several sanguinary battles have been fought with status of the engagements undetermined, due to rival claims of victory.

Revolutionary sources said that Arturo Bernardes had left the triangle section of western Minas Geraes and had invaded the State of Goyaz, capturing the City of Crystalino Formoza.

A radio message was intercepted in which it was said that President Luis had decreed martial law in the cities of Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo. While there was no confirmation, dispatches yesterday of a meeting extraordinary of the president, members of the cabinet, and municipal officials were recalled as possibly suggesting such a development.

Federals Claim Gains.

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—An official government communique today said Federal forces had inflicted a severe defeat on rebels operating in the State of Minas Geraes near the town of Cambuquira. Rebel losses were said to be severe.

The communique, adding that complete calm prevailed in Rio de Janeiro, said government forces were unmoved along the Parana-Sao Paulo frontier, and airplanes had been sent into interior Parana to drop bombs on the rebels.

President Washington Luis has named an interventor for the State of Espirito Santo, north of Rio de Janeiro. Jose Armando Ribaira has been given the post and will leave shortly for the capital. Reason for the move was not determined.

Three Are Feared Drowned in Upset

Fourth Man Swims Ashore When Dory Capsizes in Long Island Sound.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Three men are thought to have drowned after a 16-foot dory capsized in Long Island Sound today. A fourth man in the fishing party swam ashore. He is Harry Schmidt, of ew York City.

Rescue parties from the Pequot Yacht Club found the overturned boat later, but saw nothing of the three others who had been in it. They were all from ew York, one being the survivor's brother, George.

Schmidt said that an outboard motor on the dory stalled in the rough surface of the sound. While efforts were made to start it, the boat was filled with water, causing it to capsize. The three men missing were clinging to the upturned dory when Schmidt tsarted for shore, he said.

Purse With $175 Reported Lost.

Loss of his purse, containing $175, an automobile driver's license and registration card, was reported to police yesterday by Phillip Simons, 761 Irving street northwest.

Woman Held Under Bond On Charge of Murder

Charleston, S. C., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Miss Della Rowe was under bond here today following upon her arrest last night on a murder charge.

Police said they understood she and another woman were charged with pushing a man out of an automobile on a highway, fatally injuring him. They said the other woman also was out on bond. The arrest warrants were issued by L. B. Wheeler, justice of the peace of McIntosh County, Ga.

OVERHEATED STOVE SETS CHURCH AFIRE

SERVICES ARE RESUMED

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

An overheated stove is believed to have started a blaze which threatened the Community Methodist Church in Aurora Heights yesterday a short time before Sunday School services.

Fire departments from Clarendon, Ballston and Cherrydale rushed to the scene and soon had streams of water playing on the burning building. Damage is estimated at approximately $1,000.

The county school superintendent opened the auditorium of the James Monroe School nearby, and both Sunday School and church services were held there.

J. C. Spaulding, chairman of the county Republican committee, yesterday announced that the resignations of Mrs. Mary Morris Lockwood, committeewoman from Clarendon Precinct, No. 1, and Mrs. Mary G. Dudley, from Cherrydale Precinct, have been accepted. No efforts are being made at this time to fill the vacancies, he said.

Mrs. Ella Trent, her mother, Mrs. Olive Miller, and Miss Fannie White, all of Arlington County, were treated at Georgetown Hospital yesterday for cuts about the face caused by flying glass, when the car in which they were riding, operated by C. W. Miller, collided with another operated by E. Flaugher, of Upton Station. First aid was given by Dr. W. C. Sparks who was near the scene of the accident. The injured were taken to the hospital by Albert W. Howard. According to county police who investigated the accident, the crash was unavoidable. No arrests were made.

The Arlington District Council of Citizens Associations will hold its October meeting in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, in the Reese Building at Clarendon.

Delegates from each of the affiliated associations are asked to attend as matters of importance will be discussed.

Plans for the proposed change in the forms of the county government will be discussed by Robert N. Anderson and Hugh J. McGrath, members of the legislation and legal action committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation, at the monthly meeting of the Glebewood Citizens Association tonight. The meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Forman, on Glebe road at 8 o'clock.

The Arlington-Fairfax Counties' Volunteer Firemen's Association will hold its October meeting tomorrow night with the Jefferson District Fire Department at its firehouse at Virginia Highlands at 8 o'clock. A report from the convention and jubilee committee will be read at this meeting.

Dr. D. M. Faulkner, of Richmond, Va., will hold his semi annual orthopedic clinic Sunday, October 26, from 9 a. m. to 4 o'clock, at the Clarendon Health Center. This clinic will be for crippled or any persons with bone deformities, adults as well as children. The service will be free.

The county water department announces that water service will be cut off from 8 o'clock tomorrow night for the entire night along the following streets to allow for necessary repairs: Schley avenue, Shelly road and Sherman avenue; Columbia Pike from Bingham road to lower Alexandria road, in all sections of Aurora Hills and Virginia Highlands, Oak Crest and Mount Vernon avenue and the old Georgetown road to Columbia pike.

The executive committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation announced that the November meeting of the Federation has been postponed until November 6. The meeting will be held in the Lyon Park Community House at 8 o'clock.

Veteran of World War Buried in Winchester

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 19.—Legionnaires and national guardsmen performed military rites today for Leslie Earl Kidwell, 39, Mexican border and World War veteran, whose death resulted from a stroke of paralysis. He had been in numerous Government hospitals since returning from France. While in France he was wounded by machine gun bullets, shrapnel and bayonet thrusts, was gassed twice and shell shocked twice.

He was a son of David Kidwell. Surviving are a widow, formerly Miss Edith Wigginton; three children, his parents, six brothers and six sisters. Funeral services were conducted by the Revs. Robert B. Nelson and Norris A. Lineweaver, chaplains of R. Y. Conrad Post, American Legion.

Virginia Library Group to Convene

Petersburg Will Be Host to Convention Which Gathers Friday.

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 19.—The annual convention of the Virginia Library Association, which will convene in St. Paul's Parish House in this city Friday and Saturday next, promises to be very largely attended. Delegates will be welcomed to Petersburg by Mayor I. Val Parham on Friday morning and that afternoon the delegates will be given a tea by the Women's Club and by the Study Club Saturday afternoon. One of the prominent speakers at the convention will be Dr. George F. Bowerman, of Washington, who will speak Friday night. His subject will be, "The New Biography."

Among other well-known leaders who will speak and lead discussions are Henry M. Brimm, Union Theological Seminary, Richmond; Miss Martha Bell, Randolph Macon Women's College; Miss Florence Rinehart, Norfolk Public Library; Miss J. Maud Campbell, Lynchburg Public Library; Miss Leslie Stevens, Virginia State Library; T. H. Ayer, Richmond Public Library, president; Miss Florence Curtiss, Hampton Institute; Miss Annie Ruth Cole, Junior High School, Petersburg.

Two Dry Agents Accused In Virginia Forest Blaze

Pair Said to Have Started Disastrous Fire by Carelessness in Burning Supplies at Captured Still; Bonds Set at $200.

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Oct. 19.—Charged with being responsible for a forest fire that burned over 200 acres, H. R. Dinges and J. L. Dirting, Federal prohibition agents, are under $200 bond for appearance before next term of Augusta County Circuit Court grand jury here. Fire Warden Gray Barnhart, of Newhope, is the complainant, alleging that the two officers destroyed nine or ten wooden barrels found at a still site near Harriston, in the southeastern section of this county, May 11 last.

At a preliminary hearing before Magistrate E. A. Aldhizer, of Newhope, Saturday, the two agents waived preliminary hearing and were bonded for their grand jury appearance. Barnhart charges that Dinges and Dirting left the scene of their still raid before their fire had been completely extinguished and that flames in the forest area burned from this central area. Twenty-four hours were required by some 15 or 20 men before the fire was controlled, and cost of their services was $100.38, according to Barnhart.

Since May 21 Barnhart has been negotiating with Dinges and Dirting in effort to collect from them the sum expended in fighting the flames. Barnhart asserts that the prohibition officers have steadfastly refused to pay, claiming that they were acting as agents of the Government and that the Government should bear the expense. Fire was on privately owned land in the area, over which the State forestry department has jurisdiction, and Barnhart declares that he has been instructed by State authorities to prosecute Dinges and Dirting in court for being responsible for the fire.

Timber burned is valued at $200, but the owner thus far has made no move to collect damages. If he should, his would be a civil action, while the pending charge against the officers is one in which the Commonwealth will be the prosecutor.

SUNRISE EXERCISES DEDICATE NEW CITY CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Christ, who delivered the dedication address on the subject, "The Place of the Church in the Life of the Nation."

Presentation of the keys of the new structure was made by Eugene Volney Pugh, for the architect and contractors, the prayer of dedication was given by the Rev. William A. Shullenberger, of Indianapolis, Ind., and the pastor's word was given by the Rev. Dr. Earle Wilfrey, pastor of the new church. Others participating in the services were the Rev. Graham Frank, of Dallas, Tex., general secretary of the International Convention, who gave the scripture lesson; Stephen J. Corey, acting president of the United Christian Missionary Society; who gave the invocation; Harvey P. Miller, chairman of the board of trusteee of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church, and the Rev. John T. T. Hundley.

A capacity congregation heard Dr. Wilfrey deliver the opening sermon on the topic, "The Ultimate Vision," in the new church at the morning services. Prayers were said by Jesse M. Bader, of Indianapolis, Ind., of the United Christian Missionary Society. Services were conducted by various visiting ministers in Christian churches in and near Washington also during the morning.

Silverware Is Dedicated.

The communion services in the afternoon, held to dedicate the communion silverware, were conducted in the church by the Rev. R. H. Miller, of Kansas City, Mo. Others participating included the Rev. Walter White, of Memphis, Tenn., who said the invocation; the Rev. B. A. Abbott, of St. Louis, Mo., editor of the Christian Evangelist; the Rev. George A. Campbell, of St. Louis, Mo., and the Rev. Homer Carpenter, of Louisville, Ky., who dedicated various items, and the Rev. A. E. Cory, of Indianapolis, Ind., who made the offertory prayer.

Services at Washington Auditorium were conducted by the Rev W. F. Rothenberger, of Indianapolis, Ind. Others participating were the Rev. George A. Miller, of Omaha, Nebr.; the Rev. C. B. Tupper, of Warren, Ohio, and the Rev. R. Melvin Thompson, of Kansas City, Mo. The Communion services at Constitution Hall were conducted by the Rev. L. M. D. Wells, of Dallas, Tex., assisted by the Rev. Doyle Mullen, of Rensselaer, Ind.; the Rev. George Brewster, of Fresno, Calif., and the Rev. F. E. Smith, of Indianapolis, Ind. The three Communion services were arranged by the Rev. F. E. Davins, of Oak Park, Ill., and Mrs. Amelia Grimes served as organist at the several services in the new church yesterday.

Following these three simultaneous services, a reception to missionaries and overseas delegates was held at the Washington Hotel, and a young people's vesper service was held at the new church, conducted by John A. Burkhardt, of Kansas City, Mo.

The two simultaneous meetings of the world convention last night were conducted by Mr. Bader as chairman of the convention program committee, at the Auditorium, and by the Rev. Charles S. Medbury, of Des Moines, Iowa, at Constitution Hall. Dr. Wilfley, in his opening sermon at the church, characterized Christ as the ultimate vision.

"'We would see Jesus,' is the cry of struggling and defeated mankind and the aspiration of all seekers after truth," he declared. "It is the universal longing. Sometimes the seekers know not what they mean by the question and toil onward without seeing the spiritual helper who walks so near. They hunger with the bread of life within their grasp. Wiser ones seek until they find and when they have found Jesus they merge their wills into His and feel beneath them His everlasting arms.

Anxious and Burdened World.

"The anxious and burdened world would see Jesus. In the great field of world-wide missions the constant demand is to see Jesus. The people of the earth are not so much interested in our distinctive creeds and hard lines of division as in finding the living Christ. Sectarianism will never win the world. The shibboleths of faith are interesting only to those of microscopic minds. The nations of the Orient tell us, 'Find Jesus yourselves and then bring Him to us.' Our creedal differences at home make it all the harder to plead the simplicity of Christ in foreign lands. Many sacrifices of our noble band of missionaries will go for naught until the church at home has found Jesus.

"Christ must be exalted and in a way to make men see Him. He is Lord of all, or nothing. Our profession must be matched by deeds or our words will return to plague us. If we would see Jesus, we must go where He is."

Many of the best-known foreign delegates to the convention will address the two simultaneous meetings to be held today, beginning with programs opening at 9 o'clock this morning.

JEWISH CONGRESS DELEGATES HEAR TALK GIVEN BY SNELL

hour of need. What you have to do in Palestine is, without haste and without rest, to continue your work, and then, as in the times of Isaiah, you will be able to say, 'the bricks are fallen down, but we will build with hewn stones; the sycamores are cut down, but we will change them into cedars.' The Jewish people in the last generation have begun a new epoch in the history of their race."

Informal addresses on Zionism and the Palestine situation were made by Carl Sherman, former attorney general for New York, and Louis Lipsky, of New York, former president of the Zionist Organization of America.

A message of encouragement and greeting was forwarded to the congress by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of New York, who was scheduled to address the banquet gathering, but was unable to attend because of illness.

The convention opened at 10 a. m. with an address of welcome by Leopold V. Freudberg, chairman of the Washington committee, and a general summary of Jewish conditions given by Bernard Duetsch, president of the congress. Championing a policy of aggressiveness, Mr. Deutsch said that discrimination against Jews in business in colleges in America, as well as persecution in Roumania, Soviet Russia and other countries, called for vigorous protests. "Those who urged a policy of silence and passive submission have been shown to be wrong," he said. "We thought that the new government set up in Roumania would bring a new era of liberty for Jews, but we have been disillusioned. We can no longer afford to remain silent in the face of persecution and oppression."

Richards Is Pessimistic.

In a lengthy report on the world status of Judaism, Bernard B. Richards, executive director of the congress, expressed regret that "a positive program for American Jewry is as yet impossible of achievement."

Explaining that the activities of Jews are of a negative character, involving protection of rights and counteraction against attacks, he said that a definite, positive program "can as yet only be hinted at."

Such a program, he added, would be designed for the upbuilding of Judaism, Jewish culture and ideals, and would seek to build up an organization which would inclose and fortify Jewish principles and teachings.

"American Jewry is still in the process of evolution," he continued, "and most unfortunately there is also a process of dissolution, which added to the forces of disintegration, may spell the ultimate disappearance of the Jewish identity."

Welcomed by Crosby.

Nathan D. Perlman, chairman of the national executive committee, reported briefly on the work of his organization during the past year, and Samuel Blitz submitted a routine report on activities of the general board of elections.

The afternoon session, presided over by Louis Lipsky, was opened with an address of welcome by District Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby, after which Prof. Salo Baron, of Columbia University, reported on Jewish conditions in Roumania, as he found them on a tour of investigation made at the request of the congress. The report painted a gloomy picture of persecution, suffering and poverty.

Jewish conditions in Poland were described by Dr. Joseph Tenenbaum, and Leo M. Glassman spoke on conditions in Soviet Russia.

For Sale: 2 Tunnels; Apply City of London

London, Oct. 19.—A couple of second hand tunnels are for sale in London and if you happen to know anyone in need of a tunnel let him know about it. Forty years ago the original City and South London Railway was opened. Its first tunnel ran under the city for about three-quarters of a mile and then dived below the river. The other tunnel is not so extensive.

These tunnels have not been used since 1900, though underground railway engineers have kept them in repair. The railways are now looking for a purchaser. It was thought the municipality might make some use of these diggings, but at one point they are about 60 feet below the surface—too deep to be availed of by the authorities.

POLICE CHIEFS MEET AT ROANOKE TODAY

Newport News, Trenton and Philadelphia Men Will Address Virginians.

SESSION OF THREE DAYS

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Chief of Police A. A. McPherson, of Newport News, will deliver one of the principal addresses of the Virginia Police Executives Association, in convention here tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday. His subject will be "Interchange of Police Officials Among Counties and Cities and Towns."

A discussion of the address will be led by E. L. Lucas, sheriff of Page County. The address and discussion will deal with the merits of a system whereby the various municipalities of Virginia may call upon each other for police assistance in baffling cases. Officials of the association have been working for some time on the scheme, and they are of the opinion that the plan is nearing a practicable form.

Other addresses will be made by Frank O. Cole, of Philadelphia, on "The Radio Connection With Police Work," and by Maj. Charles H. Schoeffel, deputy superintendent, New Jersey State police, on "The Needs in the Development of State Police Work."

Subjects Pertinent, Claim.

Both of these subjects are said to be pertinent to the present progress in Virginia police work. There are some cities in the State that are considering the proposal to equip police automobiles with radio sets that can be tuned in on only the headquarters broadcasting set. Such equipment, police officials say, has been proved exceedingly effective in the quick apprehension of fast criminals.

James M. Hayes, Virginia inspector of aviation and railroads, is president of the association, and will convene the meeting Monday morning.

The program tomorrow includes the address of welcome by Mayor S. P. Seifert; the reply by W. A. Vest, chief of police at Salem, vice president of the association; the report of the secretary, Morton L. Wallerstein, Richmond; annual address of the president, and address on police communication systems by C. H. Weber, Richmond; discussion of communication by Chief H. B. King, of Lexington.

Richmond Judge to Speak.

An address on police cooperation with juvenile courts, by Judge Hoge Ricks, Richmond, and the discussion led by C. D. Weisiger, sergeant at Blacksburg; a sightseeing trip and an address by Col. W. S. Battle, vice president in charge of public relations of the Norfolk & Western Railway.

The program Tuesday includes a lecture on finger printing by Robert C. Johnson, chief of the identification bureau of Roanoke; the address by Maj. Schoeffel, of Trenton; a discussion of the topic led by C. B. Borland, director of public safety, Norfolk; an address on dealing with the intoxicated driver by Richard F. Wagner, director of public safety, Lynchburg, and the discussion led by C. H. Shepherd, chief of police at Hopewell; an address on spotting traffic accidents, by Randolph S. Hough, chief clerk of the police department of Roanoke; a discussion of the subject led by J. V. Ryan, captain of police, Richmond. The address by A. A. McPherson, chief of Newport News police, and the discussion led by Sheriff Lucas, of Luray; an address on securing publicity for police activities by Ralph L. Dombrower, Richmond; the address by Frank O. Cole, of Philadelphia, and the discussion led by J. E. Rowles, Federal prohibition agent, Roanoke, and H. B. King, chief of police, Lexington.

Bandits Afraid Of Armored Cars

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The "armored car holdup" is as mythical as the legend of honor among thieves. Cold research by competent agencies has revealed that rarely do robbers attack trucks which really are sheathed in steel plate and protected by armed guards.

Figures show that in the past six years there have been no hold-ups of armored cars operated by independent companies and that only four armored trucks belonging to national operators were held up. These figures, supplied by the Merchants Trucking Corporation of Indianapolis, are cited to counteract the popular belief that robbers make a practice of successfully holding up armored trucks.

Often in the excitement that a particularly brazen piece of banditry entails, it is reported that the car held up was armored. Investigation shows it probably was protected by armed guards and in general appearance resembled an armored truck.

Town Sues 3 Years For 11-Cent Credit

Refund in Federal Tax Leads to Complications in France.

Castelnaudry, France, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—For 11 cents this town has carried on three and a half years of litigation. It has won the case in the highest court, the Council of State, but it probably will carry on its books forever a credit of 11 cents that never will be collected.

In 1926 the town was condemned in court to refund to the federal tax collector 48 francs, about $1.90, plus the cost of a sheet of stamped paper, costing 11 cents. The town paid the $1.90, but the 11 cents was to be paid only upon presentation of a certificate on stamped paper that would have cost the federal collector $1.40. The collector declined to spend $1.40 to get 11 cents.

The prefect, however, entered on the town's budget the 11 cents due it. The mayor objected and took the case to court. The town won, but won't get its 11 cents, yet the 11 cents legally is due it and must be carried among the accounts receivable.

Many Under Soviet Get Name Changed

Procedure Simple as Divorce; Application Must Be Filed.

Special to The Washington Post.

Moscow, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The changing of names, like wives or husbands, is a popular pastime in modern Russia.

All that is necessary under the Soviet regime to change a family name is to file an application at the state registry office—the same as for a divorce—and publish the fact in one of the official newspapers. Just now the papers carry many notices of this sort.

The advertisements show, for example, that Citizen Bestolkov wishes to change his name to Olshanski. The reason, apparently, is that "bestolkov" means "stupid."

Another name, picked at random, is that of "Mr. Ratoziev," who has decided to change his name to "Mr. Zorin." It happens that "Ratoziev," somewhat freely translated, means "rubberneck," while "Zorin" means "eagle-eyed."

While most of the name changers are men, one advertisement discloses that Miss Lina Kozlov wishes to change her name to Dobrin. "Kozlov" is taken from the Russian word "kozel," which literally means "goat," whereas "Dobrin" is taken from a word meaning "kindness."

VIRGINIA PHYSICIANS GATHER TOMORROW

Dr. Thayer, of Baltimore, to Be One of Speakers at Norfolk Meeting.

AUXILIARY TO CONVENE

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Dr. William S. Thayer, of Baltimore, will be among the principal speakers before the sixty-first annual session of the Medical Society of Virginia here Tuesday morning. His subject will be "Endocarditis. The" address will be delivered during the evening meeting of the first day.

Meeting simultaneously will be the Woman's Auxiliary to the Medical Society of Virginia. Among the invited guests to the auxiliary meeting is Mrs. J. Newton Hunsberger, of Norristown, Pa., president of the Womans' Auxiliary to the American Medical Association.

Dr. Charles R. Grandy, of Norfolk, is president of the society, and Mrs. F. W. Upshur, of Richmond, is president of the auxiliary.

Among the other speakers of the session will be Dr. David R. Lyman, of New Haven, Conn., who will speak on the subject, "Factors in Tuberculosis Which Are Often Overlooked."

Besides the addresses by well-known physicians both in Virginia and other States features of the meeting will include reports of standing committees, reports of special committees, luncheons and banquets, entertainments, including golf, scientific exhibits, clinics, scientific programs, voluntary papers, and a "get-to-gether" meeting for the Alumni Association of the Medical College of Virginia.

The auxiliary program includes a meeting of the executive board, an oyster roast, to be followed by a short drive; a buffet supper with music and dancing; the annual meeting at the Woman's Club Convocation; the address of welcome and response; minutes of the last annual meeting, the report of the board meetings, the report of the president, the report of the treasurer, secretary and the A. M. A. delegate; the report of standing committee on health, education, organization, legislature, State editor, hygiela, reports of county presidents, report of the committee on resolutions, address by Dr. Grandy and Dr. J. Allison Hodges, president-elect; a luncheon and address by Mrs. Hamberger, to be followed by a drive to the Hampton Roads Naval Operating Base to witness drill.

Disabled Soldiers' Officials to Meet

20 Capital Representatives Will Attend Gathering in Charleston.

Twenty representatives of the chapters of the Disabled American Veterans in this city will go to Charleston this week for a conference with officials of the chapters of Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia constituting the fourth district of the organization of the disabled.

This will be the fifth such conference in various parts of the country during which problems of legislation, rehabilitation and hospitalization affecting world war men in each of the sections are considered.

Addresses will be made by National Commander H. H. Weimer, D. S. C., of Chicago, and other national officers; Representative John E. Rankin of the Veterans Committee and other members of Congress, and the D. A. V. liaison officers from Washington and the three States in the district.

The delegates will meet at Charleston Friday and the conference will extend through next Sunday.

Three in Petersburg Robbed at Pistol Point

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 19.—Last midnight while walking along Wythe street, M. Green, W. I. Trayer and Miss Phillys Trayer were held up by two masked men in front of their home and robbed of $25.

After firing twice at their victims, the holdup men made their escape in an automobile. The holdup was promptly reported to the police to whom a full description of the men was given.

One Fare for Food
How distribution costs have been cut

A&P brings food to your table on a straight line from the sources. That is why A&P food costs so little. Its price is not taxed by the expense of roundabout journeys. There are no roadside bills to pay.

The shortest road, unobstructed by half-way houses, is the A&P route to its stores. That is why A&P can pay growers and other producers well, yet charge its customers very low prices.

American statesmen say our big country's hardest problem is how to cut "the high cost of distribution." What they mean is that too much money is spent on the usually long road between the field and the consumer.

A&P has solved this problem for people who buy in its stores by providing direct rapid transit for food at one small fare.

CURRENT EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

DROUGHT INCREASES HEATING PROBLEM

Fairfax Residents Find It Hard to Get Enough Water for Furnaces.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The cold weather during the past few days is adding another burden to the drought-stricken residents of the Town of Falls Church, as most of the homes are heated by hot water or steam plants. With practically all of the wells in the town dry, residents here are finding it difficult to get enough water into the heating systems to allow fires to be built.

The joint committee of the town council and citizens, appointed by Mayor L. P. Daniels, to discuss the water situation in the town with the view of arranging for an immediate extension of the water mains from Arlington County into the Fairfax County portion of the town, decided, after a lengthy discussion of the legal side of the question, to obtain a written opinion from Attorney John B. Barbour as to whether or not it would be necessary to wait for legislative action before the mains could be extended.

This committee, which is composed of Charles Gage, chairman; Frank Birch and J. V. Turner, of the town council, and Carroll V. Shreve, Merton E. Church, Harry Keyser, Edwin Rosengarden and Harry K. Bowen, of the citizens' council, plan to proceed with an investigation of the engineering problem involved in laying the water pipes, pending the receipt of a report from Attorney Barbour.

During the past month 901 cows were tested in the Fairfax Dairy Herd Improvement Association No. 2. Of this number 181 cows were dry, 67 produced 40 or more pounds of butterfat, 14 cows produced 50 or more pounds of butterfat and 22 were sold to the butcher. The total production of the association was 50,359 pounds of milk and 25,949.9 pounds of butterfat, making an average per cow of 588.9 pounds of milk and 28.81 pounds of butterfat.

The highest herd average was made by a herd of 33 grade cows owned by Jenkins & Wilson. This herd average 803.1 pounds of milk and 33.08 pounds of butterfat. The second highest average was made by a herd of purebred Guernseys owned by B. F. Salsbury. The herd averaged 649.4 pounds of milk and 30.03 pounds of butterfat. Another feature about this herd is that during the past year it has maintained an average per cow of at least 30 pounds of butterfat each month.

The highest individual cow record last month was made by a cow owned by Jenkins & Wilson. This cow produced 1,543 pounds of milk and 75.6 pounds of butterfat; the second highest record was made by a cow owned by Wheeler & Crippen. She produced 1,485 pounds of milk and 66.8 pounds of butterfat.

The Young Peoples Council of Religious Education, a branch of the Fairfax County council, will hold its meeting tomorrow evening in the parish hall at McLean. Miss Ethel Morrison, the newly appointed teacher of religious education in the schools of Fairfax and Arlington counties, will be the guest speaker.

The Laurel Rebekah Lodge will hold its meeting this evening in the Odd Fellows Hall on Broad street in Falls Church.

The Evening Study Club at Falls Church will hold its meeting today at the home of Mrs. Mary Munson at Veitch Summit.

The Northwest Citizens Association, of Falls Church, will meet this evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gage.

The Farmers and Mechanics Council, Order of Fraternal Americans, will meet tomorrow night at Andrew Chapel.

The Women's Auxiliary of the St. Timothy's Episcopal Church at Herndon will hold its meeting tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Asa Bradshaw. There will be a discussion of the united thank offering.

The Women's Guild of St. Mary's Episcopal Church at McLean will meet today in the parish hall. A luncheon will be served by Mrs. R. S. Billups, Mrs. J. G. Sadler and Mrs. A. G. Rice.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Lewisville Presbyterian Church has reelected Mrs. J. Hunter Mack president. Mrs. J. H. Beattie was elected vice president; Mrs. William Thayer, secretary, and Mrs. George Hileman, treasurer. Mrs. J. Clement Storm has been elected president of the Ladies Aid Society of the church; Mrs. John Magarity, vice president; Mrs. Katharine Cunningham, secretary, and Miss Myrtle Kidwell, treasurer.

EDWARD VIRGINIUS VALENTINE, NOTED VIRGINIA SCULPTOR, DIES

he sought instruction from August Kiss.

While in Berlin Valentine received from America, then aflame with Civil War, four photographs of Gen. Robert E. Lee, and from them he modeled a statuette which was sold in Liverpool for the benefit of the Southern cause. He returned to Richmond in 1865, opened his studio and began the work which has since made him famous.

Made Studies of Negro Life.

Some of Valentine's most characteristic works were studies of Negro life made just after the close of the war and sold in Northern cities. One of the first was "The Nation's Ward," the figure of a small Negro boy with a "Yankee" cap on his head, a broad smile wreathing his features.

Valentine's statue of Thomas Jefferson at Richmond has been widely noted, and two figures were cast from his model of Jefferson Davis, one of them now standing at Richmond and the other at New Orleans. In Audubon Park, at New Orleans, is Valentine's statue of James J. Audubon, cast in September, 1908.

Among other noted figures he modeled are Gen. Thomas J. "Stonewall" Jackson, Gen. J. E. B. Stuart, Gen. Albert Sydney Johnston and Edwin Booth.

Valentine was twice married. On November 12, 1872, he married Alice Churchill Robinson, who died August 23, 1883. His second wife was Katherine Cole Mayo, who died February 5, 1927. There were no children.

Kept to His Ideals.

Valentine so quickly and so unostentatiously kept his covenant not to compromise with the temptations of the age, not to sacrifice his ideals to uncultured demands, to preserve at all costs the worthiest traditions of the best art, to cherish and protect them against the encroachments of inferiority born of quick sales, that he was not so well known in the world at large, perhaps, as he should have been.

But while his devotion to idealism kept him outside the pale of popular note, it gave his work the stamp of authority and made it a spiritual and intellectual quality that separated it from much modern art, and brought him the reward most sought by the worker, creator and dreamer—"the recognition of his ideals and the homage that their execution inspires."

Such a tribute was written by Kate Langley Bosher in September of 1906.

BRAKEMAN FATALLY HURT IN ALEXANDRIA

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

William Edward Lovett, 48 years old, a brakeman in the Southern Railway's local yards, fell from a box car while switching cars shortly after midnight Saturday, and was fatally injured. He was taken to the Alexandria Hospital, where he died three hours later.

According to Southern Railway officials, it appears there were no eyewitnesses to the accident. Lovett was discovered lying beside the track by members of his switching crew, and he died without making a statement. He is survived by his widow and six children, who live at 312 Elizabeth street.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the mortuary chapel of B. Wheatley by the Rev. Ryland T. Dodge, pastor of the Temple Baptist Church. Burial will be in Bethel Cemetery.

The Bible Chautauqua opened yesterday at the Elks' auditorium with a lecture by Francis D. Nichol, his subject being "The Stones Cry Out," based on the recent archaeological, excavations in the ancient Bible cities of Babylon and Ur of the Chaldees, this being the first of a series of lectures by Mr. Nichol.

The Bible Chautauqua will be continued every Sunday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The subjects and features for the rest of the week are: Tuesday, "The Dream of an Ancient King," special feature "Chalk Talk," by T. K. Martin; Thursday evening, "The Marvels of Our Modern Age," special feature, health talk on "High Blood Pressure, its Cause and Cure," by A. W. Truman, M. D. medical superintendent of the Washington Sanitarium and Hospital; Saturday evening, "Is Another World War Brewing?" special feature, instrumental and vocal selections.

All lectures and programs are free, and the general public is invited.

The office of City Collector Purvis Taylor will be open this evening from 7:30 to 9 o'clock to receive payment of city gas bills for the period ended September 30, when the gas plant was taken over by the Alexandria Gas Co. This is the last date on which discount on bills will be allowed, and the last collection which will be made by the City of Alexandria. The city collector will keep his office open for the accommodation of those who are unable to reach his office during the regular office hours.

Huge Crowd Attends Rites for Dr. Shaver

Special to The Washington Post.

Woodstock, Va., Oct. 19.—One of the largest crowds ever to assemble for a funeral in Shenandoah County was in attendance today at the last rites held for Dr. D. L. Shaver, prominent physician, at Maurertown. Dr. Shaver died of heart disease at hish Maurertown home Frdiay morning. The Maurertown Brethren Church, the place of the funeral, was crowded to capacity with triple the number on the outside.

The services were in charge of Dr. Shaver's pastor, the Rev. E. L. Miller, assisted by the Rev. George A. Copp, of Strasburg. Interment was in the family lot at the Maurertown Cemetery.

Bees Invade City Hall.

Geneva, Ohio, Oct. 19.—A swarm of bees is busy making honey for the city. The industrious insects were attracted by the huge name plate bearing the date of the city building's construction and settled there. They have filled the hollow wall behind the plate with honey, and Geneva officials are considering ways and means of harvesting the crop.

CREDIT FIRMS AIDING IN DROUGHT RELIEF

SEED DISTRIBUTION OVER

(Associated Press.)

Local efforts to afford financial relief to farmers in some of the drought-stricken States were said yesterday by Dr. C. W. Warburton, secretary o the national drought relief committee, to have been augmented through the formation of agricultural credit corporations.

The corporations were recommended by drought State representatives at a White House conference called to plan emergency relief.

Dr. Warburton said the Maryland Drought Relief Corporation was organized recently with authority to issue and sell 50,000 shares of stock at $10 a share.

"Its purpose,55 he said, "is to lend money to farmers in the State who are not in a position to give security for loans, but whose local standing and reputation are such as to entitle them to special assistance in the purchase of feed, seeds and fertilizers. The loans of the corporation will be made through the local banks after approval by the county drought committee."

The Southwest Arkansas Credit Corporation was organized with a capital of $500,000 after a meeting of bankers from fourteen counties in the area.

Dr. Warburton urged that distressed families, unable to obtain credit locally or through Government agencies, be financed by the community. He pointed out also that the National Red Cross is supplementing local resources.

The fall seed distribution by the Red Cross has been completed in the drought area. Virtually 50,000 families in Arkansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma and Texas each received garden and pasture seed. There was enough pasture seed for 5 or 6 acres and enough vegetable seed to care for one family.

Fugitive Youths Sought Here.

Five colored youths who escaped from the Cheltenham State Reformatory, Md., are being sought by local police. They are Thomas Barnes, 18; Samuel Simms, 19; Melvin Thomas, 19; Albert Gibson, 13, and Benjamin Diggs, 17 years old.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

MEETING THE EMERGENCY.

President Hoover acts decisively and courageously in the face of the prospective unemployment emergency. The chill winds of autumn presage the arrival of winter and the cessation of outdoor work of all kinds. Many thousands were unable to find employment even during the summer. Whether the unemployed number 2,500,000, the Census Bureau estimate, or 6,000,000, as charged by certain Democrats, is immaterial. Americans are out of work. "As a nation," says President Hoover, "we must prevent hunger and cold to those of our people who are in honest difficulties." It is not necessary to exhort the American people to rise to the emergency. The heart of America responds generously to distress. It is necessary only to provide an organization through which unemployment relief can be dispensed, and that is what President Hoover proposes to do.

"There are three directions of organization," says the President, "in which the Federal Government activities can cooperate. First, cooperation with the governors and employment organizations of the States and local communities; second, development of methods with the national industries; and, third, indirect Federal employment in public works." To formulate plans for the application of this program and to coordinate its various aspects, the President has appointed a committee consisting of six Cabinet officers and the governor of the Federal Reserve Board. This committee will have the widest latitude in its functioning. It promises to be the rallying point around which will center a Nation-wide organization having as its primary purpose the prevention of suffering and the alleviation of distress.

If charity were necessary in this emergency, it would be forthcoming. But the situation has not reached that degree of seriousness. The unemployed demand jobs, not doles. They need food, clothing and shelter, but they ask only that they be permitted to earn these needs.

America has stocks of food more than ample to feed her millions. No one need lack for shelter, fuel or clothing. Throughout the land there is work that ought to be done. It remains only to put the employed to these tasks, to the end that they may earn funds with which to supply their needs.

While the Government and the States can do something toward this end, the burden must fall on industry. The great task of the unemployment committee is to awaken industry to its duty; to prove to it that the work it intended to defer but that it can have done during the winter should be done, and to make industry realize that money put in circulation now will do double duty. This is the committee's supreme responsibility.

America will come through the winter with flying colors. The spirit of defeatism is foreign to the national make-up. From the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Lakes to the Gulf, the Nation will face the emergency and conquer it.

POWER FROM THE SEA.

Prof. Georges Claude, inventor of a process for developing power from sea water, is on his way to the United States. This week he will describe the power plant he recently completed at Matanzas, Cuba, to an engineering society in New York, and two days later he will sail for Paris. In France he will be received as a conqueror, for France does not question the practicability of his project. In New York, however, he faces the task of convincing skeptics of the practicability of his scheme. No one questions the fact that he has produced power at Matanzas, but American scientists seemingly believe that the scheme is too expensive to be commercially practicable.

The Claude sea power plant depends upon the principle of physics that water boils at low temperatures in a vacuum. Prof. Claude draws up cold water from the bottom of the sea through a pipe line more than a mile long, which he utilizes to maintain the vacuum in the boiling chambers of the plant. In the boiling chambers he injects the warmer water that is collected from the surface. The vacuum causes this water to boil, and the steam thus generated turns a turbine which spins a dynamo. Recently Prof. Claude succeeded in lighting 40 500-watt bulbs with power produced in his Matanzas plant.

The question as to the cost of producing this power is, of course, of paramount importance. The pipe through which cold water is drawn up from the bottom of the sea cost in the neighborhood of $2,000,000. Authoritative information is lacking as to the amount of energy required to energize the pumps that bring us the cold water. Prof. Claude's showing at the New York meeting, if convincing, will have great industrial significance as opening the way to immense development of power.

MODERATE PROGRAM IN GERMANY.

Germany's course of action in the near future has been definitely mapped out. The administration will be dominated by the moderate parties under the leadership of Chancellor Bruening. He is assured of a majority in the Reichstag, at least for the present, and indications are that that majority will be large enough to secure enactment of the chancellor's program without delay. If the Reichstag becomes unmanageable it will be dismissed. Drastic steps will be taken to oust any radicals who attempt to obstruct legislation by rowdyism. Apparently the Fascists and Communists will have to content themselves with occasional gibes at the government and let off their surplus energy by breaking shop windows.

Chancellor Bruening's address to the Reichstag is being widely discussed as an opening wedge against the Young plan and as the beginning of a movement to arm Germany. Such conclusions are not entirely justified by his words and the circumstances under which they were delivered. In the first place, the chancellor hopes to stabilize German industry and finance so that the country will be able to meet its international obligations. He called upon the Reichstag to set Germany's house in order. This program contemplates cuts in official salaries and retrenchment in every department. Efforts are being made to bring down the prices of various commodities to relieve the working class. Germany has been seriously affected by the economic depression because the country lacked economic reserves. Strict economy and the cooperation of all factions are necessary to put the country on its feet again.

If these measures fail to bring about stability, says Chancellor Bruening, Germany will be forced to "take recourse to those defensive measures put at her disposal by the treaty." Under the Young plan Germany may apply to the International Bank for permission to declare a two-year moratorium on conditional payments whenever the economic and fiscal structure of the country is threatened. The government takes the attitude that Germany is not alone responsible for fulfillment of her obligations, and that if world economic conditions make it impossible for her to pay, adjustments will have to be made. The decline of commodity prices has upset the ratio between gold and goods that prevailed when the reparations agreement was signed, and should this condition continue, it would be only fair to adjust the obligation accordingly.

The chancellor's declaration that the army would be rehabilitated as a defensive weapon within the limits imposed by the Versailles Treaty and the budget was obviously a bid for support by the elements which, in the last election, went to the Fascists. He recalls the promise of the allied nations to follow the compulsory disarming of Germany with voluntary disarming of themselves. This promise has not been kept. It is not surprising that the youth of Germany are dissatisfied, and that they have expressed their disapproval by joining the Fascist movement. The government is taking note of the sentiment expressed in the recent election and is attempting to work out a peaceful program which will ameliorate conditions without inviting a rupture in international relations.

CHINA SEES PEACE AHEAD.

Hope is running high again in China. The civil war in which the Nationalist government has been involved all summer has subsided and most of the rebel troops are being incorporated into the Nationalist armies. Theoretically the authority of the government at Nanking has been restored throughout China and the vast country is ready to begin a program of reconstruction.

An ambitious program has been outlined by President Chiang Kai-shek. He addresses the destitute Chinese millions in a confidential tone. He speaks of "consolidating the foundations of peace," of "unification," of "building a new state in China," and of "reforming the administration." The sudden cessation of hostilities has cast a new spell over wartorn China, and President Chiang is indulging in optimistic talk while he may.

The first objective under the peace program is to rid the country of Communist bandits. While the government was crippled by warfare in several sections red hordes were allowed to devastate the countryside and pillage defenseless cities. President Chiang intends to wipe out the bandit gangs as soon as his troops return from the war fronts and to establish defensive organizations in each province to complete the extermination of the reds and guard against future raids.

His second problem is reorganization of China's financial system. The government has fought a costly war, its treasury is empty and the people are impoverished. Finance Minister Soong threatened to resign because of the precarious condition of the financial structure, but he may be persuaded to remain if a budget is adopted and the government puts itself on a sound financial basis.

The third objective sounds strange to Western political ears. President Chiang frankly admits that he intends to rid his administration of corruption and inefficiency. If he can succeed in this, one of the causes of the last civil war will be removed. He also outlines a program for the absorption of foreign capital in the development of China's industries on a basis that will yield profit to China as well as to the investors. Finally, he plans to foster local self-government "so that the period of political tutelage may be completed at an early date and true democracy brought into existence." This is a most important step, because it would tend to undermine the power of the war lords.

China begins the winter with no forebodings on the horizon, unless it be the presence of Manchurian troops in Peking. A period of tranquillity seems to be in store for the country, but no one would hazard a guess as to how long it will last. War clouds in China often rise out of a clear sky in good weather. The only foundation for hope of better conditions seems to lie in the fact that each time the Nationalist government emerges from a crisis its position is somewhat stronger than it was before.

After election President Hoover will have a splendid assortment of lame ducks available for important jobs.

The Government may build a jail for liquor law violators on the site of Fort McHenry, where "The Star-Spangled Banner" was written. It might be more appropriate to call it a jug.

Uncle Simmy Fess says the Democrats are depressing the stock market. What's happened to weaken the brave Republicans who were able to hold it up through so many years?

RUSSIAN DUMPING

From the London Times.

The persistent dumping of Russian grain and timber and other products is already forcing other governments to take steps to protect their markets. In France, where the movement has been comparatively trifling, it has been decided as a precautionary measure to introduce a licensing system for imports from Russia. It is not proposed to prohibit these imports, but to place them under the control of the French government; and—as M. Flandin, the minister of commerce, has explained—there can be no objection in any quarter to this plan since the Soviet government itself by its monopoly of foreign trade controls all the imports and exports of Russia.

So far as Russia is concerned, the intensified export is clearly due, first and foremost, to the desperate need of the Soviet government for credits to finance the five-year plan. In spite of all the earlier glowing reports, and indeed of considerable partial successes, the plan has begun to show signs of breaking down. There have been "breaches" on several "fronts" and extraordinary efforts are being made to repair them. These efforts cost money, and everything that can be sold abroad is being exported to provide funds for the Soviet exchequer. As the government controls all trade it can—for the time being—disregard the economics of the transaction. Moreover it controls all labor conditions, and it is using that control remorselessly for the benefit of the plan, both directly in industry and construction, and indirectly in the production of goods for the foreign market.

Many thousands of kulaks and others have been deported from their homes, either by sentence of the Soviet courts or by the arbitrary fiat of the Ogpu, and sent to hew timber to be dumped abroad. And in addition to these convict gangs the government has reintroduced, especially in the timber areas, the system of conscript labor which was dropped when the new economic policy was introduced in 1921 on the breakdown of the first phase of rigid socialization. Against imports produced under labor conditions of this kind producers in other countries are naturally unable to compete.

But, if the necessity of finding funds for the five-year plan is the main motive behind the Russian dumping, the Soviet government is certainly not uninfluenced by the hope that it may produce economic results favorable to its propaganda in foreign countries. M. Madgearu, the Russian minister of commerce, brought the whole subject before the assembly of the League of Nations a few days ago. He had no doubt that the Russian dumping is intended to assist the campaign of propaganda, particularly in the countries bordering on Russia. The rulers of the Soviet republics, whose control of both import and export trade is absolute, are in fact exploiting the opportunity of stimulating agrarian unrest. Choosing a moment when a local market is most vulnerable, they throw upon it a large amount of cheap grain produced by forced labor. The effect in Roumania, M. Madgearu told the assembly, was that the market price of grain had fallen by 50 per cent; the peasants in consequence were on the verge of starvation amid a glut of corn; and, while they were thus demoralized by the effect on the market of the dumped Russian grain, the Soviet agents were busy spreading Communistic propaganda among them.

Other countries are being attacked in the same way and similar methods are being employed to some extent to disorganize the markets for industrial as well as for primary products. Mr. Victor Cazalet told a similar tale in a letter published in these columns last Friday, and drew a similar conclusion. In places where a thriving timber trade existed last year there is now complete stagnation caused by the dumping on the European markets of Russian timber produced by "slave and convict" labor. It is clear, as Mr. Cazalet pointed out, that not only the producer, but the consumer as well, is injured by the forcing down of prices in this artificial and uneconomic way. When the Russian supplies come to an end there is bound to be a sharp rise in prices with the inevitable disturbing effects. He agrees with M. Madgearu in thinking that these intensive markets and increasing unemployment, are part of the campaign directed from Moscow against the economic and political stability of the rest of the world.

ANOTHER SURVEY FAILS.

The student questionnaire fad has passed the limit, in a case reported from New Jersey, where complaint is made that a sixth grade teacher asked her pupils to report on parental controversies, says the Minneapolis Journal:

Essays were required on the subject of family battles. Did Papa and Mamma fight? And how? Also, what did they fight about?

The teacher's purpose doubtless seemed laudable enough to her. One of these cross-section things, showing whether the most fighting was caused by back seat driving, or by golf bugs getting home late from the nineteenth hole, should be a valuable contribution to sociology, or some other ology.

However, it was not the teacher's purpose, but her method, that caused the trouble in New Jersey. For some reason or other, parents did not want their family rows reported and analyzed and charted and graphed by Junior in his school essay. And doubtless the teacher considers the parents of her pupils the most unreasonable persons with whom she has ever had dealings.

JUST FOLKS

THE HIDDEN SPLENDORS.

There were softer hands and whiter,
There were eyes with twinkle brighter,
There were smarter men to look at,
But no truer friend could be.
He was one no care could neaten;
Like an old house weather beaten
He seemed just a standing ruin
Rather pitiful to see.

Viewed at first glance, proudly, smugly,
One would think of him as ugly,
And if seeking a companion
Would prefer some fashion plate,
But he'd miss the inner splendor
Of his nature, fine and tender,
And he'd never guess the presence
Of the soul which made him great.

As an old house hides the story
Of its patient tenant's glory,
So his gaunt and awkward body
Hid his big and generous heart,
But the ones whose hands attended
Found them tender, found them splendid,
And he semed to have a sweetness
God denied to people smart.

He was comforting to be with.
He had faith you could agree with,
And that heart of his with pity
For man's sufferings overran.
Though his body, fashioned plainly,
Was both awkward and ungainly,
By the soul which dwelt within it
He was every inch a man.

The Man Who Is Losing Chickens Is the One Who Must Set the Traps.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

AMERICA will not solve the liquor problem until the people learn to consider facts instead of ideals and hopes.

The outstanding fact is prohibition. That is a part of the Constitution, and since it can not be removed without the vote of 36 States it may be accepted as an established fact almost beyond the possibility of change.

Next in importance is the fact, equally obvious to everybody, that the unpopularity of prohibition in large cities has enabled criminal bootleggers to become rich and powerful and thus has equipped them to foster and protect all manner of crime, to corrupt officials and to control courts.

Third, but equally important, is the self-evident fact that rural districts, where the scattered population offers less profit for bootleggers and majority sentiment is against the liquor traffic, are not afflicted with liquor-supported crime as large cities are and, therefore, regard prohibition as a blessing to be defended and preserved.

It is another variation of the age-old conflict between country and town.

The cities may say, "It is no more fair for the country to make laws for the city than it would be for Arizona to make laws for Iowa," or they may declare, with equal logic, "You country people are forcing us to endure a condition that you would not tolerate yourselves, and if prohibition affected you as it does us you would end it within a year."

But prohibition doesn't affect the country as it does the city; and the country people, thinking first of themselves, as all men do, are content with things as they are.

And since our system of government by representation enables the unplagued or less plagued rural districts to make laws for the whole people crime-ridden cities have no hope of relief by national law.

That is the condition. Stripped of theory and ideals and hopes and prejudices these are the simple facts.

And they mean that cities dominated by booze-financed criminals must work out their own salvation.

They will get no relief from the country.

As cities remain calm while corn borers and fruit flies and boll weevils destroy the farmers' crops, so the country will look on without excitement while the cities battle racketeers and rum kings.

Sheep-killing dogs don't worry those who have no sheep.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

Registration Tells Nothing.

Baltimore Sun.

A registration of 287,607 voters in the city for the November elections gives political forecasters something to think about. So large an enrollment in any but a presidential year is without precedent. The figures are not official but they are not likely to be materially changed. The total number of names now on the poll books is approximately but 22,500 less than the 1928 total in the Hoover-Smith campaign, and in that year were included the enrollment for the year 1926 and the supplemental registration of 1927 for the mayoralty election. The present result leaves no doubt that the people of Baltimore are thoroughly aroused over the issues and candidates. Their verdict next month is another question.

As usual, the Democratic party has overwhelming advantage in the affiliation—174,092 to 97,061 Republicans—a Democratic majority of 77,031. But in Baltimore the affiliated vote often proves to be a most unreliable indication of how the two major parties will fare at the polls.

Ivy Lee's Soft Soldier.

Chicago Tribune.

One of the lines of effort to bring about a change in our policy respecting diplomatic relations with the Soviet government is to pretend that Moscow has given up international mischief making. Mr. Ivy Lee invites us to believe not only that the chief preoccupation of Russian leaders is with their own affairs, which is doubtless true, but that "such communistic propaganda as is conducted in foreign countries is stimulated by the less responsible men in Moscow." Mr. Lee quotes Rykov as asking him: "Knowing our difficulties and problems here, how can you, if you have any respect for our intelligence, think that responsible men in our government would be devoting money and efforts—so much needed at home—to futile attempts to stir up revolution abroad?"

We are not thinking of Mr. Lee as a round-eyed innocent swallowing this remark, but he apparently knows that the gullibility and sentimentalism of our so-called intellectuals is proof against the international facts which throw a sadonic light upon Rykov's remark.

There could be no more palpable fraud than the argument that only "the less responsible men" in the Communist party are seriously interested in communist agitation and organization in Germany, in China, in India, and wherever social and political conditions are distracted or explosive. Mr. Lee is either crassly ignorant or, as we believe, insincere when he tries to pish-tush the malevolent and persistent effort of the Communist leaders, not "the less responsible men," to make trouble wherever there is trouble to be made.

Tuttle's Campaign Drags.

New York Times.

On the issue which Mr. Tuttle asserts to be the chief one of the campaign he has hammered incessantly. This is Tammany corruption in New York City. Impartial reports indicate that this single theme has worn rather thin up the State, as Mr. Tuttle has progressed from one city to another. In Buffalo he was frankly told by the leader of the local Republican organiaztion that this particular theme had become rather stale, with Mr. Tuttle's speeches on it printed and heard day after day, and that people wanted to hear about something else. One difficulty has been that Mr. Tuttle did not meet expectations in presenting new sensations. The old one, with his challenges to the governor, he dwelt upon to the point of monotony, but produced no novelties. He did not, as it was predicted that he would, draw out a damaging affidavit, never before made public, or a secret confession extracted from a terrified witness, in order to give point to his charge that the dark ways and vain tricks of Tammany are practically unlimited. This lack Mr. Tuttle may yet be able to make up, but thus far it has been apparent and has made his two weeks' campaigning seem to drag.

Nuts in Congress.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

According to Crusader Logic, Says R. E. Mitchell, Traffic Violations Should Be Licensed Instead of Prohibited.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Charmingly naive" is the blast of the patriotic "Crusaders" against prohibition as given publicly by The Post last Sunday.

Surely Mr. Lusk's statistical bureau has proved one thing, and one only, namely, you can prove anything by (so-called) statistics, provided you blind yourself to everything but the assertion you want to "prove."

Mr. Lusk "proves to his own satisfaction, that because there were 934 raids made on "speakeasies," that the "noble experiment" of prohibition is unenforceable, and should be repealed. He appends a map showing where the raids took place, said map being severely pockmarked, especially in certain sections of the city.

To make his logic conclusive, that if a law is frequently violated it should be repealed, Mr. Lusk should now prepare for publication a traffic map of Washington for the same period. This map should show the number and location of every violation of the traffic laws. Since the number of these is vastly greater than the number of "raids" for liquor, Mr. Lusk will no doubt find his black dots run so close together that he will have to show large sections of Washington in solid black. This will "prove" by the same sort of logic so dear to the wets, that all traffic regulations should be repealed as unenforceable. The United States Government should, therefore, issue licenses for people who wish to park all day or all week. A larger fee should be charged for those who wish to do reckless driving, and a real nice fat fee for those who wish to "bump off" some road hog who has annoyed them. The local government is losing literally millions of dollars per year by failure to put the traffic regulations on a license basis instead of prohibiting things which some people persist in doing regardless of laws.

The comparison made between 934 "raids," where in most cases a few pints or quarts of liquor were seized, to the times when 400 to 500 saloons were dispensing whisky and beer daily by the barrel and carload is almost too childish to argue about.

The people of America, at least the older heads, have not forgotton when the whisky interests and the beer interests dictated the nomination and election of hundreds of members of Congress, a majority of the Senate, and most of the State Legislatures. They will look with scorn on the attempt of the wets, financed by two or three millionaires, to tie a white apron on Uncle Sam and put him in charge of a "respectable" barroom, with the Treasury Department acting as cashier, all in order that the thirsty wets may get "good" booze.

ROSSEL EDW. MITCHELL.

Distinguished Pacifist Asserts That George Washington, if Living Today, Would Be a Champion of League of Nations and Its Court.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Repeated recrudescence of war rumors and professional propaganda for perpetual war preparedness constantly call for careful and calm consideration of world conditions.

Less than two years ago we signed a pact to "outlaw war." A year ago President Hoover put his signature to a document by which the United States becomes a member of the International Court of Justice; this, however, is still unratified by our senators, some of whom at this stage of world history proudly avow themselves "isolationists" and shiver and shake in fear of that venerable bugaboo, "entangling alliances."

Since Washington coupled those words considerable water has passed over the political mill! A thousand things have revolutionized the world! Steamships, railroads, telegraphs, radios, telephones, airplanes, poison gases, high explosives, commerce and capitalism are daily reminding us that, physically, at least, we are living in a new world. "New occasions teach new duties! Time makes ancient good uncouth!" And Washington, alive today, would be the first to realize that in this twentieth century, in this new world, isolation is no longer desirable, or even possible. He would know that, as personal duels over private quarrels have been abandoned by recourse to justice rather than force, so it is tenfold more imperative today for international difficulties to be similarly settled. He would surely accept U. S. Grant's dictum that "nothing has ever been settled by war that could not have been settled without it." Thereupon he would gladly welcome those institutions, the International Court of Justice and the League of Nations, both the result of American initiative. He would know that taking our proper part in these institutions would be disentangling rather than "entangling alliances."

Militant Female Motorist Cheers Her Fighting Sister and Scorns Washington's Puny Policemen.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Good for you, Mrs. Shirley Ernst, so glad you licked one of those little hoptoads or monkeys, whatever they are, in the uniforms of policemen, that this Capital of the United States is infested with. On numerous occasions they have annoyed me, by hopping up to me, and ordering me off the District of Columbia parks' lawns, where there were "No Short Cut" signs up, and where men in civilian clothes were making short cuts across the same lawn. Just a short time ago one of the District of Columbia papers suggested that the public treat the District of Columbia policemen with respect. No one can respect an official that lacks dignity and a common sense good-sized brain. What a pity that the Capital of the United States can not have a police force of six-foot physical males of the human species, with a brain, and "dignity" to equal the physique.

MARGARET A. R. STOTTLEMEYER.

REICHSRAT VICTORY SEEN FOR BRUENING

Cheered by Reichstag Win, Coalition Prepares to Push Program.

MARGIN IS BIG SURPRISE

Berlin, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Sustained by a Reichstag majority that astounded political observers, the coalition government of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening today prepared to push through the Reichsrat its concrete program of financial reforms.

As the Reichstag already has given a vote of confidence to the ministry, a safe majority for the measures is forecast in the Reichsrat, which is the state council. Then they can be brought before the Reichstag when it reassembles on December 3 with the added authority of approval by the Reichsrat.

The margin of 82 votes given to Chancellor Bruening has in the opinion of many observers put a new complexion on German politics, which are ever full of surprises. When the elections of September 14 produced an unprecedented increase of extremism in Parliament, giving the Fascists on the right 107 instead of 12 seats and the Communists on the left 77 instead of 54, the future appeared to be hopeless for the cabinet.

Big Majority Undreamed Of.

Nobody then dreamed that the crucial moment of the chancellor's foreign policy and his drastic financial program ever would be supported by a majority as high as 82.

As the day drew nearer for the new Reichstag to assemble, his position seemed to become even more precarious. The support of the Social Democrats, which made possible last night's victory, seemed to have been insurmountably blocked by a strike of 126,000 Berlin metal workers, politically identified with the Social Democrats, who opposed wage reductions advocated in the Government's reform program.

As the Socialists are outside the coalition, technically in opposition, and unrepresented in the cabinet, even their tacit support seemed to be precluded. Moreover, the center parties that constituted the strength of the coalition were almost split apart.

Hindenberg Issues Command.

Only the virtual command of President Von Hindenburg, the aged soldier-statesman, prevented the economic party from quitting the cabinet cold. The peoples' party seemed desirous of inviting the Fascists into the government. The States party, formed of the old Democratic party and other elements, broke in two after an internal row.

The Farmers Federation actually abandoned the government and swung completely over to the Nationalists and Fascists.

Despite these difficulties, Chancellor Bruening and his colleagues continued to work until they were ready to appear before the country with a definite program of reform under which Germany's financial house could be kept in order for a period of three years. Publication of this program undoubtedly did much to reassure the country.

Reichsrat Next Step.

Now that the cabinet has been safely sustained in the brief but turbulent session of the Reichstag, the government's next step in the realization of its program is to present its bills to the Reichsrat.

One of the effects of the disorder and tumult in the Reichstag last week has been the loss for the Fascists of much of the prestige with which their immensely strengthened delegation entered Parliament.

One of the reasons is that it was they who did most of the talking in the sessions despite the fact that during the campaign they had clamored loudest for actions instead of words. Another was that they introduced a number of bills that were obviously not feasible, proposing the seizure of the property of all profiteers, the nationalization of banks and the limiting of interest to 5 per cent.

Ancient Rites Will Mark Coronation in Abyssinia

Negus Ras Tafari to Become "King of Kings and Lion of Judea" in Two-Mile High City of Addis Ababa.

Addis Ababa, Abyssinia, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The Negus Ras Tafari, of Abyssinia, and his queen, Waizeru Menen, who will be crowned Emperor and Empress of Abyssinia November 2, will spend the entire preceding night in solemn meditation and prayer at St. George's Cathedral.

Outside, thousands of Abyssinian Christians, subjects of the "King of Kings and Lion of Judea," will stand during the vigil holding lighted candles, sacred images and ecclesiastical banners.

The Negus will become his Imperial Highness Haile Selassi.

The Coptis archbishop and the bishops will pronounce a Te Deum in the "Geez" language, which is the ancient ecclesiastical tongue of Abyssinia.

The crowns today reposed on a high altar in the church, the six bishops praying over them for 21 days before the coronation. The precious stones and gold with which they are set were purchased in Europe and made by master goldsmiths of the country at a cost of $1,000,000.

The king of kings will ride in state from his palace to the church in an imperial coach formerly used by Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany and purchased by Abyssinia for $6,000. The coach will be drawn by splendid white horses imported from Hungary, driven by the former coachman of the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria.

Addi Ababa, the country's capital, perched at an altitude of 2 miles above sea level, has undergone a complete refitting within the past month.

Fifty miles of new highways have been built, palaces, churches, stores and dwellings have been hastily remodeled, and triumphal arches, electric light displays and pennants and banners have been put up.

Thousands of cases of foodstuffs, wines, furniture, carpets and other material for the emperor and his guests, have recently been brought in from Europe.

The government has commandeered all the automobiles, trucks and carriages in the city and taken over the hotels. For three months officials have been working day and night to give the capital a gala dress for the enthronement of the oldest dynasty in the world.

The Abyssinians were converted to Christianity in the fourth century and have kept up their connection with the Alexandrian Church through their Abuna, or chief bishop, who is always a Copt and is appointed by the Coptic Patriarch of Alexandria.

POLITICS IN WEST VIRGINIA FOCUSED ON COAL INDUSTRY

And although he did not succeed to the extent of getting that preferential rate removed he stirred up plenty of noise about it.

As a matter of fact, West Virginia's coal operators did support Neely two years ago. And among them was none other than the coal baron, James Elwood Jones, who is now the Republican nominee against him.

Obstacle Before Jones.

Jones voted for Neely against Senator Hatfield but that rough-hewn surgeon of the West Virginia hills is showing in this campaign that he is a party man above all else. He is on the stump waging a vigorous campaign for Jones.

Jones, of whom one says "heaven only knows how much he is worth," needs all the assistance of the Hatfield type that he can get, too, because he is no campaigner himself.

And as to just what he is up against, there is Neely's up-hill race of two years ago. Hoover carried the State by more than 100,000. Neely lost it by only about 9,000. A man who can come that close to surviving that 1928 torrent against Smith is a campaigner of no small parts.

Reception of Hurley.

There is a lot of talk among the Democrats of flowing gold from Jones, perhaps because he is in position to loosen a flow without feeling it. The Nye committee, however, has had an investigator or investigators prying around the State and there have been rumors from the beginning of the committee itself coming into the State, so expenditures in behalf of Jones have perhaps not gone entirely wild, not as wild as they might have gone at any rate.

Secretary of War Hurley visited Charleston yesterday and the Republicans, seeking to make the best of it, put on a show such as would have befitted the reception of a king. There were bands, torchlights and a regular parade, one of those kind where the newspapers describe the route, tell just what streets the parade will pass on and what streets it will not. The Secretary probably never before considered he rated so high.

Atterbury Lends Aid.

In addition to the apparent perennial slump of its mining industry, West Virginia has, of course, had its share of the general depression and the drought.

The area around here, however, has for some time been experiencing a boom through the development of the valley by the chemical interests. Both the Du Ponts and the Union Carbide people have come in and established large plants.

Incidentally, Gen. W. W. Atterbury, although bolting his ticket in Pennsylvania, is using his influence in this State in behalf of Jones. The Democrats say he can't do much, though, as long as the railroads continue to lay off men.

SHOUSE PREDICTS DEMOCRATIC HOUSE

45 Democrats, 50 Republicans, including all their factions, and the one Farmer-Labor man, Shipstead (Minnesota).

"This takes no account of such States as Illinois, Minnesota, South Dakota, Colorado and Wyoming, in all of which States the outcome is doubtful, and in several of which the nonpartisan observers, such as the correspondents of the great newspapers, give the Democrats the best of the situation. If we win in three of these doubtful States, we will have one more senator than the Republicans."

M'ADOO URGES NEEDY GET WHEAT SURPLUS

OPPOSED TO HOARDING

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, issued a statement today suggesting that wheat now held by the Farm Board be used to feed "hungry and distressed human beings" during the coming winter.

"The Farm Board, using the money of the taxpayers of the United States, has bought some 60,000,000 bushels of wheat, which it is holding, presumably for a higher price," he said. "This can come about only through a general lifting of the price level for wheat. Certainly there is no prospect that the Government will soon be able to market its holdings of wheat at a higher price, or even at the purchase price. Why then should it be hoarded instead of being used for the benefit of the people—its real owners?

"When Congress reconvenes in December, the first thing it ought to do is to authorize the use of as much of this huge wheat store as may be needed to feed hungry and distressed human beings during the coming winter. To what better use could it be put?"

Holdup of Bank Hoak, Philadelphian Admits

Philadelphia, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Charles L. Grubb, 25, a teller in the Front and Market street branch of the Franklin Trust Co., confessed late last night that the purported robbery of the bank yesterday was a hoax and that he had hidden the money, about $5,900, in a brick wall in the basement. The money was found where he said he had placed it. Grubb was held on a charge of embezzlement.

Shortly after 4 o'clock the bank's siren brought police with drawn pistols. Grubb, who had sounded the alarm, met them with the statement that he had just been robbed of $5,000 at the point of a lone holdup's revolver.

Award of $305,000,000 War Claims to U. S. Seen

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Robert Bonynge, counsel for the American representatives on the Mixed Claims Commission, returned yesterday from The Hague with the assertion that the United States is virtually assured of an award of $305,000,000 in its cases against Germany.

He said $260,000,000 of the $305,000,000 claimed by the United States for war time damages already had been awarded. About $40,000,000 more, he said, was claimed and probably would be allowed for the Kingsland, N. J., fire and for the Black Tom explosion.

Tribute Paid to Memory of American Revolution Hero on Birthday.

Berlin, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The 200th anniversary of the birth of Gen. Fredrick Von Steuben, American Revolutionary hero, whose native land was Germany, was celebrated today with a memorial service in the Reichstag meeting place.

Anton Erkeleng, Democratic member of the Reichstag, in the principal address stressed Von Steuben's talents not only as a military officer, but also as a scholar, administrator and organizer. Herr Erkeleng expressed hope that the American and German peoples might never again face each other as enemies. A crowded hall heard his address.

Among the audience were Gen. Von Hammerstein, new chief of the Reichswehr; Col E. D. W., Carpenter, American military attache; Gen. Von Steuben, representing the Von Steuben family; (a representative of the foreign office and many others of prominence.

Woman Who Witnessed Lincoln's Death Buried

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 19 (N.Y. W.N.S.).—Funeral services for Mrs. Yabella Stewart Anderson, one of the few remaining eyewitnesses of the assassination of President Lincoln, were held here yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Horace M. Leeds, inventor.

The widow of an officer of the Union Army, Mrs. Anderson died Wednesday at the age of 87. At the time of the death of President Lincoln, Mrs. Anderson had gone to Washington to spend a few months' furlough obtained by her husband, First Lieut. Robert K. Anderson. They were sitting near the box President Lincoln occupied at Ford's Theater the evening of April 14, 1865.

TARDIEU SEES PEACE POLICY ENDANGERED

REITERATES HIS AIM

Belfort, France, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Premier Tardieu in an address to war veterans here today declared that "events abroad have endangered French peace policy."

The French premier reiterated the thesis of his government, "organization of peace with arbitration as procedure, security as its fundamental basis, and reduction of armaments as a consequence," but added that the policy "has not always met the support hoped for."

"Thus France," he said, "has been forced to insure by its own means conditions of security which exact respect for frontiers and respect for treaties.

"Before long, in parliament, I shall have opportunity to establish that no government has done more toward world peace than France."

The premier also extolled French stability under the Republican regime, and the economic stability which was inherent in her people because of their saving, industrious character.

Officers Sail for Italy To Get Alleged Slayer

New York, Oct. 19 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Armed with a presidential warrant, J. Cullingwood Rasbach, sheriff of Herkimer County, N. Y., and his deputy, Adam Allen, sailed yesterday aboard the Red Star liner Belgenland to bring back Michael Cammerano, 58, to stand trial on a charge of murder. They will leave the liner at Cherbourg and proceed to Rome where Cammerano is under arrest, held for extradition.

According to the charge against the Italian, Cammerano fatally shot Walter Swett, 19, during a dispute on a Herkimer county farm five years ago. The county employed a detective who went abroad and found Cammerano.

Sound Bonds Buy Now for Income and Profit

CERTAINLY the happenings of the last year have demonstrated the wisdom of a conservative investment policy. Bonds—often referred to as the safest form of investment—have again proved their right to that title. Bond investors have enjoyed continuing income from their former holdings . . . have also found unusual opportunities for additional investment in this year's bond market.

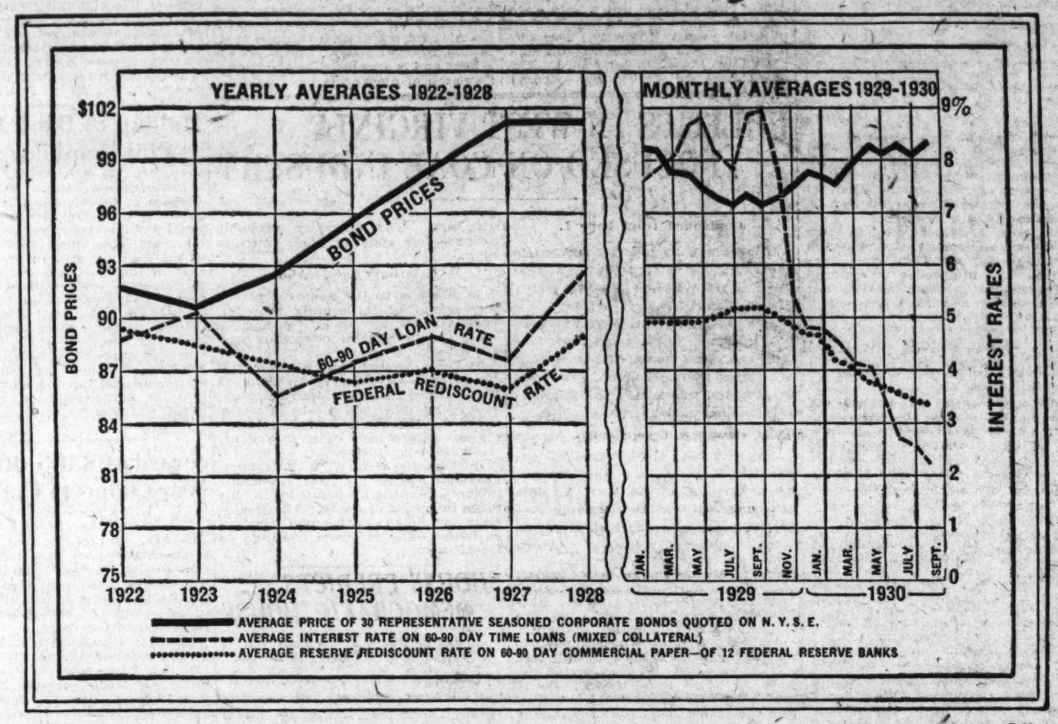
During a period of business recession money is withdrawn in great volume from the stock market. Real estate is not so active. Not so much money is required to carry on the reduced volume of general business. More money flows into the most conservative investment channels.

Under these conditions, many authorities have commented on the comparatively low level of bond prices. They logically think, with money rates lower than at any time since the summer of 1924, bonds should be selling higher than they are. Such authorities unanimously agree that now is an especially favorable time to buy bonds.

Another advantage to the bond investor has been the sharp decline in commodity prices . . . bond income is worth more in purchasing power. Eminent economists think that we may be in a prolonged period of declining commodity prices. Hence bond income already acquired or newly purchased has the prospect of continuing its increased value in buying more goods per dollar.

The day is coming when the present rate of yield from sound bonds will not be available—when present bond values will not be available.

The bond market during the business recession has shown remarkable steadiness in contrast to more speculative forms of investment which were so popular less than a year ago. Increased funds available for bond investment have absorbed a large volume of new issues this year. And, besides, many bond issues not thoroughly distributed last year have also been disposed of. Member banks of the Federal Reserve System have increased their security holdings more than 15½ per cent since January 1, 1930—largely in bonds.



It is evident from the above chart that bond prices tend to move in opposite direction to fluctuations in money rates. At the present time money rates are easier than at any time since 1924 (August, 1930 rates are, of course, lower than the general average for 1924) and bond prices, particularly among gilt-edge securities, are steadily moving upward. Many opportunities for unusual yield still remain, however, among the less widely sought for but well-secured issues.

In the municipal bond market dealers report a brisk demand, and that is always considered a sign of market strength.

Certain types of bonds always lead in an upward price movement. They are the best known and most marketable issues—favored during times of unsettled business conditions. Back of these leaders is a great volume and variety of well secured bonds which are usually purchased to be held for income. Among such issues, the investor whose circumstances enable him to buy bonds for income mainly will find unusual values obtainable.

It is in times like the present that careful investors make the greatest financial progress. In bonds they can buy more income for less money and enjoy the higher rate of interest for years to come. And it is not to be forgotten that bonds purchased at current prices may, later, show appreciation in market value.

Most competent observers believe that the ground work is being laid for improved business activity. The underlying economic strength of this country has been little impaired during a period of world-wide depression. It is a time for confident action in taking advantage of present investment opportunities in the bond market.

Dr. Schacht And Wife Are Guests Here

Former Reichsbank Head to Be Received by Hoover Today.

ON the heels of the visit of one distinguished German, Gen. von Blomberg, comes the arrival of another, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the German Reichsbank, who, with Frau Schacht, is in Washington for a sojourn of several days.

Like Gen. von Blomberg, Dr. Schacht is on on the first lap of a tour of the country. His itinerary includes visits to various American universities, where he will conduct a series of lectures. In the absence of the German Ambassador and Frau von Prittwitz, who would act as hosts to the visitors, Dr. Schacht and Frau Schacht are staying at the Mayflower.

Dr. Schacht will be presented to President Hoover today, and possibly to the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Mellon, by Dr. Otto C. Kiep, who is acting as Charge d'Affaires of the embassy. On Saturday, Dr. Schacht paid a call on the Secretary of State, Mr. Stimson, who entertained at luncheon yesterday in his honor. Dr. Kiep gave a luncheon in his honor Saturday shortly after his arrival.

A group of informal parties are being arranged for Frau Schacht by the wives of the members of the embassy staff.

Mrs. Tuckerman Entertains In Honor of Miss Walker.

Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman entertained the debutantes of this season and last at tea yesterday afternoon at her home in Edgemoor in honor of Miss Caroline Walker, debutante daughter of Col. and Mrs. Harrison Dodge. Afterward Mrs. Tuckerman was hostess to twenty guests at a buffet supper in honor of Miss Walker.

Miss Laura Tuckerman will return to Washington this week from Boston and New York, where she has made a series of visits.

Mrs. Harry B. Hawes, wife of Senator Hawes, who is a member of the board of directors of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation, has returned from Virginia, where she attended memorial services at Gen. Lee's birthplace, Stratford Hall, and meetings of the board which followed. During her stay Mrs. Hawes was a guest with other members of the board at luncheon on the Nenemoosha, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred I. du Pont's yacht, and was also a guest of Judge and Mrs. Robert Worth Bingham, of Louisville, Ky., on their yacht, which was anchored in the Potomac near Stratford.

Loretta Jane Umstead Will Be Married Today.

The marriage of Miss Loretta Jane Umstead, of 1717 Massachusetts avenue, to Mr. Frederick Hugh-Craig Bickford will take place at noon today at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. George Giffen Culbertson officiating. Miss Umstead's only attendant will be Miss Frances Fossett, of Harpers Ferry, W. Va. After the ceremony, Mr. Bickford and his bride will leave for Virginia Beach. On their return they will be at home at 3900 Cathedral avenue.

Miss Umstead attended George Washington University and has for some years been connected with the national headquarters of the American Red Cross, in recent years with the disaster relief staff.

Mr. Bickford is a graduate of American University and the National University Law School. He is a member of the executive council of the National Conference of Law Fraternities. He belongs to the University Club, the Bannockburn Golf Club and the local Bar Association. During the war he served in France with the transport and naval air forces.

Mrs. Robert Lansing is leaving for New York today. She will spend a short while there at the Madison.

Miss Francesca McKenney and her cousin, Miss Frances Miller, of New York, who are spending the early fall at Hot Springs, Va., entertained at dinner there on Saturday evening, later taking their guests to the crystal room at the Homestead for dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Turner, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Whitmer, of Takoma Park, Md., spent the week-end in Southern Maryland as guests of Mr. Turner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Turner.

Mrs. John F. Linscott, of St. Petersburg, Fla., is the guest of Mrs. Edward Dacey and her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Fowler at their home, 1508 Spring place, for a month.

Debutante of This Season

Harris & Ewing.

MISS GERTRUDE FAUST, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Faust, who will be presented to society this season by her parents. No date has been set for the debut.

Fifth Ave. Fashions NEW YORK

Paris places much emphasis on the silhouette impressive of Russian influence. The simplicity of this model makes it especially suited for general day wear.

Style No. 119 comes in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. The medium size requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material with 1⅜ yards of 35-inch contrasting.

Bottle green transparent velvet is stunning with faille crepe silk.

Tweed, jersey and canton crepe also are chic.

Noted Dancer To Be Honored By Pen Women

Box Party Will Be Given at Recital Wednesday by Ted Shawn.

Entertaining in honor of Ted Shawn, who later in the season will be a guest of honor and speaker at the midwinter celebrity breakfast of the National League of American Pen Women, a group of Washington Pen Women are giving a box party at Mr. Shawn's dance recital Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Belasco Theater.

In the box party will be a number of national officers, also representatives of the District administration, national and local committee chairmen and other prominent members of the organization. Reservations have been made by Rear Admiral and Mrs. Frank Hodges Clark, who will have with them Mrs. Clark's mother, Mrs. Pauline G. Swaim; Mrs. Daniel C. Chace, who will entertain her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Shafer; Mrs. Charles W. Allen, Mrs. Faber Stevenson, Mrs. J. Harry Cunningham, Mrs. Harry Hunt, Mrs. William Atherton Du Puy, who will have as her guest her daughter, Miss Jacqueline Du Puy.

Also Mrs. Susie Root Rhodes, Mrs. William F. Dennis, Mrs. Dorothy De Muth Watson, Mrs. William H. Moses, Mrs. Anne Manchester, Mrs. W. W. Badgley, Mrs. Eugene E. Peters, Dr. Mary Meek Atkeson Moore, Mrs. Aaron D. Newman, Mrs. Morgan K. Armstrong, Mrs. William Wolff Smith, Mrs. John W. Bennett, who will have with her Mrs. John Peter McGovern.

Also Mrs. C. Leonard Chambers, Mrs. Frank Wilkes Pyle, Miss Agnes Winn, Miss Katherine Wooten, who will entertain a guest; Miss Althea Alderson, Mrs. Eleanor Anderson and Mr. Theodore Tiller 2d.

Mrs. Joseph H. Bradley And Daughter in Chicago.

Mrs. Joseph H. Bradley and her daughter, Miss Mary Parrish Bradley, are visiting in Chicago, where they are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lindsay.

Mrs. Bradley and Miss Bradley will move from their country estate, on the Rockville pike, Rosemont Farm, on November 1 to 1715 Nineteenth street, where they resided last winter. Miss Bradley made her bow to society at a tea given by her mother there. The house was formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Leland Harrison. Mr. Harrison recently resigned from the post of United States Minister to Uruguay, and is now chief of the Tariff Commission's international relations division.

Mr. Leo Kasehagen 3d has returned to Charleston, W. Va., after passing the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kasehagen, jr., at their home on Jefferson street.

Mrs. G. R. Howard to Open Lecture Series Tomorrow.

Mrs. Georgette Ross Howard, who gave a series of Current Topics Talks at the Woman's University Club last winter, is opening a second season at the Carlton tomorrow.

Included in the list of patronesses are Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, Mrs. Wallace Radcliffe, Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, and Mrs. Virginia White Speel.

Mrs. Howard is also giving these lectures at Mount Vernon Seminary and at the Woman's Club of Richmond.

The Minister of Guatemala, Senor Dr. Don Adrian Recinos, was the ranking guest at a luncheon given Friday at the Mayflower by Mr. and Mrs. P. E. D. Nagle, in compliment to Dr. and Mrs. Julio E. Mejia, son-in-law and daughter of the President of Salvador.

Others in the company were the Ministers of Nicaragua and Senora de Sacasa, and Mrs. Anne Archbold.

Mrs. Donald F. Roberts is chairman of the Ushers's Committee for the Wellesley Club Benefit, "The Subway Express," which will be presented at the National Theater on the evening of Monday, November 3.

Assisting Mrs. Roberts are Mrs. Kaoni Maki, Mrs. George Meleney, Miss Carl Piper, Miss Christy Jones, Miss Katherine Buckingham, Mrs. Clinton L. Doggett, Miss Jeanette Bradley, Mrs. John Douglass Fitch, Miss Muriel Wood, and Mrs. John P. Gregg.

The Washington Club of Trinity College will hold its annual tea dance at the Willard Saturday from 4 to 7. Those serving on committees for the dance are Regis Boyle, Mildred Bucky, Mary Ganey, Betty O'Byrne, Margaret O'Donoghue, Peggy O'Donnell and Dorothy Rhodes.

Mr. George L. Williams has returned to Washington from Atlanta, Ga., where he went to attend the funeral services of his mother.

Fire Threatens Virginia Village

Railroad Station Saved as Flames Claim Store at Mitchells Station.

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Oct. 19.—The village of Mitchells Station, 8 miles south of here, was threatened this morning by fire, which originated in a defective flue in the store of J. D. Morris. The Culpeper Volunteer Fire Company answered the call, and on their arrival found the fire had made such headway that it was impossible to save the store, and the railroad station was ready to burst into flames.

A sufficient supply of water was carried on the fire truck to save the station and water was hauled from a distance to extinguish the blaze in the Morris residence.

Damage to the store and warehouse was placed at $11,500, with $7,000 insurance. The Morris residence was damaged along one side to the extent of about $1,500, which was fully covered by insurance. An old building nearby, formerly used as the postoffice, was destroyed.

Marie Gibbon Is Married to J. T. Trimble

Ceremony Takes Place in St. Margaret's Church Here.

The marriage of Miss Marie Estelle Gibbon, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Edward Gibbon, of Charlottesville, Va., to Mr. John Thomas Trimble, jr., son of Mr. John T. Trimble and the late Mrs. Trimble, of Atlanta, Ga., took place in Washington on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock in St. Margaret's Church, with Dr. Herbert Scott Smith officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Thomas Southard Ellis, wore a gown of traditional white satin, made along princess lines, and trimmed with seed pearls appliqued on tulle, which formed the yoke. The pearls were also used to finish the long, tight sleeves. Her veil of tulle and rare old lace was held in place by a cap of pearls. She carried lilies of the valley and orchids.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Asbury S. Edmond, sister of the bride, was gowned in ecru moire taffeta. She carried tea roses and delphinium. The maid of honor, Miss Louise Holland, of Suffolk, Va., wore a frock of green moire, and carried pink roses. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Thomas S. Ellis, of West Hartford, Conn., and Mrs. Vincent Mullikin, of Washington, were dressed alike in gowns of orchid satin. They carried yellow roses.

Mr. Edward Parker, of East Orange, N. J., acted as best man, and the ushers included Mr. Perre Bowen, jr., of Baltimore, Md., Mr. B. E. Buchwald, of Washington, and Mr. A. F. McSwain, of Columbia, S. C.

Mr. Trimble and his bride left after the ceremony for a wedding trip to Canada. They will make their home in Buffalo, N. Y. Mrs. Trimble is a graduate of Randolph-Macon College and of George Washington University, where Mr. Trimble also received a degree.

The opening meeting of the Mount Holyoke Alumnae Association of Washington will be held on Monday, October 27, and will be a subscription dinner in honor of Mount Holyoke's traveling councilor, Mrs. Mary Hume Maguire, of Boston. It will be held at the Young Women's Christian Association at 6:30 o'clock. Mrs. Maguire is to speak before a number of the public and private high schools of the city and will bring the alumnae the latest news from the college. Reservations for the dinner should be made before Saturday with Mrs. E. E. Carter, 3213 Nineteenth street.

Mr. J. H. van Royen, jr., Attache of the Netherlands Legation, entertained a party at the Club Chantecler supper dance on Saturday evening. Others entertaining at Chantecler included Mr. Hugh Riley, Mr. Clyde Liggett, Mr. Wallace Chiswell and Mr. Edward Burke.

Mr. George P. Marshall has moved from 2700 Connecticut avenue to his apartment in the new Shoreham Hotel, where he will reside this season.

Are You Trying to Sleep on a Twenty-Year-Old Mattress?

—That was the experience of one prominent Washington woman. She saw Zaban's offer in the paper—"New Matresses for Old Ones"—and investigated the service he promised.

She was surprised at the transformation—delighted with the buoyant mattress that he returned for her old one!

And more—the new ticking she selected from Zaban's many attractive patterns harmonized beautifully with the color scheme of her bedroom.

We sterilized her mattress in an electric oven with 230 degrees of heat, thoroughly cleaned and combed the felt, and covered it with a new ticking of attractive pattern. Really a new mattress in every sense of the word.

The price—only $4 to $9—puts Zaban's renovation service within the reach of all.

Phone Zaban's today—National 9410—and our representative will call, or if you prefer to pay a personal visit to the show rooms and factory we'll welcome you.

Beds and Bedding sold direct to you at low factory prices. Mattresses, Box Springs and Pillows Renovated or Made to Order at Factory Prices.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

CONSIDERABLE promise is held for a song, "The Quest," by Maury Madison written to a lyric by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge. Mrs. Coolidge wrote it as a poem. Through a magazine publishing it, Madison saw the poem and realized the song possibilities.

Martha Attwood sang it for the first time on the radio.

Doubtless listeners were puzzled yesterday over the repetition of two modernistic pieces "The Enchanted Isle," by Gruenberg, and "Till Eulenspiegel," by Strauss, by the New York Philharmonic orchestra, which they had played the Sunday before.

This was due to the fact that Sunday before last the orchestra was playing in Carnegie Hall in New York and yesterday at the Academy of Music in Brooklyn, and they wanted to give both audiences a chance to hear these selections.

IT now appears that Stokowski, of the Philadelphia Orchestra put something over on the radio audience on his recent broadcast. Instead of giving them his usual orchestra of 110 musicians he used only 54 men.

Much secrecy was thrown about the performance, presumably on account of the director's new device which enables him to direct the orchestra and at the same time control the orchestra tone.

Since the initial performance several have characterized this device as pretty much the bunk but it wasn't until yesterday that the information trickled through that Stokowski had cut his orchestra in two without letting the radio audience in on it.

Pity the Bates College debaters tomorrow night (WJZ, 8:30 p. m.) who will attack the wisdom of thrift with the debaters from the universities of Scotland defending it.

When the Duncan Sisters who will be heard over WABC at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night distributed fresh vegetables to the audience at the Midnight Frolic in New York recently, they brought to mind the famous Cherry Sisters, only in that case the audience contributed the vegetables.

PRESENT at the opening of the Chicago Radio Show tonight will be Representatives Fred A. Britten, Chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, Rear Admiral W. S. Crosley, Commandant of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, and Commander Eugene F. McDonald, jr., who, the press notice goes on, "will be met and escorted into the building by four squads, with their officers from the Chicago unit of the United States Naval Reserves, carrying rifles and side arms."

This sounds more like the launching of a battleship.

The Rev. Donald Grey Barnhouse, of Philadelphia, employs seven secretaries to keep up with his radio mail, according to Columbia.

Jolly Bill Steinke in the "Jolly Bill and Jane" program claims to impersonate more characters in one program than any other actor on the radio. These include the Witch, Doctor Word, the Cowboy, Jerry the Dog, and various other lesser characters, fifteen in all.

Ray Kelly, sound effects expert, declared he had devised the greatest sound effect ever introduced. It is, he said, the report of a rifle fired through a Maxim silencer.

RAISING a new copyright question, it is said that one of the big chains will hereafter claim publication rights on everything spoken over their stations. To this end they are supposed to be dickering with a publishing house with a view to taking it over, inasmuch as some of the radio scripts may be printed in book form.

The British Broadcasting Corporation publishes a magazine made up entirely of addresses made over their stations.

"Quite so, my dear Watson; deduction tells me he is invisible. He is, nevertheless, near."

The telephone operator who inquired so particularly about Secretary Stimson's burglar might find a further approach to her study of the crime situation by tuning in on Sherlock Holmes tonight.

Which is a reminder that the present series of "Mystery House" will be solved during the episode tomorrow night. A new series will start the following Tuesday.

In personal conversation, Floyd Gibbons does not talk anywhere near as fast as he does on the air. Conversing with friends, he is quite deliberate.

THE performances of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, while artistically fine, are said to be a white elephant from a radio commercial standpoint, with the broadcasting company having difficulty selling this time.

Nevertheless, the opera begins its fourth season on the air Saturday night, November 1, to continue weekly for three months.

Dare Interprets the Mode

New York, Oct. 19.

I WOULD like to make a prediction.

And mark my words, because I am going to remind you of this some years from now. My prediction is that women are going to wear trousers!

Now, I don't mean that they will ever be trousered as men are trousered, nor as the Chinese or Moroccan women either. But I think that we will adopt a type of trousered skirt which can be seen today in those new and graceful pajamas that are more of an evening gown than a pajama. For that is the kind of trouser which goes a long, narrow skirt one better by giving the wearer all of the benefit of the long, narrow and flattering silhouette that such a skirt would give, with none of the "hobbling" that the so-called "hobble skirts" of prewar days actually gave.

It is only with this type of a decorative trouser that we can achieve this slenderizing effect with length. Otherwise, any skirt that comes even below the knees has to have enough fullness for walking and sitting, and consequently is not as graceful and slenderizing as we have come to demand that our skirts be.

Therefore, I make a prediction that within a few years women will be wearing decorative and interestingly made and intricately cut trousers, which will have no obvious trouser-like effect to them, but which will nevertheless be trousered.

And I for one will be delighted, as I assure you any woman will be who has ever known the comfort of the lounging and beach pajama, and realized how flattering and grace-compelling they were!

• • • •

Of course, we would make you a masquerade costume or two or three or more! Because what with Halloween parties in the imminent-offing, and Dare just getting back from Europe and telling us about all of the really different costumes she has seen at the carnivals and Mardi Gras, we figured that it was quite the appropriate moment to make up an illustrated leaflet of new masquarade costumes. Even if you aren't attending a Halloween party next week, you might send the stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for these designs and put them away for a day when you will need them. Because they are all ideas that will not go out of style, and can be used for any kind of a Mardi Gras.

• • • •

And there is another lovely black suede bag set in silver, which I guess I'll have to live without until I see it on sale somewhere for much less than it originally cost in Paris!

• • • •

Don't ever hang a pleated dress in a wardrobe trunk. Especially if it is pleated to a fifteen or twenty dollar tune, as mine was. Instead, it should be given plenty of space in one of the trunk drawers, or better still, folded and put in a suit box with lots of tissue paper. I'll tell you something more about this "man-yana."

• • • •

That's because I want to call your attention to the graceful lines of the Dupouy-Magnin coat I sketched for you today, which was black cloth trimmed with blue fox.

• • • •

Au Revoir!

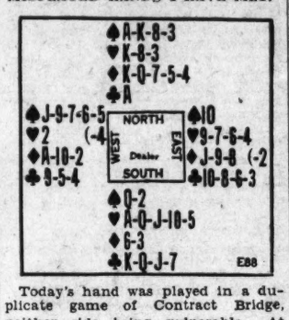
WORK ON BRIDGE

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



Today's hand was played in a duplicate game of Contract Bridge, neither side being vulnerable. At most of the tables it was played at six Hearts after the following proper bidding: South two Hearts, West pass, North six Hearts.

At one table North bid for a grand slam and West defeated him by leading the Ace of Diamonds. Against a small-slam bid nearly every West player opened by leading the Six of Spades, which South won, and, after leading the four rounds of trumps which were necessary to exhause East, all but two of the Declarers tried to sneak a Diamond trick through by leading small from South, hoping that West would duck. No one was successful as West in every case played the Ace and saved the trick.

At two tables the Declarer recognized the possibility of a squeeze. It all depended upon the location of the Ace of Diamonds; if West had it, the squeeze was perfect. West had it and this is the way those two Declarers played it:

After winning with the Queen of Spades, South played two rounds of trumps, winning the second with the King in the dummy. Then the Ace of Clubs, which was followed by three more rounds of trumps; and then the King, Queen and Jack of Clubs. When West was called upon to play to trick 10, he held Jack-Nine-Seven of Spades and the Ace of Diamonds; dummy had the Ace-King-Eight of Spades and the King of Diamonds. West had to discard first—the usual important element in a squeeze—and it was all over but the shouting. If West discarded the Ace of Diamonds, dummy parted with a Spade; if West played a Spade, dummy let go the King of Diamonds. In either case thirteen tricks are made, counting in duplicate Contract 180 for making the six-Heart bid, 500 for a small slam, 50 for an extra trick, 100 for four honors in one hand and 300 for making game in one hand—a total of 1,130—as compared with the 50 (100 honors minus 50 for one undertrick) scored by the North who bid for a grand slam.

What Today Means to You

"LIBRA."

IF October 20 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 1:30 p. m. to 3 p. m. and 6 p. m. to 7 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to noon, and 9 p. m. to 10:30 p. m.

Unsettling influences are predicted for this date, and there may be a rearrangement in the affairs or interest of your life. Warnings from a sincere friend, about dangers which you did not know existed. Listen, and take precautions.

The child born on this October 20 will have a kind, quiet and pleasant nature, although a somewhat negative one. It will have a practical mind, and will be a plodder. It will be strongly attracted toward home, family and friends, and will never sever the ties which bind it to them.

You have courage, a fierce sincerity, a clear and vivid intellect, and a deep humanity. You do not bottle up your feelings and emotions, nor do you shrink from facing the realties of life. You see the relation between self-denial and self-expression, for you are willing to pay in full for the fulfillment of your ambitions—no matter what the price may be. You are not a bargain hunter—you are a treasure hunter, in both a material mental and spiritual way. You have faith in yourself, and you have faith in Providence, which you trust to meet you half way. Hard work is the best antidote to worry, and like most busy people, you are not a worrier.

You are open-minded, and try to be fair and to see all sides of a question. You are not a "buck passer," and you do not try to put on other people's shoulders a blame that you yourself should bear. Too many times you are willing to assume the burdens of others, out of sheer kindness of heart. Your loyalty does not die easily, and you respond in kind to the generosities and fidelities of others. You are destined to be treated meanly and shabbily by many who should be your friends, but you seldom seek revenge, and your bleeding heart is not revealed to the world. You are always ready to make excuses for others, and your keen sense of humor seldom deserts you in time of need. Through all your adventures you will be able to keep a level head. You hunger for love and you know how to give good measure in return, and as a husband or wife, you will make a glorious companion, full of sympathy, understanding and help.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Taming the Lion.

Everett had an extraordinary fear of wild animals. At night he refused to make the long journey down the dark corridor to his bedroom for fear that a lion or a tiger would jump out upon him from the doorways as he passed.

Everett was 8, and knew quite well that his fears were silly, and that the existence of a lion on the eighth floor of an apartment house was impossible. That made no difference. He continued to be afraid.

It was not until his father hit upon the scheme of dramatizing fights with wild animals in which Everett played the part now of a successful big game hunter, now of the big game itself, in the reassuring afternoon sunshine of his back yard, that his bedtime fear began to lessen and eventually disappear.

Children often are subject to fears which they know to be absurd and fantastic, but from which they nevertheless are unable to free themselves without help.

Such fears are, of course, but symbols for other intangible things of which the child is afraid. Curiously enough a child may apparently escape the pressure of these deeper fears through being cured of them in their symbolic form.

This may be done either through helping the child to laugh at himself, or through encouraging him to go through the pantomime of conquering it.

He also may identify himself with the object of his fear. Thus, if he is afraid of a lion, he pretends that he is a lion, and gradually ceases to fear the lions of his fancy.

The imaginative play of children often helps them to conquer fears and to solve emotional conflicts.

Brighter Pajamas Will Make Winters Gayer

One designer suggests jade green silk marocain pajamas and tunic with a fuzzy wool jacket of watermelon pink. The jacket has comfortable patch pockets and a belt.

Voting No Thrill To Turkish Women

Istanbul, Turkey, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Turkish women's lack of enthusiasm over their newly-granted voting privilege is causing provincial governors a lot of worry.

The governors have been ordered by Chukru Kaya Bey, interior secretary, to see from three to five women are selected to every municipal council in the September elections. Politically-minded women are scarce, even in the large centers, and the governors will have a hard time finding candidates, it is predicted.

Most Turkish women are bashful about exercising their right to vote, while many Turkish husbands still insist that woman's place is in the harem and do not encourage their wives to go to the polls.

Isaac Gans Will Head Exposition Committee

Isaac Gans, well-known business man and former president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, has been appointed chairman of the reception committee for its sixth annual industrial exposition to be held soon.

In making the announcement, the organization said Mr. Gans will have on the committee many of the best known residents of Washington, who will play an important part in welcoming and assisting the throngs of visitors expected here for the event.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

BUTTERSCOTCH PUDDING.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

Those who like a rich, sweet dessert once in a while will enjoy this butterscotch cream pudding. The same mixture can be used as filling for cream-puffs or eclairs, or for butterscotch pie or the filling for tarts or Boston cream pie, which is made with two layers of plain cake or sponge cake.

¾ cup flour,
3 cups milk,
1½ cups brown sugar,
3 tablespoons butter,
½ teaspoon salt,
2 or 3 eggs,
½ teaspoon vanilla.

Blend the flour and one cup of the cold milk until smooth. Heat the remaining milk in a double boiler, pour some of the hot milk into the flour and milk, return the mixture to the double boiler, stir until thickened and cook for fifteen minutes. Meantime, cook the brown sugar, butter and salt for five minutes over direct heat and stir. Add while hot to the mixture in the double boiler, beat well, gradually stir this mixture into the beaten eggs, return to the double boiler, cook for a few minutes, remove from the fire, add the vanilla and chill. Serve with plain or whipped cream.

"This Laundry Actually Saves Us Money"

"THE extra wear our clothes give us since I've sent them to Manhattan has been a real saving." . . . What's the secret? Manhattan's "Net Bag System" of washing which makes clothes wear longer and look better. First your clothes are separated according to color and material into individual Net Bags which protect them against all outside contact. Then they are exposed only to the gentle cleansing action of pure Palm Oil soap suds and many rinsings of soft, warm water. That's why they come back looking as fresh and clean as new. And Manhattan's 3-Day Collection and Delivery Service guarantees that your clothes will be home on time. Collected Monday morning they are delivered Wednesday afternoon; collected Tuesday, returned Thursday and so on. Call our representative today and have him explain our many economical services. By JOHN HAWK.

READ THIS FIRST.

Robin Smith, young poet, accepts an invitation to a house party because Lady Gwendolen Winston, with whom he is desperately in love, will also be present. After quarreling with the Earl of Winston, Gwendolen's brother, and Donald Flint, her fiance, he locks the door of his bedroom and flees through the window back to his attic room. The Earl of Winston is missed, and on a search the earl's dead body is found under Robin's bed. The poet is arrested. Scotland Yard detectives return him to Alston Manor, the scene of the murder. He is questioned.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XV.

Robin laughed savagely when the inspector was gone. So he would leave him to rest. Rest! As if there would ever be rest for him again! He got up and paced the floor, back and forth, interminably, and his thoughts flew here and there wildly as he walked.

He loathed the sight of the luxurious furnishings, the wide carven oak bed, and the deep-cushioned chairs; of the thick Oriental rug into which his footsteps fell. Why couldn't he have had this room last night? He asked himself again, why couldn't his hostess have been so kind to him then? Such consideration only mocked him now. Last night it would have saved him. Today it came too late.

It was the first time Robin had been alone since the strange man had appeared in the door of his room in the place of the bacon and eggs for which his mouth had been watering.

His mind was still in too much of a turmoil to realize clearly his immediate danger. He thought rather of Lady Gwendolen; wondered how she was, and, most of all, what she thought of him. For she must be thinking something, whether good or evil. It was some consolation to know that he must surely figure in her thoughts. He couldn't have been sure of that yesterday, he thought bitterly. He had written about the irony of life—the critics had praised his verse because of its stress on this quality—but he had never dreamt that he himself would prove such a tragic victim of it. And today his name was probably in all the papers. He, Robin Smith, who had longed for fame, was known at last to the world, but, alas! in what fashion!

He went to one of the wide windows, and, pushing aside the heavy satin hangings, stared out over the garden and the long pond. Beyond lay the rose garden. What memories rose at the sight! Memories too sweet and poignant to bear.

As Robin stood and gazed reflectively over the lovely scene which met his eyes, it was only then that it occurred to him that if he was innocent—as most certainly he was—some one else must be guilty. The idea came to him with a shock; and was followed by a mood of almost ecstatic happiness. If some one else was guilty, he, Robin, must discover him, and cover his own accusers with shame.

He began mentally to make a survey of the other guests. None of them seemed possible as a perpetrator of the crime. He had heard inadvertently from Inspector Deemer while coming down in the train that apparently there had been robbery. At any rate, the dead man's pockets were found turned out and absolutely empty. That looked like a servant or an outsider, Robin reasoned. Then there was the question of the knife. Lord Winston had been killed by his own knife. That certainly was mighty queer. Robin began to recover his composure as his mind was diverted from his own wrongs and humiliation. He took a cigarette from his pocket and began to smoke absently. He was still smoking and staring unseeingly into the garden when a low knock at his door recalled him. He opened it to find Andree outside.

"May I come in, Robin?" she asked softly, as, without waiting for permission, she slipped through the aperture, closing the door behind her.

"I want to talk to you . . . alone."

Robin tried to smile, but only managed a sad twist of his lips. He motioned his visitor to a chair without speaking.

"Oh, Robin," she commenced at once in an excited voice. "I just overheard the inspectors talking, and they've found his watch and cigarette case where you dropped them. . . ."

"What!" exclaimed Robin, as he stared into the gold-flecked eyes raised so concernedly to his.

"The gardner found them," she hastened to explain, not noticing the bewildered, angry look in his eyes. "They were just to the right of your footprints, the one two yards or so beyond the other. I heard Inspector Linscott. . . ."

"Did you say they found them where I dropped them, Andree?" asked Robin very quietly.

She nodded affirmatively, and continued with her news.

"I heard him say there could be no mistake. The watch has Lord Winston's monogram, as well as the cigarette case. Oh, Robin, what a shame you dropped them! It's more evidence against you . . . and they were both worth a lot of money . . . platinum and jewels. I noticed last night."

"Isn't anyone else but me suspected at all?" interrupted Robin, looking searchingly at her. She was dressed in exquisite green, and there were no circles under her eyes as he had observed under Lady Dorothy's. But what shocked Robin the most was that she seemed to take his guilt for granted. If even his oldest friend felt that way, what chance had he? The thought cast him into a depression. All seemed up with him!

"My dear boy, whom else could they suspect?" Andree was saying.

That was just it. She had hit the nail on the head. Whom else could they suspect? Robin had been asking himself that question ever since he was alone. And he could find no satisfactory answer.

The sound of a clock striking obtruded on his thoughts. Andree looked at the tiny jeweled watch on her wrist. "It's lunch time," she announced, rising. "You must come down, of course. It's better, however you feel. In these next two days you must try to win over as many as you can." She was thinking particularly of her husband as she spoke.

"Win over . . ." repeated Robin slowly. "Rather not!" he then burst out. "If people want to believe that I'm a murderer, let them believe. Before I'm finished I'll prove they're wrong; but as to winning over, as you call it, never!"

"You're hateful today!" Andree retorted, rather petulantly. "I only mean to help. It'll get me into heaps of trouble if George finds I came to you; but I risked it because I thought you'd want to see me. . . ." She was on the verge of tears of vexation.

"Don't, Andree!" Robin put his hand on her arm tenderly. "I didn't mean to hurt you. It's terribly difficult for me you know. I do want to see you. . . ."

"Oh, Robbie, dear, I'm so frightened. I know they're going to hang you!" Her voice broke in a sob.

"Damn all women!" Robin muttered to himself. A lot of consolation it was to hear they surely were going to hang him. But he knew Andree meant well, and was his friend. Funny her being his friend, and yet taking his guilt for granted. He could see he'd have to make many readjustments during the coming days. As they descended the stairs he was thinking about this new piece of information. Queer they should have found Lord Winston's valuable watch and cigarette case just where he had passed; queer . . . and damning, too. Robin was more disturbed than ever.

And it was then that he had the hardest moment of the day. The guests were already gathered for luncheon. He felt every eye, hostile or pitying, turned on him, and his first instinct was to run. But he quickly conquered this, and with lips set in a thin, determined line, he walked gravely, and with an air of self-possession which was astonishing, to the place at Lady Dorothy's side.

Robin did not speak through that first meal. No one spoke much. It was a desperate affair altogether. Except for Lady Gwendolen, all the guests of the previous night were there. She was still confined to her room, he overheard Muriel Haddon explain to Prince Pozolevsky.

Inspector Linscott paid less attention to Robin than to the other guests. His facts against the poet were pretty definite. If they were only circumstantial and misleading, and there was just a chance they might be, he must look elsewhere for the guilty person. So he scrutinized the other guests with care. But he could find no probable alternative. He, as well as Robin, had entertained the possibility of the murder being committeed by an outsider, the more since Lord Winston's watch and cigarette case had been found near the path leading to the road, and his inquiries had elicited the information that a stranger had been in the village on the previous day, and left soon after dark in the direction of the manor. He had been able to learn nothing about this stranger, except that the innkeeper took him to be a colonist by his talk. That was interesting in view of the fact of Lord Winston's recent return from Canada. A search was being made for the man. The servants were all of long tenure, and well paid; faithful servants attached to their mistress, not in the least likely to kill for money. Besides, there was the watch and cigarette case the gardener had found. If the murder had been committed for money, they would have been kept. The other possibility was that the murderer was after some paper he knew to be in Lord Winston's possession, and, on finding the watch and cigarette case not to contain it, had thrown them away. Or, which seemed most probable, that Robin Smith had accidentally dropped them in his flight, and not dared search for them.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

LATE OCTOBER IN THE GARDEN.

THIS is one time in the year when your grapevine will be benefited by a careful pruning. While in the garden it will be well to mulch such small fruit bushes as currants, raspberries, gooseberries and blackberries. These are not deep rooters, so will be benefited by a mulch. Do not pile the manure, even if well-rooted, close to the main stems of the bushes.

This is the time to set out spring flowering bulbs, such as snowdrops, hyacinths, tulips and daffodils.

Certain annuals, like sweet peas, pansies, candytuft and cornflowers, may be sown now for spring blooming. Of course, when sown in the fall they require a light covering of finely divided, well-rotted manure.

This is the time to lift such summer flowering bulbs or tubers as dahlias, cannas, tuberoses and gladiolus. Any of these roots may be successfully wintered in a cellar where the temperature does not go below 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

Do not put off mulching your rhododendrons any longer. Use dead leaves, pine needles or peat moss for this purpose. These plants are expensive and many are lost the first winter because of lack of protection about their roots.

As soon as the leaves have fallen from any shrubbery it is well to spray the bushes with Bordeaux mixture. This applies to shrubs that have been set out this year or well established specimens.

Several letters have reached my desk of late asking me which perennials are best not planted in the fall. In response to these letters let me explain that most of the late blooming varieties do better when moved in the spring. Chrysanthemums, shasta daisies and the anemone japonica do better when transplanted in the spring. Among the deciduous shrubs which should not be transplanted in the fall are tamarix, viburnum plicatum, Japanese snowball and butterfly bush. Azaleas and rhododendrons also do better when planted in the spring. Lombardy poplars and the various varieties of birch trees should also be planted in the spring.

If you have some old-fashioned roses in your garden or a bush of briar roses do not be so particular about giving them winter protection. As a rule, all they need is soil well hilled up about their main stems.

MACARONI - SPAGHETTI CONTESTS

There have been recipe contests before, but we doubt if there ever has been one so novel or so interest-compelling as the Mueller macaroni-spaghetti contest now being conducted through this paper.

One hundred dollars in cash prizes and assorted packages of Mueller's products are being offered for the best recipes using macaroni or spaghetti. This is really two contests in one; identical prizes are offered for macaroni recipes and for spaghetti recipes. There are 56 prizes in all to be awarded.

Scores of women have already sent in their favorite recipes and it really is surprising to notice the variety of ways in which macaroni and spaghetti can be prepared. How do you serve these fine foods? Send in your recipe. If it pleases your family, it may be good enough to win a prize.

Rules Governing the Contest.

1. Each contestant may submit as many recipes as she wishes, calling for macaroni or spaghetti.
2. Write on one side of the paper only. Be sure your name and address are on each sheet of paper you submit. This is important.
3. Mail recipes to Macaroni Contest Editor, care of The Washington Post.
4. The contest closes at noon on October 31.
5. The names of the winners will be announced on November 8. The prize-winning recipes will also be published.

THE PRIZES.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Hopeless Love.

TWO women today ask the same question. "How can I be cured of a hopeless love?" One wonders whether either of them is really sincere in her wish to be cured as each admits that she continues to seek the man in question. No woman arrives at adult years without knowing that an attachment will continue so long as there are meetings.

So the first thing any woman would instinctively do in self-defense would be to stop seeing the man. These attachments are usually the outcome of weakness in the first place, and therefore the strength of will to end them is lacking. Another generally known fact is that the people who pine over "hopeless" love are usually people who are incapable of any love at all. They mistake emotional phenomena for love.

An interesting example of that was a case in Illinois. An itinerant preacher killed his wife and induced a woman in one of his congregations to kill her husband—because of their "hopeless love for each other." The crime discovered and the two arrested, they each sought to pin the crime upon the other, calling each other the cruelest of names. They both paid for their idea of "love" with a life term in prison.

The love of Judd Grey and Ruth Snyder was of the same brand. These people know nothing about love. They are like pussy cats drawn to a fish factory. They are attracted to something they can not get and haven't the sense to forget it and be satisfied with their own saucer of cream. They sneak around and yowl and grow more and more miserable because they stop thinking of everything else, and have only one idea—which gets them nothing.

To every woman who is harboring this sort of attachment we can only say that it will last as long as she continues to concentrate upon it; and it will end when she ends it. Can any one offer more sympathetic advice to the two whose letters follow:

Dear Miss McDoald: I know I ought to be ashamed, as his wife has been so good to me during illness and unemployment. But I am simply wildly in love with her husband. Every time I see him it gets worse. He is older than either one of us. She used to work for him. They are perfectly happy, while my husband and I are almost broken up right now. We are in debt and can't seem to get out. I am disgusted. And this other man just holds my every thought. I go there and am heavenly happy if he is home, and miserable if he is out. She does not know and neither does he, but I feel that some time I will just have to tell him, for my love is so great. What can I do?

FLORENCE.

Here we have a woman who would forfeit her best friends' respect and probably make herself a spectacle in the man's eyes just because she is weak and drifting around in a mushy day dream instead of figuring out a way to help her husband get on his feet again. One can imagine how much help and inspiration a husband receives from a wife whose whole thought is wrapped up in the man across the street. Love? Such attractions have nothing to do with love and any married woman ought to know it.

And now X. Y. Z. has a sad story. Can any one symphathize with her? We just simply can not.

Dear Miss McDonald: Will you please publish my letter in the paper so I may be able to help some other person from making the same mistake I made. I am a married woman and have fallen "head over heels" in love with a married man. He is in about the same condition, although he is too much of a gentleman to have ever admitted it, for which I greatly respect him.

I am not a bad woman and he is a fine man, but I think we have both mismated and found it out too late. I suffer tremendously when away from him. I usually am fortunate enough to see him several times a week, but never alone, always in a public gathering and I sure am lonesome and depressed when I do not see him. If he were to ask me, I would go to the other end of the world with him, for I love him so much and I think he cares for me, too.

I surely wish my letter could help some other woman to hold herself in "rein," so that she may not let herself fall in love with a married man. I have a wonderful husband; he gets me anything I want—that is, of course, anything in reason—but it seems my love for him is dead. I have tried so hard to love him, but it seems I can not. But I would willingly be the other man's slave if he were to ask me.

Miss McDonald please print my letter so it can warn other girls and married women also. I thank you and will be very grateful to you if you can tell me how to get "rid" of this love.

How to Keep Well

TESTING CIRCULATION.

THERE is some chance that a practical method of testing poor circulation has been found. Up to now, when a man came to a physician complaining of poor circulation, cold feet, and a number of other mild discomforts, the physician had to take his word for it. Now there is a test for disturbance of circulation that is sensitive enough to help in diabetes when gangrene of the feet is being guarded against. Possibly there are other conditions in which it is of service, and maybe it will throw some light on poor circulation and cold feet.

The test is made as follows: A solution of histamin, 1 in 1,000, is made and chlorestone is added to make a strength of 1 in 200. The purpose of the chlorestone is to prevent the histamin solution from spoiling. The patient lies flat, or sits with his legs in a horizontal position.

Four points are selected for testing—just above the knee, six inches below the kneecap, six inches above the ankle, and on top of the foot. The skin of these areas is washed clean with alcohol, and then thoroughly dried. A drop of the solution is placed on the skin. With a sharp needle the skin is pricked several times through the solution. The needle pricks are arranged in a circle somewhat larger than a pea.

Almost immediately after the pricking the histamin reaction starts. First, there is a red spot. Then a wheal, or red, raised place like nettlerash or a bee sting. Lastly, there is a red flare and itching. If the circulation is good, this progression of reactions is completed in five minutes. If the circulation is poor the reaction is delayed and atypical. If the course of the tests around the knee is normal, while that of the back of the foot is slow and abnormal, this is proof that the circulation in the foot is poor. The reactions are classed as grade 1, 2 or 3.

This method of testing has proved of value in picking out the cases of diabetes in which gangrene threatened, and for that purpose is regarded as of value in caring for diabetes. It has also been used with advantage in testing the circulation of diabetics with carbuncles and boils, in various forms of heart and kidney disease, and in chilling of the body under different circumstances. There is every reason to think it will be tried in Raynaud's disease, intermittent claudication, Brueger's disease. In time it may be of common use in what is called "poor circulation."

DIET AND ACIDOSIS.

Miss C. R. writes:

1. Will diet cure acidosis?
2. If so, what is the diet?

REPLY.

1. There are two kinds of acidosis. Acidosis due to fatty acids is caused by diets which are too rich in fats and foods from which fat and fatty acids can be made. That due to mineral acids is caused by diets too rich in acid ash foods.

2. To prevent the first kind the diet should contain only regulated amounts of cream, butter, fats and oils. It should contain only a limited amount of proteins, since 45 per cent of protein foods are available for making of fats. It should consist largely of skim milk, buttermilk, vegetables, fruits, breads and cereals; and butter, eggs and meats in limited amounts.

To prevent the second kind the diet should consist principally of milk, vegetables and fruits. Breads, cereals, meats and eggs are to be eaten in small quantities only.

5,000-Year-Old Objects Of Culture Are Unearthed

Central European Finds, Throwing Light on Life of Earliest Bronze Age People, Are Announced by Field Director.

Philadelphia, Oct. 19. (A.P.)—Objects belonging to a period of culture more than 5,000 years old have been unearthed by the central European expedition of the University of Pennsylvania Museum, of Philadelphia, and the Peabody Museum, Cambridge.

Announcement of the discoveries was contained in a report from Dr. Vladimir J. Fewkes, a field director of expedition, made public here tonight. The objects included pottery vessels, bronze earrings, brackets, arrowheads and iron knives. They revealed, Dr. Fewkes stated, a settlement of people belonging to the earliest bronze age.

"The second summer's work of the expedition," Dr. Fewkes' report said, "has produced a number of interesting and important finds. In the course of our excavations at Horovice, southwest of Prague, in Czechoslovakia, we have uncovered objects that point to Slavic burials of the late bronze and early iron age.

"In addition to this, we have carried on extensive digging at Homolka, northwest of Prague, where the finds reveal a settlement of people belonging to the so-called Nordic phase of the Eneolithic, or earliest bronze age period, 5,000 years ago.

"When the whole site has been completely dug, it will mark the first time in the history of European archeology that a primitive Nordic settlement has been excavated.

"In addition to the Eneolithic objects types of very primitive pottery have come to light which indicate that the site was possibly occupied over a long period or perhaps that in this region a number of different cultures met and later merged into one.

"Extensive excavations have been carried on at Chrastany, west of Prague, where objects representative of Neolithic and bronze age cultures were found. The material recovered was most important, including some beautiful bronze age pottery and a perforated hoe of the same period.

"The whole central European region is archeologically very important and as yet little understood, and when the finds of the expedition have been studied and the results published no little light will be thrown on the prehistory of man in Europe."

CRASH VICTIM DIES IN FREDERICKSBURG

CHARGES MAY BE FILED

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 19.—Terrell Seay, 26, of Mineral, Louisa County, died in the Mary Washington Hospital here early this morning of injuries received about 9 o'clock last night when the car in which he was driving with four companions crashed into a tree near New Bridge, Spotsylvania County, 15 miles west of Fredericksburg. The death marked the fourth in the vicinity from auto accidents since Friday night, when three North Carolina college students in Spotsylvania County were killed 10 miles south of here on the Jefferson Davis highway when their car was in collision with a towed moving van.

In the machine with Seay was his brother, Ashby Seay, James Taitey, Charles Knight and N. A. Knight, the driver, all of Mineral, and who suffered minor injuries. Terrell Seay was thrown from the car by the impact, his head striking the tree and fracturing his skull.

Charges of involuntary manslaughter are expected to be preferred against Chanley McComb and Charles Murray, of Richmond, drivers of the two moving vans into which the college men's car crashed. They have been released in bail of $1,000 each.

The parents of Henry Chapman, of Hagerstown, Md.; James Johnson, of Trenton, N. J., and Fred Ingram, of High Point, N. C., the dead youths, were here yesterday attending to the transfer of the bodies to their respective homes. Dean Wanamaker, of Duke University, is in Fredericksburg today to conduct a personal investigation of the tragedy.

The condition of Thomas J. Miller, of Baltimore, and James Jarrett, of Thomasville, N. C., who were injured in the crash, remains unchanged.

Elephant Topples Over Near Circus, Killing Boy

Blackpool, England, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—A circus elephant which was brushing against a railing along a pathway near the circus here today lost its balance and toppled over, killing an 11-year-old boy. The boy, Joseph Robert Elgey, walking along the pathway, had tripped and fallen just as the elephant toppled. The big animal's knee came down on the boy's back, killing him instantly.

An eyewitness of the accident said the elephant appeared to be quite peaceable. After killing the boy it rose and stood still until led away by attendants.

FLORIDA GOVERNOR TO BE INVESTIGATED

Executive Asked Quiz Into Charges Brought by Certain Newspapers.

LINK TO CAPONE HINTED

Tallahassee, Fla., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Charges brought by certain newspapers of the State against Gov. Doyle E. Carlton will be investigated by a circuit court grand jury, which opens its sessions here tomorrow.

Grand jury investigation was requested by the governor October 6 in a letter to Judges E. C. Love and J. B. Johnson, of the Second Judicial Circuit. In the letter the governor said: "Two or three newspapers of the State have brought against State officials, primarily the governor, insinuations and charges of bribery and illicit connection with the Zuta and Capone element."

Declaring these charges cast a reflection not only on officials, but on the State as a whole, the governor requested the grand jury investigation.

Subpenas were issued for Fred Eberhardt, Tallahassee, editor and publisher of the Florida State News, and E. T. Hollingsworth, editor of the South Jacksonville Herald.

State's Attorney George W. Walker will direct the investigation.

Eberhardt, one of three men arrested in Jacksonville on a charge of conspiracy to procure the assassination of the governor, but later freed after a preliminary hearing, said he welcomed investigation by the grand jury if the whole matter of his charges against the governor would be considered.

Mrs. Keith Miller Lands in Arizona

British Woman Flier Is Seeking West-East Air Record.

Winslow, Ariz., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Mrs. Keith Miller, British flier, landed here at 6:29 (Mexican standard time) tonight, completing the first leg of her transcontinental flight in pursuit of the women's record. She left Los Angeles at 1:10 p. m. (Pacific standard time) and will remain here overnight.

Mrs. Miller said she expected to reach Valley Stream, N. Y., Tuesday afternoon after spending tomorrow night in Indianapolis. The record she hopes to break was established yesterday by Laura Ingalls, diminutive St. Louis flier, who landed in New York after spending 25 hours 35 minutes in the air on her jaunt from Los Angeles.

Mrs. Miller said with good weather she hoped to reach New York in 20 hours of flying time. The British flier clipped four hours 43 minutes off Miss Ingalls' women's East-West record by flying from New York to Los Angeles in 25 hours 44 minutes.

WAR CORRESPONDENCE IN FILES REVEALED

mat said he had "best reason to believe Germany will welcome mediation of (President Wilson) and any steps he may take looking to peace."

Had Meeting With Kaiser.

This message was sent to the State Department by Ambassador Gerard after a lengthy conversation with the kaiser. A few days later word came from Madrid that King Alfonso considered the time favorable and was ready to cooperate with President Wilson to obtain peace.

Throughout the year talk of peace revived sporadically, becoming particularly prominent on September 25 through a request by Germany that if President Wilson would make an offer of good offices in general terms Germany would accept and be ready to send delegates to a peace conference. In October the British Ambassador informed the Secretary of State that his government regarded the German peace moves as "insincere" and as propaganda "to throw the onus of continuing the war onto the allies."

Other overtures were made, mainly informally, in Germany and Austria-Hungary with a view to bringing about an end of the war.

Talk of peace also continued in the other belligerent countries and was the subject of extensive discussions, the documents showed, among the diplomats of neutral powers throughout the world.

Definite Offer Sent.

The central powers on December 12 communicated a definite peace offer to the allies which was transmitted by the American Secretary of State to the representatives here of the allies on December 16 for presentation to the governments concerned. The overtures of the central powers were turned down by the allies.

"In reality the overture made by the central powers is but an attempt calculated to work upon the evolution of the war and of finally imposing a German peace," the allied governments' combined note, forwarded by the American Ambassador in France, William G. Sharp, to the State Department December 30, 1916, said.

The documents dealing with the question of neutral rights, most of which previously had been published, traced the development of American policy on this question, and culminated in the United States' declaration to Germany that continued unrestricted submarine warfare would lead to this country's entrance into the war.

LOUISIANA TOWNS SHAKEN BY QUAKE

Georgetown University seismograph a few minutes after it occurred, according to the Rev. Frederick W. Sohon, who is in charge of the earthquake recording machine.

Father Sohon told The Post that the record here was received at 7:22 o'clock. By New Orleans time the shock occurred about 6:15 o'clock. There is an hour's difference in time between the two cities and the balance was needed for transmission of the shock. Father Sohon said that earthquakes in the Mississippi Valley have been recorded before. The shock was comparatively faint, he said, and it was quite remarkable that any record was received here at all.

Just half an hour before, an earthquake of far greater severity was recorded, according to the local university earthquake observer. It was at sea, out of the area of ships, and consequently caused no interest. Once or more earthquake shocks are recorded every day on the Georgetown University seismograph. Fifty-two separate shocks were recorded in September, five being of importance.

Pandit Nehru, Indian Leader, Rearrested

Allahabad, India, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The president of the All-Indian National Congress, Jawaharlal Nehru, who recently was released from jail, was rearrested tonight in connection with a speech he delivered to a conference of congress volunteers earlier in the day.

Pandit Nehru was to have addressed another meeting tonight, but had decided not to do so in addressing any public meetings at Allahabad for two months. His first imprisonment came at the start of the campaign of civil disobedience.

POLITICIANS CALLED IN PAROLE INQUIRY

FEE OF $11,000 FIGURES

Chicago, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—State Senator Victor P. Michel, of Peoria, and Chauncey H. Jenkins, former judge, and State Director of Public Welfare under former Gov. Len Small, have been subpenaed by the Cook County grand jury for questioning in connection with a parole granted George "Red" Barker, labor union racketeer.

Barker was paroled from the penitentiary a year ago after serving less than a year of a ten year sentence for larceny. The parole was granted by the late Judge T. N. Greene, of Peoria, State Senator Michel appearing in court as Barker's counsel.

Assistant State's Attorney Homer Dodge, in announcing the subpenaes had been served, said they would be questioned concerning an $11,000 fee reported to have been raised to finance the Barker parole case. He refused to comment on Jenkins' alleged connection.

John Sheridan, secretary and treasurer of the Chicago Coal Teamsters Union, one of the organizations of which Barker is reputed to have seized control, previously had testified concerning the fund, Dodge said.

Three thousand dollars in cash and an $8,000 check, payable to Sheridan, were withdrawn from the union treasury at the time Barker gained his freedom, Dodge said. The money, according to the prosecutor, was contributed by coal hikers and teamsters who had no knowledge that it was to be used in behalf of the gangster.

Barker is now back in the penitentiary to serve the remainder of his term. He was returned there last week by Chief Justice of the Cook County Criminal Court John P. McGorty, who held the parole was granted by a court not having jurisdiction. He held also that the parole was null inasmuch as Barker since his release has been arrested on numerous charges ranging up to murder.

Laws to Aid Mediums Urged by Association

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Legislation protecting certified mediums "in the legitimate exercise of their religious practices" was urged in resolutions adopted yesterday by the National Spiritualist Association, in convention here. The same resolution advocated legislation to punish "the frauds and charlatans who impose on the public under the guise of mediumship."

Joseph P. Whitwell, St. Paul, Minn., was reelected president; Thomas Grimshaw, Whitewater, Wash., vice president; Harry P. Strack, Washington, secretary, and Frank Joseph, Chicago, treasurer. Kansas City was selected as the 1931 convention city.

Four in Family Burned to Death

Five Others Badly Hurt as Farmer Pours Kerosene on Fire.

Parsons, Kans., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Ed Kennedy, 36, Big Island farmer, and three members of his family burned to death last night in a fire caused by an explosion of kerosene sprayed into a heating stove. The farmer's home was destroyed. The victims, besides Kennedy were Marvin Kennedy, his 6-year-old son and Edna Tyler, 11 and Harold Tyler, 4, his stepchildren.

Mrs. Kennedy, 40, was in a dangerous condition in a Parsons hospital tonight. Charles Tyler, 16, eldest child in the family of seven children, who was burned critically in a futile attempt to rescue his sister, Edna, and the youngest child, Bernard Kennedy, 6 weeks old, also were in the hospital.

Edward Kennedy, 9, and Mary Ellen Kennedy, 4, escaped uninjured. Kennedy, whose efforts to kindle the smouldering fire resulted in the blast, rescued one child and reentered the home to save another when he was trapped.

Manchuria Denies Russia's Charges

Has Been Active in Fighting Anti-Soviet Workers, She Declares.

Moscow, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Newspapers today published the reply of the Mukden (Manchurian) Government to a recent note sent by the Soviet Government demanding that the anti-Soviet activities of the White Russian Organization in Manchuria be suppressed.

The Chinese authorities denied they had been inactive in proceeding against the White Russians. The note said they had taken all the necessary measures outlined in the Khabarovsk Protocol by which they were to attempt to abolish the White Russian societies and terminate their activities against the Soviets.

Commenting on the Mukden note, Izvestia declared it could not be accepted as satisfactory because the assertions of the Chinese authorities were contradictory to concrete facts mentioned in the Soviet's note.

Nine Fatalities, Blamed On Liquor, Start Quiz

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Nine men died today, apparently from bad liquor, and an investigation was started by health authorities, police and prohibition agents.

Hospital authorities expressed the belief the liquor may have emanated from the same source that spread death through Newark, N. J., recently. All of the nine died in Manhattan, three of them on the lower East Side, where deaths from poisonous alcohol called "smoke" have been numerous.

German City Breaks Up Military Drill by Reds

Dresden, Germany, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Military practice by the local Communist Antifascist Society was broken up last night by police near the suburb of Heidemuehle.

All members of the society, which is known as Antifa, were arrested and police are investigating purposes of the military practice, which they had suspected for a long time was taking place.

Neuritis!

"The pains from Neuritis are gone. Mountain Valley Mineral Water brought me relief," writes a lady who had almost given up hope of ever getting relief. The pains of Neuritis are torturing—only those who suffer really know the awful agony it brings. But there is no need to lose hope—Neuritis will respond to proper treatment. The above letter and hundreds of similar ones in our files prove the merits of Mountain Valley Mineral Water from Hot Springs, Arkansas. Its benefits are due to its alkaline minerals which tend to neutralize the acids which are irritating the nerves—and to the help which it gives to nature in eliminating these acids and other trouble-making toxins through the kidneys. Nature can help you. Read our booklet. Phone for a copy today. Met. 1062.

ONE HURT SEVERELY IN TALLYHO WRECK

FOUR HORSES RUN AWAY

Special to The Washington Post.

Warrenton, Va., Oct. 19.—When the four horses drawing the tallyho of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Winmill swerved on a steep grade in front of the courthouse in Warrenton at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Mrs. Winmill, who was driving, attempted to straighten them out, causing the vehicle to make a sharp turn and go over on its side.

The frightened horses ran away up Winchester street, being brought to a halt when the tallyho, which was being dragged on its side, struck a heavy culvert. The accident occurred at the intersection of Winchester street and the Lee highway.

The occupants, Mr. and Mrs. Winmill, Mrs. Winmill's father, Mr. Townsend, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Grace, of Warrenton, and the two grooms were thrown from the vehicle. Dr. Frank Folk was the first to reach the injured, and had Mr. and Mrs. Winmill taken at once to the Fauquier County Hospital, where it was found that Mrs. Winmill was suffering from cuts and bruises about the head and body, although not seriously injured. Mr. Winmill is more seriously hurt, but his condition was not immediately determined. His physicians, Drs. Davis and Knight, think he may have a fractured hip. X-ray pictures were taken to disclose the extent of his injuries. Both were resting easily late this evening. None of the other occupants was injured, other than severe shaking-ups.

Mr. Winmill is a member of the New York brokerage firm of Gude, Winmill & Co. and holds a seat on the New York Stock Exchange. The Winmills spend the greater part of their time now at their country place, Clovelly, near Warrenton, and engage in the hunting around this section of the State.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Winmill were hosts at their fashionable Clovelly estate at Warrenton a week ago Saturday at a dance and raccoon hunt attended by Mrs. Elizabeth Walter Converse, of Chevy Chase, and David Drage, of Kansas City, Mo., who were killed early last Sunday morning when the automobile in which they were returning to Washington crashed into two trees and a telephone pole alongside the cemetery at Falls Church, Va.

Both the victims were socially prominent, Mrs. Converse having made her debut here in 1923, and Mr. Drage being a member of a well-known family in Kansas City.

Reno Ring Is Designed For Divorcees to Wear

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—A "Reno ring" to distinguish divorcees from married women, single women or widows is an idea that has occurred to Mrs. Nan Barclay, recently divorced from McClelland Barclay, noted illustrator.

Promoter Leaves; Long Dance Ends

Chicago, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—This was the one thing these marathon endurance dancers—they had been going since August 31—would not endure.

Nine of them were left, stumbling groggily about the floor of a northside ballroom last night. Their perseverance had been unduly taxed through the evening by the disappearance, consecutively, of the trainers, nurses, judges, musicians and cooks. But thoughts of the $2,700 in cash awards for the three surviving couples kept them on their blistered and bunioned feet.

They had just entered the 1,160th hour when a detective took the center of the floor to make an announcement. One of the promoters, he said, had left, and the gross receipts of the entertainment had been tied up in a court action. The dancers quit.

BOY, 12, IS CHARGED WITH OWNING STILL

Alleged to Have Been Caught With His Mother at Liquor Plant.

FACES REFORM SCHOOL

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 19.—A 12-year-old boy faces prosecution here on charges of manufacturing ardent spirits and possessing a still, mash and liquor.

The child is Roy Shiflet, son of Morton Shiflet, of the Boonesville section, who is alleged to have been caught at a still site with his mother during a recent raid. The woman was arrested and the son was summoned to appear for trial before Judge J. P. Grove, of the juvenile and domestic relations court, but to date has not put in his appearance.

Should the boy be convicted, he would be turned over to the Virginia department of public welfare, to be sent to a reform school for an indeterminate sentence, or else paroled into the custody of responsible persons.

Roy, however, is not the youngest alleged distiller arrested in Albemarle County. On April 10, Judge Grove convicted Paul Garrison, about 10 years old, of manufacturing ardent spirits and paroled him into the custody of his father.

Prohibition cases against youths under 16 years of age are not at all unusual in the local courts.

Swiftly and surely, The Ford Truck makes its rounds

FOR the business of quick service, where the trips are short and many, the Ford 1½-ton truck is well suited because of its sturdy design and careful construction. The quick starts, the sudden stops of hauling through heavy traffic serve to emphasize the value of the excellent materials built into the truck.

In such businesses and in numerous others, Ford trucks meet the stern requirements of daily operation through every season with faithful, swift and economical performance.

The engine, for example, develops forty horsepower at 2200 revolutions per minute—a medium engine speed. This, by reducing the wear on moving parts, adds to the life of the truck, while the four-speed transmission increases the range of speed and power. More than twenty ball and roller bearings, at important points in the chassis, ease the strain of schedules that demand speedy and reliable transportation.

Bearings and reciprocating parts are held to close limits of accuracy by means of precision gages in the hands of expert workmen, and extra strength is contributed by the use of forty different kinds of steel in the manufacture of the truck.

Ford trucks are so designed that they can be economically adapted to a large number of businesses. It is possible to procure the Ford truck with a wide variety of bodies, in two different chassis lengths, with single or dual wheels, with open or closed cabs, and with high or low rear axle gear ratios. For light delivery purposes, there is a selection of commercial cars available on the Model A chassis. Go to your Ford dealer, and examine these units in detail.

NEW DWELLINGS OFFER VAST POSSIBILITIES, SAYS FISHER

Home-Building Might Vie With Automobile Industry

By IRVING FISHER,
Professor of Economics, Yale University.

Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 18.—Almost everybody agrees with President Hoover in his statement that the greatest present field for the absorption of surplus national energy lies in better housing. It is encouraging, therefore, to find the record of residential building contracts mounting. September saw an increase. Contracts for home building rose over August by 19 per cent, in sharp contrast with the usual seasonal decline of nearly 4 per cent. Contrasted with September, 1929, residential building contracts showed a decline in September, 1930, of less than $29,000,000. This is the smallest spread thus far. Vice President Holden, of the Dodge Corporation, says between any 1930 month and its corresponding month last year. In metropolitan and up-State New York, throughout New England and the Middle Atlantic States; in southern Michigan; the area about Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City, a residential upturn gives hope of trade revival.

Most Important Figures.

How important the residential figures are is indicated by the record in fourteen cities of half a million population or over during the nine-year period ended December 31 last. The Federal Bureau of Labor Statistics reports that three-fifths of the seventeen billions of dollars spent during this period in the fourteen cities was for new residences. Only one-fifth was spent in erecting commercial buildings, and the remaining fifth was used for public buildings and works, including churches and theaters.

Mr. Hoover urges that the buying of homes on the installment plan be put on the same footing as the installment purchase of automobiles. It is quite true that the home is as good collateral as an automobile. A car lasts only seven years, if well cared for, but a home may last fifty. Why should it cost more, in interest and in red tape, to buy a home, with its strong bonds of necessity and sentiment to constrain the buyer to keep up his payments, than it costs to finance the purchase of an automobile?

Need Better Planning.

The President might have carried his comparison further. The world's best designers have been retained by the motor-car companies to turn out models which, even in the cheapest lines, meet all requirements of beauty and convenience. Not so in the designing of homes. The mass of the American people can buy cheap cars in exquisite models, but they must put up with speculative housing; that is cheap housing, with ugly interiors unhandily arranged; with shoddy buildings, erected with little regard to proper relationship of houses and apartments to facilities for school, recreation and shopping.

With the present aggregations of capital awaiting favorable opportunity for investment why not put them into finance and development companies that will apply the most modern principles of home architecture and town planning to the needs of the masses as successfully as motor-car transportation has been provided for the masses?

The family of moderate means is the best sales prospect of the home-building industry. As it succeeds in solving the problem of mass needs in homes, this key industry will aid in solving the problem of reviving prosperity. This is true, because he who buys a new home must purchase with it the finished products to the output of which all industry is devoted. Equipping the household means supplying most individual wants and desires. When a new house is to be furnished it sets up impulses of demand that run the whole gamut of trade. At present there is the hope that the upward turn in home building, which has slumped most during the depression, is near realization. If the next year sees continuing favorable reports in this industry there will be no question about the revival of prosperity.

INDUSTRIAL STOCKS REACH NEW LOWS

PARIS IN SEVERE BREAK

By E. W. DIEFENDORF.
(Irving Fisher Service.)

The index of common industrial stocks suffered in a heavy selling attack that brought the closing figures of last week to 107.1, only 7.1 per cent above the 1926 average level and 2.2 per cent below the previous low of 109.5 on October 11.

Fourteen of the twenty groups closed last week at their 1930 lows, with the motors group off by 4.8 per cent on October 17; coppers off by 4.4 per cent from its previous low on October 10; electrical equipment off by 3.5 per cent from October 11; oils off by 2.3 per cent from October 10; chemicals off by 2.2 per cent from October 9; agricultural equipment and auto accessories off by 1.6 per cent from October 11; stores off by 1.3 per cent from October 9; household products off by 1.1 per cent from October 10; rails and utilities off by 1 per cent from October 11; steels off by 1 per cent from October 9, and foods off by 0.5 per cent from October 11.

No one of the remaining six groups advanced by more than 1 per cent from its recent lows.

Daily Value of Trading Up.

The average daily value of tradings in common industrial stocks on the New York Stock Exchange rose by nearly 9 per cent last week to $126,900,000. The value of tradings in all stocks rose by but 5 per cent, to $167,300,000.

Following the sensational sessions of a week ago, turnover was back on a less speculative basis toward last week's close.

All but four groups showed increased values traded last week. The agricultural equipment, stores, coppers and household products groups dropped off in value by less than $600,000 each. Of the sixteen groups that rose only four groups were up by more than $1,000,000 each, these being the radios and amusement, foods, steels and motors groups.

Paris Level in Severe Break.

Liquidation brought the Paris bourse into a nervous state as the prices of leading stocks broke during the first three days of last week. Heavy selling ceased toward the close of last week, but the general price level of stocks made a slight advance, the weekly index closing at the 1926 average level of 100.0. It dropped last week by 8 per cent. The bourse has been extremely weak during the past four weeks, showing a total loss of 17 per cent from the index of September 19, 1930.

The situation differs in London and Berlin. In both cities stock price levels were firm and buying increased. The index for London held steady at the low, following the preceding week's drop of 6 per cent. Stock price levels in Berlin advanced by 0.8 per cent, as compared with a drop of 7 per cent for the preceding week to a low of 64.1.

Investment Stocks at 1930 Low.

Price indexes of investment and semiinvestment groups of stocks on the New York Stock Exchange dropped at last week's close below their October 11 lows by 1.9 and 2.7 per cent, respectively.

The speculative group was affected less at the close of the week, having dropped to its low on October 14. It closed the week less than 1 per cent above their low.

At last week's close the investment group was but 1.4 per cent above its November 13 level; while the semi-investment and speculative groups were 23 and 27 per cent, respectively, below their November lows.

Paradox in Bank Runs.

No bank could escape failure if a large percentage of its note holders and depositors should simultaneously demand cash payment. The paradox of a run on the bank is well expressed by the case of a man who inquired of his bank whether it had the cash available for paying the amount of his deposit, saying, "If you can pay me, I don't want it; but if you can't, I do."

Not Always First Cost Counts.

It is important that the buyer should carefully avoid the error of believing that the prices and values are controlled by what things have cost to produce in the past. For instance, if a railway has been built and located unwisely its value may fall far short of its original cost. The same principle holds true, to varying degrees, of merchandise or any other smaller commodity.

BOND PRICES STEADY IN NEW YORK MART

INDUSTRIALS SHOW GAIN

(Irving Fisher Service.)

Checking of the decline in price of the leading bond issues on the New York Stock Exchange, which brought the Irving Fisher index from the year's high of 102.2, on September 30, to 101.3 on October 11, is now noted, with trading back to the year's average. Bond price levels have steadied, closing last week up by 0.01 per cent from the preceding week's close.

In the five sessions following Saturday, October 4, trading in bonds trebled from $5,453,084 to $16,779,481—the third largest single day's value traded this year. Trading last week dropped back to a more normal level as prices steadied.

During the fourteen sessions from September 30 to October 10, the bond index dropped by 0.89 per cent. This is at an average rate of 0.06 per cent per day. It shows a loss by 55 per cent of the total gain of 1.65 per cent from July 1 to September 30, at the average rate of 0.02 per cent per day for a period of 74 days.

Railroad bonds suffered the most severe break during the week ended October 10. The first-grade rails group has steadied, closing the week up by 0.17 per cent from the preceding week's close and up by 0.19 per cent from the recent low of 104.9; at this level the index showed a 1.19 per cent decline from October 6 high of 106.1. The second-grade rails group continued to show declining price levels through October 15; it was then at 100.2, the record low for the past two years. It had dropped by 4.31 per cent from September 26, showing a total loss of 6.1 per cent from the year's high of 106.7 on March 24.

The utilities group of bonds has remained comparatively firm for the last two weeks. It closed last week only 0.42 per cent below the year's high of 103.7 on September 30. Government issues, both foreign and United States have moved in a similar way.

The industrial group has moved in line with the railroad groups, dropping by 1.92 per cent from the September 17 high of 100.0 to the year's low of 97.7 on October 11. But it made substantial gains to the week's close, with a net gain of 0.24 per cent.

COMMODITY PRICE LEVELS STEADYING

DOLLAR IS BUYING MORE

The Irving Fisher wholesale commodity price level, which has been in process of steadying, continued along the same path last week. The index (1926 equals 100) dropped by 0.24 per cent to 82.7, following a rise of 0.73 per cent the preceding week. A check in the fall of the commodity price level is considered to be of aid toward rehabilitating business.

Since the week ended August 23 wholesale prices have shown a definitely firmer trend, with the number of weeks in which the price level rose balancing the number in which it fell. During this time the index varied only 1.3 index points from the high of 83.6 on September 20 to the low of 82.3 on October 4. In this period of steadying the individual commodities were very active in price changes—both up and down. Last week, for instance, there were 60 per cent falls and 40 per cent rises. With commodities going down, the purchasing power of the dollar rose last week by 0.25 per cent to 120.9, or almost 21 cents more than the dollar of 1926.

October 18	82.7	120.9
October 11	82.9	120.6
October 4	83.3	121.5
Year ago	94.6	105.7
September average	83.3	120.1

Group Price Indexes Sag.

The Irving Fisher group wholesale commodity price indexes moved in line last week with the all-commodities index, excepting the fuel and lighting, chemicals and miscellaneous groups, which made slight gains.

Prices in the commodity market were generally weaker, with raw materials off by 0.24 per cent following the preceding week's rise of more than 2 per cent; semi-manufactured goods off by 0.40 per cent, a slight improvement over the preceding week's drop of 0.53 per cent; and finished goods off by 0.36 per cent after no movement in the preceding week. Corn, hay, beef, potatoes, hams, hides, copper and zinc were among the leading falls that counteracted lesser rises in cotton, wheat, oats, flour, sugar, burlap and tin.

Five groups dropped to new lows, these being the semimanufactured goods, finished goods, textiles, metals and building materials groups.

In spite of the recent weakness in commodity price levels the agricultural products index, off by 0.48 per cent last week, is still 0.4 per cent above its recent low, while the non-agricultural products index, off by 0.12 per cent last week, is 0.5 per cent above its recent low. The purchasing power of farm products dropped by 0.29 per cent last week, due to the fact that the sharpest falls were in the agricultural group. Farm products dropped by 0.94 per cent last week, compared with a sharp gain of 1.06 per cent the preceding week

Foreign Levels Irregular.

A slight feeling of optimism for the situation in foreign wholesale commodity markets is based on the irregular movements of the price levels in England, France, Germany and Italy. The consistent downward movement, which has brought the price levels in these countries in sympathetic movements to record lows during the past year, has been broken. Prices show considerable fluctuation, although the indexes have continued to drop off at a greatly reduced rate.

The index for Germany was off by 0.44 per cent, showing weakness after the preceding week's substantial gain of 0.87 per cent. The market in England continued weak, as indicated by a drop of 0.82 per cent to the record low of 72.2. Conditions in France improved last week, as the index rose by 0.26 per cent, following marked weakness during the last three weeks.

A Loan Is Defined.

A loan, as a matter of actual fact, is nothing more or less than an exchange of present money for future money. As we all know, perhaps only too well—these two moneys are not usually the same.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

General Foods.

R. F. H.—I am writing for some information and an opinion on General Foods.

Answer—The stock is favorably regarded as a long pull proposition. Earnings are holding up well and profits for the current year should be in the neighborhood of $3.89 reported for last year despite the moderate increase in capitalization. Dividend requirements are being well covered and around its current price of 50 the stock yields 6 per cent from the $3 dividend.

Operating economies have improved the percentage of net profits to sales, this ratio the first six months being 16.90 per cent, as compared with 15.5 per cent last year. Profits for the first six months amounted to $2.01 a share as against $1.80 in the first half of 1929. The company is in good shape and the stock may be considered attractive as a speculative investment.

Hershey Chocolate.

G. T. B.—Kindly give me some information regarding Hershey Chocolate.

Answer—The remainder of the outstanding 6 per cent prior preferred, amounting to $3,900,000, will be retired November 15 next at $107.50 a share and accrued dividends. Retirement of the 6 per cent preferred will leave only the $4 convertible preference stock and common outstanding. Through conversion of the preference into the common on a share for share basis, there will eventually be only one class of stock outstanding. The common pays dividends of $5 a year and is selling for ten times last year's earnings and at current prices yields about 6¼ per cent. The stock appears to have merit for long-term holding.

Paramount Publix.

G. B. H.—Kindly give me some information and an opinion of Paramount Publix as an investment holding.

Answer—Estimated earnings for the first nine months this year are $4.59 a share, indicating that the $4 annual dividend has already been earned. Around its current price of 50 the stock yields about 8 per cent and is considered a speculative. Earnings for the first nine months are about 39 per cent above those for the corresponding period a year ago, and for the twelve months should set up a new high period. Expansion has not been on a scale to weaken the financial position, as cash and securities are in excess of $10,000,000. The stock may be considered a good long-term speculative investment.

First National Stores.

T. V. L.—What is your opinion of First National Stores? Is the business of this company holding up?

Answer—Dollar sales have increased this year despite lower prices. Net income has expanded steadily in recent years, and for the twelve months ended March 31 equaled $5.30 a share. The company operates one of the largest grocery chains in New England and continues to expand, which accounts for the increase of 2.3 per cent in sales for the thirteen weeks ended September 27, last. Dividends are $2.50 a year. The stock may be considered a fair speculative-investment issue.

Motor Wheel.

J. A. W.—Will you be kind enough to advise me of the value as an investment of Motor Wheel and give me the benefit of any information available about this stock?

Answer—On the basis of present income yield, better than 16½ per cent, the stock looks attractive from a speculative-investment viewpoint. However, the outlook for the automobile accessories companies for the final half of this year is none too promising. Reflecting a further decline in the demand for its products, earnings for second quarter of 1930 equaled only 46 cents a share, as against $1.61 a share for corresponding quarter of 1929. Profit for first six months of 1930 equaled only $1.17 a common share, comparing with $2.95 for initial half of 1929.

Based on first six months earnings, it would appear unlikely that company will earn its full $3 dividend, in the entire twelvemonth; in fact, now estimated that earnings for that period will amount to only $2 per common share. It appears questionable, therefore, if current dividend rate will be maintained. Because of this, stock does not look so inviting as at first glance.

General Mills.

E. C. W.—Please give me some information and an opinion regarding the status of General Mills stock.

Answer—General Mills is the leading flour milling company. People close to the inside estimate profits for the current fiscal year at $6 per share, which would be twice the $3 dividend. General Mills hedges 100 per cent on its grain and flour so that losses in buying will not be sustained on account of market fluctuations.

Mills of the company are close to the supply of raw materials and the principal markets, and the company can undersell other national brands of flour with its "Gold Medal" product. The stock may be considered an attractive speculative investment for the pull.

Packard; Continentals.

E. L. F.—Kindly advise me regarding Packard Motors and Continental Motors.

Answer—Even though Packard Motors, paying 25 cents a share quarterly in dividends at present may be bought to yield a return of approximately 8.89 per cent, the stock is hardly to be considered in the nature of a desirable investment. It is, in its present status, highly speculative, particularly as it is felt in certain quarters that directors this year may have to pay part of the annual $1 dividend out of surplus.

Continental Motors is even more highly speculative than Packard. On January 30, last, the common dividend was passed. For six months ended April 30, 1930, company reported a deficit of $884,208, or a loss of 42 cents a common share, compared with net income of $582,418, or 28 cents a share, for corresponding 1929 period. Would advise that you avoid these stocks, especially Continental Motors.

A letter from Mr. Charles R. Hook, President of the Company, to which reference is hereby made, and of which copies will be furnished upon request, is summarized by him as follows:

The Company is the largest manufacturer in the world specializing in high grade iron and steel sheets. Directly or through subsidiaries the Company also manufactures culverts, bolts and nuts, reinforcing rods, bars, forged steel wheels and wire products.

The Company has developed and patented a method for the production of iron and steel sheets and light plates by a continuous rolling process from the ingot to the finished product which has been in successful operation for over six years and has revolutionized the sheet industry. General licenses for the use of this patented process have been issued to The Weirton Steel Company, The Wheeling Steel Corporation, The U. S. Steel Corporation, The Republic Steel Corporation, The Otis Steel Company, Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, Gulf States Steel Company and The Great Lake Steel Corporation.

Purpose of Issue

The proceeds of the sale of these Notes will be used to retire indebtedness incurred in connection with the Company's recently completed expansion program and will provide additional working capital.

Balance Sheet

The consolidated balance sheet of the Company and its subsidiaries as of June 30, 1930, adjusted to give effect to this financing, shows net tangible assets, after deducting all liabilities other than funded debt, of $117,897,704. Total funded debt amounts to $44,291,300. Current assets, including the proceeds of this financing, amount to $44,559,804 and current liabilities to $3,411,187.

Earnings

Consolidated net income of the Company and its subsidiaries (not including Sheffield Steel Corporation which was acquired in 1930), after depreciation and depletion but before interest and Federal income tax, for the two years ended December 31, 1928 and 1929 (the first two years in which earnings of the Columbia Steel Co. and Norton Iron Works were included), as certified to by Messrs. Haskins & Sells, amounted to $6,185,097 and $8,307,239, respectively, or more than 2.8 times and 3.8 times the annual interest requirements on the total funded debt to be outstanding upon completion of this financing.

For the six months ended June 30, 1930, such net income (including earnings of Sheffield Steel Corporation), as reported by the Company, amounted to $2,760,504 or at the rate of more than 2½ times such interest requirements.

The unsatisfactory industrial situation now prevailing will undoubtedly be further reflected in the current earnings of the Company, but there has recently been a substantial increase in the volume of bookings which, it is hoped, marks a definite improvement in the demand for the Company's products.

Equity

Dividends on the Company's common stock are being paid at the rate of $2 per share in cash and 5% in common stock per annum. The outstanding preferred and common stocks at present quoted prices have an indicated market value of more than $60,000,000.

Authorized and presently to be issued, $15,000,000. Coupon Notes in denomination of $1,000. Interest payable May 1 and November 1, without deduction for any Federal income tax up to 2%. Principal and interest payable at the principal office of Guaranty Trust Company of New York.
Redeemable as a whole or in part at the option of the Company at any time on 30 days notice at 101% and accrued interest to and including November 1, 1931; thereafter to and including November 1, 1932, at 100½% and accrued interest, and thereafter at 100% and accrued interest.

WASHINGTON: MONDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1930. 15

MIDWEST ELEVENS, LED BY NOTRE DAME, LOOM BEST

Westbrook Pegler Says

Special to The Washington Post.

UNDOUBTEDLY, Joseph McCarthy was in there thinking hard, according to his custom, when he signed the papers before the talking machines as manager of the New York Yankees, but, if it isn't asking too much, perhaps Mr. McCarthy will explain in his first series of essays just what he was thinking about. I am assuming that Joseph will write a series of essays, if he has done so overnight, because journalism and the management of the New York baseball clubs are a common occupation, one and inseparable, like football coaching and the testimonial business.

Inevitably, Mr. McCarthy will now commit literature, either consciously or otherwise, all material to be copyright, 1930, and reproduction in whole or in part unauthorized, and as a theme for one of his articles, if there are to be themes, I would suggest one beginning, "Well, fans, I want to take you into my confidence," and explaining just how the incident happened to happen.

Col. Jake Ruppert had just hired him a couple of weeks ago at a wage estimated variously and on the most unreliable authority at odd amounts between $25,000 and $40,000 a year for two years. The colonel was glad, McCarthy was glad he was glad and the talking-picture operators pressed the switch-buttons on their apparatus to record the stirring sporting spectacle of two sedentary sportsmen of quite mature years and figure signing their names to a mock document, with sound. People who have sat in at a Harvard-Yale game will understand the dramatic value of this moment.

Col. Ruppert Makes Speech.

Col. Ruppert made a speech in that clear, Harvard accent for which he is noted, not forgetting to mention a few of Mr. McCarthy's high qualities, and when these phrases had imprinted themselves on posterity's record of the scene, Mr. McCarthy rose to acknowledge his new employer's esteem. You will bear in mind that it was not for his charm nor his playing ability, which never was a major boast with Mr. McCarthy, that he had been selected to lead the Yankees at a salary of not more than $40,000 nor less than $25,000 a year for two years. It was for his mental alertness in critical moments. Mr. McCarthy was to do the thinking for the New York Yankees and, as this was a large moment in his life, the occasion was fraught with something on the order of significance. Mr. McCarthy faced the cameras, whooped slightly in that which, as to Mr. Al Smith, is facetiously called the larynx, and began.

"Col. Huston," said he.

"Ruppert! Ruppert!" his new employer exclaimed, probably with a pardonable sense of alarm for his $25,000 or $40,000 a year, as the case might be.

"Oh, yes; my mistake, Col. Ruppert," Mr. McCarthy amended.

Talking Pictures Retaken.

This faux pas necessitated a retake of the talking pictures, of course, but that was a mere mechanical detail, and of small moment, compared to the deeper implications of the episode.

Mr. McCarthy undoubtedly referred to Col. T. L. Huston, once a partner of Col. Jake Ruppert in the ownership of the Yankee concern, but a partner no longer, and one whose picture has been turned toward the wall in the halls of the firm, if, indeed, it has not been taken down entirely. Col. Huston has not been current in the baseball business since some five years back, and there was that about the affair which faintly suggested that Mr. McCarthy's thinking was five years to the rear of the present moment. It was reminiscent of the time the prize fight announcer introduced the late Luther McCarthy as Martin Luther, but considerably more so, because it did seem as though one engaged in the grave business of solemnizing his hire at a figure between $25,000 and $40,000, and especially one engaged for his mental alacrity, could remember the name of his new employer without prompting from the aforesaid.

Joseph McCarthy Embarrassed.

You may imagine Joseph McCarthy's embarrassment if your imagination runs to horrors, but even then it may be a strain on the imagination and there is, fortunately, no law compelling any one to dwell upon the incident. I have heard of a bridegroom, however, who addressed his bride as Ethel at the altar, though the fortunate damsel's name was Helen, and, at last reports, the mating had been congenial after a lapse of a longer time than the term of Mr. McCarthy's contract, so perhaps the unfortunate error can be charged to a similar state of fuddlement and forgiven. Still, I imagine that the little woman of the nuptial contretemps, in moments of minor domestic infelicity, must now and again remind herself, at least, of the time he called her out of her name at the altar rail and so, also, I fear me, will Col. Ruppert, when the Yankee team is doing not too well along in July or August, recall the moment when Joe McCarthy called him Col. Huston, and he, McCarthy, just fresh hired at something between $25,000 and $40,000 a year.

Hawks Battle Irvington to 0-0 Tie

District Club Shows Improved Form Before 3,000.

Both Foes Threaten; Visiting Stars Halted by Line Play.

BEFORE an enthusiastic crowd of 3,000 football fans, the Mohawk Athletic Club Eleven flashed a much improved brand of football than shown heretofore, to hold the highly touted Irvington Athletic Club, from Baltimore, containing several Naval Academy former stars, to a scoreless tie.

The almost flawless play of the Mohawk line caused the Marylanders to resort to an overhead attack with Tom Hamilton, former Annapolis star, on the throwning end, and Moret, also a former Annapolitan, and Clem Spring, former St. John's College speed boy, on the receiving end, but the alert Indian secondary defense prevented any of these overhead tosses to be converted into real scoring threats.

Hamilton Tosses Pass.

At the very outset, Hamilton passed to Spring successfully, but on the next play, a poor pass by Hughes, also a former Academy star, was recovered on the 30-yard line by O'Brien, Mohawk end. On the following play the Indians attempted a pass which was intercepted by Hamilton, who ran the ball back 40 yards to the local's 43-yard line. In the closing moments of the opening period, the Mohawks started a sustained drive, netting three successive first downs, but were halted on the 20-yard line. Except for a long 35-yard pass from Tom Hamilton to Paul Moret, and Fee Collier's attempted field goal from the 40-yard line, the rest of the first half resolved into a kicking duel between Hamilton and Collier.

Some costly fumbles by Pepco Barry, who had relieved Joe Sweeney, the final fumble being recovered on the Mohawk's 26 yard line, gave the invaders their best scoring chance. It was at this time that the Indian line flashed their best form of the day, taking the ball on downs on their own 18 yard line. At this point "Hooley" Gass, former Northern A. C. star, unleashed a 70 yard punt to the Baltimoreans 18 yard line, relieving a tight situation. At this point Hamilton made his best offensive threaat of the afternoon, a 25 yard broken field run offtackle, before being downed by Sweeney, safety man.

Lombard Recovers Fumble.

In the final period, Herman Lombard, husky Indian tackle, recovered an Irvington fumble on the invader's 25 yard line, but the local eleven was unable to gain. In the final moments of the game, Abbey passed successfully to Eddinger for a 20 yard gain, but a running attack was halted, and the game ended with two nearly successful passes from Abbey to O'Brien as the whistle ended the proceedings.

Lombard and Wondrack, former Maryland U. luminaries, played wonderful defensive games, as did Eddinger, local end. Moret and Hughes starred in the line for the Baltimoreans, while Tom Hamilton proved an offensive threat throughout, in addition to backing the Irvington line in great style.

The Mohawks hope to score their first victory of the season Wednesday night under the lights at Griffith Stadium when the crack Catonsville (Md.) Eleven will be entertained in a battle starting at 8:15 o'clock. While the Hawks are improving, they will have to be at top form to stop a club which includes in its line-up Sol Baker, star Baltimore line-plunger.

French Runner Breaks Record for 100 Meters

Paris, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Jules Ladoumegue, stellar French middle distance runner, today bettered the world's record for the one kilometer run, covering the distance in 2 minutes 23 3-5 seconds. The old record for 1,000 meters was 2:25 4-5, held by Dr. Otto Peltzer, of Germany.

This was the second world's record broken by Ladoumegue in the past two weeks, and both of them were lifted by the Frenchman from Peltzer. On October 5 Ladoumegue ran 1,500 meters in 3:49 1-5, to break Peltzer's mark of 3:51.

D.C. Endorses Champions' Tourney

Burnett Wins Beaver Dam Title; Shorey in Semifinals.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE announcement, published exclusively in The Post yesterday, the golfing season would close with a tournament in which the club champions and the winners of the club invitation events would compete in an all-champions competition, not only attracted wide attention yesterday among the local golfers but was received with universal approbation.

In all the clubs the event was heralded as a worth-while competition and will represent the cream of the Washington golfers, with the exception of Miller B. Stevinson, winner of the Washington Club invitation tournament, who yesterday announced that he would not play.

Albert E. Steinem, of the Woodmont Club, to whom credit must be given for suggesting this champion-of-champions event, held a conference yesterday with William G. Ilich, chairman of the golf committee of the Woodmont Club, and found Ilich enthusiastic over the proposition.

Woodmont Would Entertain.

"We will be glad to stage this tournament on the Woodmont course," said Ilich yesterday afternoon, "and we will take pleasure in entertaining the fourteen or fifteen players who will be eligible to compete. We will also provide a cup which will be emblematic of the champion-of-champions, although we hope that in the future the District Golf Association will make this competition an annual event and will sponsor it with an appropriate trophy. I think, however, that the event should be held on a weekday and not on Sunday, and I am in favor of making it a one-day event, say thirty-six holes medal play. It ought to be played in midweek, on some Wednesday or Thursday, after all the club championships have been settled. The date would probably be in the latter part of this month or in the first week of November."

All of the members of the Woodmont Club yesterday heartily agreed with Chairman Ilich as to the interest which would attach to a battle between club champions.

Roesch Endorses Move.

Frank K. Roesch, winner of the District amateur championship but also winner of the club championship at the Washington Golf and Country Club, said yesterday that he would gladly compete in the all-champions event and that he was surprised that such an event had not been scheduled long ago, Middleton Beaman, president of the Bannockburn Club, also added his indorsement, but suggested that the eligibility list should include winners of the club invitation tournaments.

With the details in charge of competent officials of the Woodmont Club, it now seems certain that the all-champions tournament will be played in the near future on the Woodmont course.

Burnett Wins Title At Beaver Dam.

Volney Burnett is the new champion of the Beaver Dam Club, the final round of 36 holes yesterday resulting in his victory over W. Bion Moore, the defending champion, 4 and 3. Burnett was 2 up at the end of the first eighteen holes, but the crucial point of the match was on the fourteenth hole of the second round, when Burnett laid his opponent a half-stymie, which gave him the hole, making him 3 up. After that, Burnett had no difficulty in annexing the match. H. C. Hodges won the championship in class B and A. France defeated D. P. Swope for the championship of class C. In the nonqualifiers contest in class A, the winner was G. Buckingham, who won with a birdie on the thirty-sixth hole, his opponent, A. J. Doyle, narrowly missing a putt which would have given him another birdie for a half. The summary:

Mrs. Middleton Beaman yesterday won the women's championship at the Bannockburn Golf Club, defeating Mrs. R. C. Dunbar in the final round, 5 and 4. Miss Elizabeth Harris was the winner of the second flight, defeating Mrs. A. H. Perley, 2 and 1. The summary:

First flight round—Mrs. R. C. Dunbar defeated Mrs. T. P. Hayden, 3 and 2. Miss I. M. Havey defeated Mrs. E. F. Burchard, 3 and 2. Mrs. Middleton Beaman defeated Mrs. Frank J. Pickett, 9 and 7. Miss Sue E. Gantt defeated Miss Florence Parker, 4 and 3.

Semifinal round—Mrs. Dunbar defeated Miss Havey, 5 and 4. Mrs. Beaman defeated Miss Gantt, 5 and 3. Final round—Mrs. Beaman defeated Mrs. Dunbar, 3 and 4.

Consolation—Mrs. Burchard defeated Mrs. Hayden, 1 up. Mrs. Pickett defeated Miss Parker, 5 and 3. Final round—Mrs. Burchard defeated Mrs. Pickett, 2 and 1.

Second flight, first round—Mrs. A. H. Perley defeated bye. Mrs. H. J. Kane defeated Miss Freda Kenyon, 5 and 4. Mrs. R. V. R. Haig defeated bye. Miss Elizabeth Harris defeated Mrs. Henry G. Wood, 3 and 1.

Semifinal round—Mrs. Perley defeated Mrs. Kane, 2 up. Miss Harris defeated Mrs. Haig, 3 and 1. Final round—Miss Harris defeated Mrs. Perley, 2 and 1.

Shorey Wins Way to Semifinals.

13 UNBEATEN GRID TEAMS IN EAST

Dartmouth Sets Pace; 8 Goal Lines Are Uncrossed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The East's list of unbeaten and untied football teams has shrunk to 13 today with Dartmouth's high-powered array setting the pace in scoring.

Dartmouth, victorious in four straight games, has piled up 225 points while holding the opposition scoreless. Cornell holds second place with 186. Colgate, beaten once, is third with 185, and Carnegie Tech, also beaten once, is fourth with 164. Only eight teams can boast uncrossed goal lines, chief among them being Dartmouth, Fordham, Army, Pittsburgh and Western Maryland.

Four teams have been tied but not beaten—Penn State, Williams, Bowdoin and New Hampshire.

Murphy, Fordham Tops Scorers.

In individual scoring Jim Murphy, of Fordham, and Bart Viviano, of Cornell, are tied for the honor of leading the East's football cohorts. Each has scored ten touchdowns for a total of 60 points.

Tanguay, of New York University, is pressing the leaders hard with a 59-point total gained from nine touchdowns and five extra points, while Eyth, of Carnegie Tech, tied with him for second place in touchdowns, is fourth on the list with 54 points.

Records of Eastern teams as compiled by the Associated Press follow:

BLIND LANE MAY BE FAVORITE FOR SELIMA STAKES

$25,000 Race Will Draw Big Field

Vanderpool, Jamestown Will Clash at Pimlico.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL PARK, Md., Oct. 19.—Racing at Laurel moves into its third week, and the climax of this weeks" program will come next Saturday with the renewals of the $25,000 Selima Stakes, for 2-year-old fillies, and the $15,000 added Maryland Handicap, at a mile and a quarter.

The Selima is probably the most attractive race in the country for juvenile fillies. Entries closed for the Selima on October 29, 1928, with 461 nominations. The second payment was made by 406, and the final payments left an eligible list of 86.

The winning of the all-aged race at a mile and 70 yards the past week by Blind Lane, a Maryland-bred, boosted her stock for this rich stake. Mrs. John D. Hertz probably will start Risque, which filly Blind Lane has beaten. H. P. Whitney will start one of his eligibles, probably Panasette or Gosling; Widener's Buckup and Nerva may both go; Dark Magnet may be the Kilmer hope, while Audley Farm will depend on Highland Belle. Blue Ship probably will be the E. R. Bradley candidate. She has never started. But take this tip: She is the best filly on his string, or believed to be. He also probably will start Baba Kenny. Tambour will go for Burch; Butler may send Studious, and Lady Minnie, Allez Vite, Batty, Timely, Green Light and Puritan Lass may be other starters.

Questionnaire May Face Spinach.

Questionnaire and Spinach probably will meet in the Maryland Handicap, which will have a large field. Kilmer has entered Sun Falcon. Other candidates will be Ned O, third in the Laurel; Conclave, winner of the Laurel, and Polygamous, Gallant Knight and Alcibiades are other probable starters. Spinach added to his fame by winning the $25,000 Latonia Championship Saturday. Mr. Butler's Questionnaire had no chance in the Laurel Stakes after being knocked to his knees twice, and Workman held on by grasping the horse's neck, a feat that may have saved his life.

The crowds from day to day have been record smashers at Laurel, and contrary to general belief, the betting has been very heavy. The kind of racing that New York has been handing out at Jamaica has driven large betters to Laurel. The weather has been the best possible. It is a seven day wonder for visitors from New York to see twelve horses in a race, all trying. The poisoning of a horse at Jamaica or Aqueduct causes no surprise down in Maryland or anywhere else. Three-horse races, 1 to 8 odds, upsets, and the attendant scandal have come to be expected on some of the New York tracks.

The big stables ship overnight to Maryland after Belmont Park. These are some of the reasons much of the racing in New York holds no interest even in New York, outside of the regulars who hold on at those tracks until the November winds blow them away. The wonder expressed is that the Jockey Club does not make a clean-up. If it does not, the legislature may.

Vander Pool Keeps On Winning.

The Tennessee Stable's Vander Pool keeps up his winning stride. Eleven victories without a defeat equals the record of Morvich as a two-year-old. Then Morvich won the Kentucky Derby the following spring, and his career in racing was ended. Morton Allen of the Tennessee stable informed this correspondent at Saratoga that Vander Pool would be gradually conditioned for the Pimlico Futurity, and was confident, he said, that his colt could beat Jamestown. That was before notice had been given of the retirement of the G. D. Widener juvenile champion. Twenty Grand, belonging to Mrs. Payne Whitney, is the latest juvenile luminary, after his defeat of Equipoise in the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes. Vander Pool will meet some stubborn opposition at Pimlico.

The jamming of the field in the Laurel Stakes Saturday was due largely to the sharp turn at the clubhouse being so near the mile starting point, rather than the effect of rough riding. The Heathen bore in at the turn, and the large field of handicap horses was hard to handle, and did most of the interference in spite of the jockeys.

G. P. O.'S DEFEATED.

The G. P. O. Federals dropped a 36-0 decision to the Councillor A. C., of Richmond, yesterday afternoon in the Virginia city.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Laurel Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

LAUREL PARK, Md., Oct. 19.—The Cabin John Purse features the Laurel program, bringing together the second flight handicap horses, not so far removed from the best class.

W. E. Caskey's WILLIAM T, a consistent gelding which has not been out of the money in the last six starts, should win. Improvement is expected in DR. FREELAND, former Preakness winner. He takes off weight, and has beaten WILLIAM T this season. The absence of nine pounds off his impost last week, when he was unplaced, will make a lot of difference in his favor going a mile and a sixteenth. BUDDY BAUER is the other one that looms as a money horse. He won his last out here, defeating Hot Toddy. It is difficult to separate these three, but A. Robertson will get WILLIAM T away from the post in a hurry, and if he repeats his race behind Bobashhela, it will be difficult to catch him. DR. FREELAND is slow getting his stride.

FIRST RACE—Looks like a toss-up between NERVE and HIGHLAND BELLS. Both 2-year-olds showed big improvement in their last starts over the Laurel course. The J. E. Widener filly NERVA, with Garner up, probably will rule slight choice. She is highly bred, being by Fair Play, sire of Man o' War, out of Zephyretta. HIGHLAND BELLE was third to Center Stone last out, tiring near the end as it short. UNUSUAL may get in the money, on her second to Dark Magnet. Throw out her last race.

SECOND RACE—THE RED KNIGHT is selected to beat STONEY LONESOME in the steeplechase at 2 miles. STONEY LONESOME has won three of her last four starts, and was second in the other. THE RED KNIGHT, out of racing for three years until at Woodbine, where he showed his old speed and is rounding into form. LORENZO, the Widener steeplechaser, is the class, but the 9-year-old has shown no sparkling form since 1928. But he is improving and has a chance here.

THIRD RACE—CRYSTAL BROOM is selected to win. This 4-year-old went away from the races at Saratoga two years ago, his last effort showing an easy victory, and he was beating horses like Comstockery, Lady Capulet and others as a 2-year old. He returned to start at Laurel on October 10, when he wore himself down at the gate, finally submitting to twisters in his nose, was virtually left, but ran fourth, beaten a length and a half for first money by Gerard. The chances are this son of Golden Broom will have profited by that race, and all that he needs to win this race is to get away. In his last effort he was backed from 30 to 1 to less than 3. COIN COLLECTOR will give him a battle, and if he tires, or gets away poorly, then the race may go to the Sagamore Stable's gelding. VACATION seems best of the others and has won at this meeting, beating Maudlin and Amsterdam.

FOURTH RACE—For 2-year-olds will prove of equal interest with the feature, for the top-notchers will meet. H. P. Whitney's MAGNIFICO should win. His effort in the Johnson Stakes won by Tarpaulin should be discounted. His defeat was no surprise in that race, the way it was run. He should never be headed in this event, if he gets away from the gate on even terms. UNCLE HENRY is rated the contender. He is owned by Max Hirsch, and in his only start was an easy winner over Tambour at Saratoga. TOMMY BOY, winner of three races in a row in Maryland this fall, should be no worse than third. BACKGAMMON, impressive winner last out over Noon Whistle, has a chance to be in the money.

SIXTH RACE—Looks easy. YANKEE DOODLE, poorly ridden last out, was run into the ground. He led to the sixteenth post, when Make Believe nabbd him. He needs a change in riders. MAKE HASTE will be the contender, if he runs back to recent races, two of which he won. WRACKELL may be better than rated, but he looks like he was sure of show money.

SEVENTH RACE—UPSET LAD may have found a spot where he can win. MAGIC CARPET nipped him at the wire in his last start, beating him a nose, after he had led all the way. His record in Canada is good. MAGIC CARPET should be the contender. But he takes up weight. VIMONT is dangerous. The race is a mile and a quarter.

Erodion Wins French Feature Race in Mud

Longchamps, France, Oct. 19 (A.P.). Erodion was first, Romarin second and Bara third today in the running of the Municipal Council Stakes, last great autumn fixture handicap. It was raining and the track was sloppy. Erodion is by Bridane, out of Ebinboro Belle and belongs to Robert Lazard. The horse was ridden by the French jockey, Brethes, and paid 6 to 1 in the betting, taking a $10,000 purse. Erodion's victory was by half a length. Eighteen horses started.

Rosedale Victory Feature Of Capital Soccer Games

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON

Of the five soccer matches played yesterday probably the most spectacular was the Rosedale-Fashion Shop tilt which was won by the former in the last twenty minutes of play by the score of 4 to 3 after trailing by two goals up to that time. In other Capital City matches Gaithersburg surprised Rockville with a 3 to 2 victory and Army stopped Silver Spring, 2 to 1.

In the Washington Soccer League D. C. Kickers defeated Gaelic-Americans, 3 to 1, although the Irish outplayed the Germans in the second half. Marlboro outrushed and outran British United to win by a 3 to 0

Rosedale Comes From Behind.

Fashion Shop looked like a sure winner for three-fourths of its game with Rosedale but bad breaks combined with some determined offensive play by the Northeast lads in the waning minutes of the game turned defeat into victory. Willie Mann at goal for Fashion Shop and Burdette on the forward line for Rosedale were the outstanding players.

Yementes at full back was the big gun in Army's victory over Silver Spring. The big back held the Maryanders at bay almost alone on several occasions. Linn and Jones also contributed largely to the soldiers' victory. The score was 1 to 1 at half time, but Army finished with a rush to win.

Gaithersburg surprised all local soccer critics with its 3 to 2 victory over the strong Rockville eleven. As happened last Sunday, the victors owed their success largely to a superb defense. Ward at back was the star of the game.

Marlboro Youths Triumph.

Marlboro's condition and kick and rush game was too much for the ageing British unit squad. Young Wells, Marlboro forward, was a particular worry to the British, scoring twice.

Kicking with the wind in the first half, the D. C Kickers scored three goals, but in the second period the aggressive Irish eleven stormed the German goal repeatedly and dented it once while holding the victors scoreless.

CAPITAL CITY UNLIMITEDS IN THREE SCORELESS TIES

BRENTWOOD HAWKS BEATEN BY PALACE, 6-0, AFTER STRUGGLE

Stephen's, Mercury, Seat Pleasant in Tie Games.

Centennials 6-0 Victors Over Wolverine; Del Ray Scores.

By JOHN V. HINKEL.

YESTERDAY'S three contests in the unlimited section of The Post's 1930 Capital City Football League might just as well have remained unplayed as far as they affected the standing in that division, as each game resulted in a 0-0 tie.

The Alpha Delta Omega Fraternity Team made Seat Pleasant's league debut only a partial success by playing the Marylanders to a scoreless deadlock. Quentins surprised by holding the Mercurys to the same score and St. Stephen's and Brooklands fought it out with neither eleven gaining the decision. The seventh team in the section, the Marions, overwhelmed the Navy Yard Marines in a nonleague clash.

Defensive play on the part of both teams featured the Alpha Delta Omega-Seat Pleasant Firemen engagement at Huxton Field, Alexandria. The Firemen outplayed their hosts by a big margin. Fumbles proved costly to the Marylanders as did poor kicking to the Virginians.

Five Seat Pleasant Threats Bolted.

Five times the Seat Pleasants pushed the ball within the Alpha Delts' 20-yard mark, only to be repulsed on each occasion without a score. Midway in the third quarter the Firemen paraded 60 yards down the field to the Alexandrians' 4-yard mark. A costly fumble at this juncture, however, with the A. D. O.'s recovering, ended the rally.

A spirited Seat Pleasant defense kept the fraternity players within the 40-yard stripe most of the battle, except in the early part of the initial period when the A. D. O.'s got as far as their guests' 18-yard line, there to be held for downs.

Augustine's field generalship and ball carrying, together with Ratke's superb punting and the performances of Goldman and Bayliss in the line, were the bright spots of the Seat Pleasant play. Scrivener, Green and Shapiro starred for the Alpha Delts.

Five hundred persons watched the St. Stephen's-Brookland battle on the Seat Pleasant gridiron. Loose handling of the ball and ragged line play handicapped the offensive operations of both teams.

Scoring Opportunities Fade.

Each club failed to capitalize on numerous scoring opportunities. Twice in the first half the Brooklands were inside St. Stephen's 20-yard mark, once as far as the 12-yard strip. Each time, however, Coach Billy Gates' men lacked the punch to crash through a determined Saint defense for a touchdown.

The Churchmen themselves got as far as Brookland's 37-yard mark early in the second quarter, only to have their incipient rally nipped by an intercepted pass. A few minutes later they recovered a fumble on the Northeast team's 33-yard strip, there to be held for downs.

Early in the second half the Brooklands reeled off two consecutive first-downs to put the ball on St. Stephen's 32-yard mark. A fumble checked the drive. The Gatesmen made another determined bid to score in the dying moments of the contest, when Woodruff recovered Zumbo's fumble on the Saints' 29-yard line. A penalty for slugging moved the pigskin to the 14-yard strip and then the Churchmen broke up a passing attack to end the therat.

Each eleven made five first downs during the battle. Woodruff, Holden, and Ormes, for the Brooklands, and Simmons and Fitzgerald, of St. Stephen's, were the outstanding stars of the contest.

EXCEPTIONALL close games featured yesterday afternoon's schedule for the 130-pound section of The Post's Capital City League. Three of the four atties were decided by the margin of a single touchdown, and the fourth ended in a scoreless deadlock.

Palace-District Grocery Stores won over the Brentwood Hawks, Del Rays trounced the Mardfeldts and Centennials beat the Wolverines, each by a 6-to-0 count, while the Columbias weer making their initial league appearance by holding the Petworth Pennants to a 0-to-0 draw.

The Brentwood Hawks, heretofore not regarded as one of the outstanding clubs in the division, rose to unexpected heights on the Seat Pleasant gridiron and gave Palace-District Grocery Stores the hardest kind of fight before bowing. The Southwest eleven had been an overwhelming favorite to beat the Hawks by at least the only touchdown of the contest. Dearborn blocked and recovered Fellner's punt in the second quarter, and, together with E. Scanlon, bore the brunt of an offense which culminated when Divvers scored from the 2-yard line.

Scanlon Makes Run Of 35 Yards.

With the exception of J. Scanlon's 35-yard romp around end just as the quarter closed, the Hawks completely outplayed P. D. G. S. in the opening period. A stubborn Palace defense twice repulsed Hawk touchdown sorties in this quarter, once on the 1-foot line and again on the 2-yard mark.

Texas U. in Running For Southwest's Title

Dallas, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The University of Texas Longhorn put their finger in the Southwest Conference football pie Saturday when they crushed the highly touted University of Oklahoma Sooner, 17 to 7, in their intersectional tray here.

Something of an unknown quantity prior to the game, the big Orange eleven gave a powerful exhibition in turning back the Sooners, who just the previous week had humbled the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

What made the valorous showing of the Steers all the more important was the indifferent exhibitions put on by other supposedly stout conference elevens. Southern Methodist, rated a prime favorite, was held to a 14-14 tie by the Baylor Bears in a loosely played, flamboyant affair at Waco.

NORTHERN PREPS WIN.

Smashing across the lone touchdown of the contest in the second quarter, the Northern Preps defeated the revamped Alcova Motor Co. Eleven by a 6-0 score yesterday afternoon on the Arlington Field. Houston's 15-yard romp around end counted the 6-pointer. Play was in Alcova territory most of the contest.

Washington U. Joins Defeated on Coast

San Francisco, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Football's weekly turnover in the Far West has plunged another big Pacific Coast Conference member into the ranks of the defeated, leaving three teams with spotless records in the race for the 1930 championship.

Washington's huskies were the victims Saturday, taking a place in the "lost column," alongside California and Southern California, other conference giants defeated earlier in the season. Only Oregon, Stanford and Washington State retain unblemished records.

Oregon crushed the titular ambitions of Washington, 7-0, at Portland. Stanford, making its first conference appearance, disposed of Oregon State, 13-7.

Four Unbeaten Teams Remain in "Big Ten"

Chicago, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The select group of undefeated Big Ten football teams tonight was down to four members, with Northwestern and Michigan parked at the top of the list.

The Wildcats and Wolverines won yesterday for their second straight triumphs, while Minnesota won its initial encounter, and Wisconsin, which trounced Chicago a week ago, added to the auspicion that it will be tough for any team to conquer, by smearing Pennsylvania's highly regarded Eastern eleven, 27 to 0, in an intersectional contest.

Iowa made its lone gesture in Big Ten competition and showed that it is just as well that the Hawkeye has no other conference engagements by taking a 20-to-0 beating from Purdue, the comeback-bound defending champion. Chicago marred the West's showing in intersectional competition by dropping a 19-to-0 decision to Florida, while Minnesota's improving outfit nipped Indiana, 6 to 0.

Northwestern's 32-to-0 triumph over Illinois was a terrific shock to about 50,000 homecomers at Champaign.

Bain to Meet Rosenbloom For Title

2 Heavyweight Bouts Scheduled; Risko in Action.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Maxie Rosenbloom, veteran champion of the light heavyweights, offers the principal relief from the Nation-wide boxing drought this week by defending his title in Madison Square Garden Wednesday night against Able Bain, young Newark, N. J., scrapper. Except for this one title-defense, big-time boxing has come almost to a standstill throughout the country.

Rosenbloom, who has weathered a large number of fights, is overwhelmingly favored over Bain, who has only fought a few times as a light heavyweight, although he has a fairly long record in other divisions. The Harlem cuffer is expected to have only one difficulty—that of making the 175-pound limit—and he is reported to be close to the mark. The bout is to go the regulation title distance of fifteen rounds.

Two Heavyweight Bouts Listed.

Two heavyweight battles head the week's prorgam in Boston. On Tuesday night Jack Gagnon and Con O'Kelly, both Bostonians, clash over the ten-round route with the prospect of the w[illegible]r's meeting another of their townsmen, Jack Sharkey. Tuesday Johnny Risko, Cleveland's bounding baker, takes on Dick Daniels, Minneapolis heavyweig[illegible], in another ten-rounder.

Tod Morgan, former junior lightweight champion, heads the card on the West Coast, meeting Hector MacDonald in a ten-round lightweight encounter.

Tuesday—At Portland, Oreg., Herman Ratzlaff, Minot, S. Dak., vs. Red Uhlan, Oakland, Calif., middleweights, ten rounds. At Indianapolis, Harry Dillon, Winnipeg, vs. Chuck Burns, San Antonio, light heavyweights, ten rounds.

Thursday—At Detroit, King Tut, Minneapolis, vs. Billy Boy Townsend, Vancouver, lightweights, ten rounds. At Newark, Young Stribling, Macon, Ga., vs. Meyer (K. O.) Christner, Akron, Ohio, heavyweights, 10 rounds.

Friday—At Hollywook, Calif., Dutch Elliott vs. Al Fay, heavyweights, ten rounds. At Kansas City, Young Harry Wills, San Diego, Calif., vs. Charlie Ferica, New Orleans, welterweights, ten rounds.

Saturday—At Cincinnati, Pete Petrosky, Muskegon, Mich., vs. Charley Cobb, San Diego, Calif., welterweights, ten rounds.

Kansas and Oklahoma Leading in "Big Six"

Kansas City, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—Kansas has moved up with Oklahoma in joint leadership of the Big Six Conference football race by virtue of a 14-to-0 defeat of its traditional rival, the Kansas Aggies.

Yesterday's victory at Manhattan before 17,000 fans, which established an attendance record for that stadium, was achieved by the more powerful, coordinated team which relied largely on a running attack from orthodox formations. The Aggies, with as many, if not more veterans on the field, were a lighter aggregation; their deceptive plays failed to function and their intricate passing attack went awry.

Oklahoma with no conference standing at stake lost to the University of Texas Longhorns before a 20,000 State fair crowd at Dallas, 7 to 17. All the scoring in this big game for the Southwest was concentrated in the last half and although the Sooners scored first, the Longhorns scored oftener.

EASTON CLUB WINS.

Easton, Md., Oct. 19 (Special).—Easton closed the baseball season this afternoon by defeating the All-Stars of Talbot County by a score of 21 to 1. Carter was in the box for Easton and allowed but three hits in seven innings.

V. M. I. CORPS TO SEE MD. CONTEST

Rivals Have Played Since 1910; Three to Old Liners.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. ...—For the first time in five years the V. M. I. cadet corps will accompany the football team to Richmond when on next Saturday the Flying Squadron faces the Old Liners of the University of Maryland at the new Richmond Stadium.

It will be the first V. M. I.-Maryland game witnessed by the corps since the two teams fought to a 14-14 draw at Lexington in 1917, and 650 cadets are anxious to root for the Flying Squadron against V. M. I.'s second Southern Conference opponent of the season.

The clash between the elevens coached by Bill Raftery and Curley Byrd will be the eighth in a series beginning in 1910 and uninterrupted since 1927. The fact that Maryland has won three games of the series to two for V. M. I., with two tilts ending in ties, shows how close the competition has been in the past. In the seven games Maryland is just 2 points to the good, with 52 points scored to V. M. I.'s 50.

Cadets Won First Game.

V. M. I. took the opening game in 1910, 8 to 0, and Maryland came back in 1916 to win, 15 to 9. The 14-14 deadlock came in 1917, and Maryland won, 7 to 6, in 1918. With the renewal of the series in 1927 at Richmond, the Old Liners came out on top 10 to 6, but played a scoreless tie in 1928. Last year the cadets eked out a hard-earned victory, 7 to 6.

Coming after the Virginia game, the battle with Maryland is always regarded at V. M. I. as one of the hardest games on the schedule. Though already defeated by Yale and North Carolina, Maryland has a strong team this season, with a veteran line and new stars in the backfield. Woods and Poppleman played great football on the Freshman team last year that played a bitter 0 to 0 game with the cadet yearlings, and these stars are expected to bear the brunt of the attack against Capt. Roy Dunn and his mates.

32-0 SETBACK IS HANDED GONZAGA

La Salle Wins Fourth Straight in Cumberland Contest.

Special to The Washington Post.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Oct. 19.—La Salle Institute continued its uninterrupted victory record today by overwhelming Gonzaga High, of Washington, D. C., at Community Park here, 32 to 0. It was the fourth straight win for the local team which has not been scored on this season. The visitors, who were kept almost constantly defending their goal, used a dozen substitutes.

La Salle showed too much power and ran ends at will. The feature was in the fourth quarter when Dehart received a punt and ran 60 yards for a touchdown, in the meantime shaking off three or four men.

Line-up:

La Salle.	Positions.	Gonzaga.
Reynolds	L.E.	Benjamin
Lindsey	L.T.	Quigley
McDade	L.G.	Gill
Blough	Center	Gingras
Cioni	R.G.	James
Coulehan	R.T.	Shipman
Silvestri	R.E.	Donohue
Dehart	C.B.	Schram
Conley	L.H.	Dunnin
Fleckenstein	R.H.	Eppard
O'Neill	F.B.	Vinu

Touchdowns—Dehart (3). Reynolds. Fleckenstein. Points after touchdown—Dehart, 2 (drop-kicks). Referee—Ramey (Virginia). Umpire—J. Cavanaugh (Washington). Head linesman—J. S. Hunter (Carnegie Tech).

Since he's acquired his wealth,
But the truth is he's found
Since he's nibbled around
They're exceedingly bad for the health!

G. U. PRIMES FOR W. VA. CLASH

The Colonials will be out to revenge a one-point defeat suffered last year. And they likely will succeed, if past performances mean anything, for Dickinson's record to date is most unimpressive.

A Southern Conference victory is the goal of Maryland in its game at Richmond with V. M. I. From here it looks as though the Old Line will get just what it wishes, meanwhile stoning for a 6-0 loss to the Cadet eleven in 1929.

Cards Face Another Hard Assignment.

Catholic U. faces another troublesome assignment when it meets Duquesne in Pittsburgh Friday night. Cold facts point to the fifth successive set-back for the Cardinals.

Gallaudet and American have easier games to play than those just passed. The Blues will tackle the notoriously weak Baltimore U. outfit in Baltimore Saturday night, while the Eagles will engage the recently organized Atlantic University eleven at Virginia Beach, Va. Gallaudet's opponent hasn't scored a single point this season. Little is known here of the ability of Atlantic U.

MIDWEST ELEVENS ARE SHOWING WAY

held Kentucky even for three periods, but fell apart in the final period to allow the Wildcats 19 points and a 33-14 victory. Georgia Tech found Auburn an unexpected tartar and just won out, 14-12, by scoring touchdowns and extra points in the third and fourth periods.

In the Southwestern Conference, Baylor gained a spectacular 14-14 tie with the favored Southern Methodist Eleven when, with less than two minutes to play, Alford tossed a pass to McElreath, who galloped 65 yards to a touchdown. Atkins' field goal in the last quarter was all that saved Texas Christian from a scoreless tie with Texas A. and M. Rice bowed to Arkansas, 7-6. In an intersectional game, Texas, held scoreless for three periods, burst forth with 17 points in the last to turn back Oklahoma, 17-7.

Utah continued its march to another Rocky Mountain Conference title by swamping Brigham Young, 34-7, while Denver beat the jinx and nosed out Colorado College, 6-0. Montana State lost to a Pacific Coast Conference eleven, Montana, 18-6.

In the Far West, Stanford, as expected, turned back Oregon State, 13-7, but only after the hardest kind of fighting. Johnny Kitzmiller's 47-yard run gave Oregon a hard-earned 7-0 triumph over Washington. Southern California mopped up the Utah Aggies, of the Rocky Mountain Conference, 65-0.

N. CAROLINA ROUT SURPRISES SOUTH

gridiron drought at Alabama Polytechnic is almost at an end. Spinning through perfectly timed Notre Dame formations the Plainsmen scored twice to lead Tech, 12 to 0, at the half, but the heavier and more experienced Engineers came back in the closing periods to count twice and kick the extra points that spelled victory, 14 to 12.

Kentucky received its first real competition from Washington and Lee and only a spirited last period offensive enabled it to break a 14-14 tie to roll up a 33-14 win.

After three successive defeats from minor opponents, Red Cagle's Mississippi Aggies, in their Conference game, beat Louisiana State 8 to 6.

Sewanee Breaks Losing Streak.

Sewanee won its first Conference victory in two years by downing Mississippi Friday, 13 to 7.

Vanderbilt Reserves trampled little Spring Hill, 27 to 6. V. P. I. won from William and Mary by a single point, 7 to 6, and Maryland beat St. John's, 21 to 18.

The standing of the Southern Conference football teams, including games of Saturday, October 18, follow:

MYSTERY BULLET HITS WINDSHIELD; DRIVER IS INJURED

BROTHER GRABS WHEEL; CAR SAVED FROM RIVER

Victim Treated at Hospital as Police Find Piece of Projectile.

Striking the windshield of an automobile driven by Norman Lewis Ernst, 21 years old, of 3711 Woodbine avenue, Baltimore, a stray bullet shattered glass in the face of the driver, severely cutting him, yesterday afternoon, on Canal road near Forty-seventh street northwest.

Seizing the steering wheel of the swerving car, Norman's brother, John, saved the machine from dashing into the river and drove his brother to Georgetown Hospital, where he was treated for lacerations and cuts. He was reported to be in an improved condition last night.

Police of the Seventh Precinct, who have the shooting under investigation, believe that the bullet came from the Virginia side of the river. They are working on the theory that it came either from hunters in the woods or from malicious individuals who might have deliberately made Ernst a target.

Near the scene of the shooting police found a piece of bullet. It could not be determined last night whether this was part of a revolver or rifle bullet. The bullet will be taken to ballistic experts. If it is found to be part of a revolver bullet police will probably continue the investigation, but a decision in favor of a rifle will be apt to substantiate the theory that the bullet came from the gun of a hunter, police said.

PENDULUM IS USED TO DISCOVER WATER

CARRIES DEVICE IN HAND

Special to The Washington Post.

London, Oct. 19.—With the authority of both church and state and the consent, if not the full approval, of the scientific authorities, a water diviner or "dowser" is at work in the heart of London, endeavoring to locate further water supplies to be tapped by well in Hyde Park and elsewhere. He is a French Catholic priest, the Abbe Gabriel Lambert, of Nice, already famous throughout southern Europe for reported successes in finding water by the aid of a small pendulum which he carries in his hand as he walks, like a child's top hung on a string.

When there is no water underneath, it is reported, this pendulum merely swings slowly back and forth as the abbe walks. Water is indicated by a sudden change of the pendulum's motion. It begins to rotate rapidly as though the abbe were purposely making it swing in horizontal circles. Which, say scientific skeptics, is precisely what the water-finding cleric does, although unknown to himself, for no one questions the abbe's honesty and sincerity, evidenced by the fact that he takes no fee for his services and that donations from grateful clients go to his church, not to himself.

That methods of this kind often find water not visible on the surface of the ground is admitted. The explanation, scientific men believe, is that the abbe and other similar "dowsers" have acquired by long study and experience an unconscious but competent appreciation of geological conditions of soil and surroundings which indicate the probability of water below.

When such indications are perceived the "dowser's" unconscious mind plays him a trick and rotates the little pendulum or twists the willow wand which some "dowsers" use just as an experienced soldier or hunter will find himself suddenly alert as a result of slight signs imperceptible to others and not consciously perceived even by himself.

DOWNWARD COURSE CONTINUES ON CURB

DIXIE GAS AT 1930 HIGH

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The curb market has gone through another interval of erratic price movements, with the dominant trend downward. A halt in the decline was witnessed last week while the loaning rates on the stock exchange were acting as a brake on aggressive short selling, but the renewal of liquidation and of short selling on the big board halted the covering on the junior market and prices again met pressure.

Trading was quiet at widweek, but as usual increased in volume on the break. Utilities, oils and investment trusts sold in steady streams and most of the active issues went to new lows. Electric Bond & Share, for example, dropped to within a fraction of last November's minimum of 50, and United Light "A" sold around its low for the year. Dixie Gas had the distinction of making a 1930 high.

Liquidation of the oils went forward with little pause. Selling was based on the poor price situation, which led many holders to dispose of their securities at levels in some instances considerably below previous minimums. Humble, Gulf and Vacuum were particularly weak.

The Prince & Whitely Trading Corporation shares rallied in response to the reorganization of the directorate, but slumped again toward the weekend. Ungerleider Financial had a smart upturn when on the announcement that the book value was $48 a share. United Founders and Goldman Sachs Trading were in almost steady supply.

Sulphur and Fatty Oils Make Rubber Substitute

Madison, Wis., Oct. 19 (A.P.).—A "rubber substitute" which does not replace rubber but is said to extend its uses is described to the American Chemical Society by Ellery H. Harvey and H. A. Schuette, of the University of Wisconsin.

It is made by combining a form of sulphur with fatty oils, and was discovered 80 years ago by a French chemist who accidentally mixed the sulphur with olive oil.

LAST TRY TO HALT F. H. SMITH TRIAL EXPECTED TODAY

Lawyers May Present Motion to Quash Indictment Against Officials.

PLEAS IN ABATEMENT PROVE TO BE FUTILE

U. S. to Ask Quick Hearing if New Appeal Is Refused, Says Prosecutor.

Counsel for four former officials of the F. H. Smith Co. are expected to make their last move today in District Supreme Court in efforts to save their clients from going on trial on charges of conspiracy to embezzle $5,000,000 and to destroy records. A motion to quash the indictment may be presented.

The hearing is to be before Justice William Hitz. The same justice spent most of last week hearing pleas in abatement to the indictment. The outcome of that hearing was that Mr. Justice Hitz instructed the jury to return a verdict upholding the indictment.

The pleas in abatement attacked the indictment on the grounds that there had been an illegal search of the F. H. Smith Co.'s offices in New York City by a Bureau of Investigation agent of the Department of Justice.

Agent Used Subterfuge.

However, despite the fact that the defense introduced evidence to the effect that the agent had entered the Smith Co. offices in the guise of a fire inspector, Justice Hitz last Friday ordered the jury to return a verdict in favor of the Government.

Defendants in the case are G. Bryan Pitts, former chairman of the board of the Smith company; Samuel J. Henry, former president of the company, and C. Elbert Anadale and John H. Edwards, jr., former vice presidents.

The hearing last week was enlivened when John Farquhar, former secretary of Pitts, made a deposition in which he declared he had burned the records in the Hamilton Hotel case and in the conspiracy to embezzle case. His testimony, taken when the jury and the judge were absent, by agreement of counsel, never was introduced.

Quick Trial May Be Asked.

Assistant United States Attorney Neil Burkinshaw, who with Nugent Dodds, special assistant to the Attorney General, is prosecuting the case, stated last night that if the motion to quash the indictment was overruled the Government would demand an immediate trial.

Attorneys Wilton J. Lambert, Rudolph H. Yeatman and Frank G. Reichle represent Pitts, Anadale and Edwards, while Attorney Barry S. Barger appears for Henry.

Hard-of-Hearing Group Will Gather Tonight

Three women prominent in work among the deaf will address a meeting to be held at 8 o'clock tonight by the Washington League for the Hard of Hearing at its rooms, 826 Connecticut avenue northwest, in connection with a conference of the National Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing.

The speakers will be Mrs. James F. Norris, of Boston, Mass., vice president of the federation, chairman of the committee on hard of hearing children of the White House conference; Miss Persis Vose, founder of the Speech Readers Club of Portland, Me., and Mrs. St. Julien Cullum, founder of the Augusta, Ga., Club for the Hard of Hearing.

Moral Madness Text Of Rev. Dr. Mark Depp

The REV. DR. MARK DEPP.

An innovation in church services that is being watched with interest by the churches of Washington is being tried out at Calvary Methodist Church, on Columbia road, near Fifteenth street. The Men's Club of this church has charge of the evening service. One feature of this service is a short sermon by the pastor, the Rev. Mark Depp. These sermons are but 15 minutes in length.

Taking as his theme "Moral Madness," Dr. Depp spoke, in part, as follows last night:

"Here is one of the strange incidents of all literature, sacred and secular. Jesus had come to this shore of Galilee fresh from the rebuke of the storm and the instant obedience of the sea and is met by a more terrible foe, a raging fiend not now in wind or wave, but in an unfortunate man enslaved as by the very cruelty of hell. Pathetically and desperately insane, as we would say—possessed of devils, as they said; but no matter now about terms: He was exiled from home and friends, bound by chains. He snapped them from him in derision. He knew nothing of restraint or discipline, and was a constant menace to the community.

Orthodox in Principle.

"Of an evening when his wild cries rang out men quickened their step to the security of their homes, and women tried to quiet terrified children while making doubly certain that the doors were locked. Now all this is changed, and the once tormented man is in his right mind with serenity and composure returned to his spirit—this is the gracious healing, this the miacle of divince love and power, and Christ the wonder worker. But the strange story grows still stranger, so strange that no man who did not know it would guess the conclusion—they asked Jesus to depart! What dullness of understanding and what blindness to value—so unbalanced and irrational in attitude that I venture to let it stand for moral madness.

"Obviously the restoration, redemption, and release of the long afflicted man was not to be compared in worth with the loss of the swine. That man is always the victim of moral madness who sets property values above personal values, who exalts the material above the human, goods beyond goodness—who gains riches but loses wealth. The trouble is that we are so orthodox in principle and such heretics in practice. We kuote fervently enough, 'What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?' as a lovely ideal while the real working basis is, 'Get all you can and can all you get.'

"We are quite persuaded in theory that a man's life does not consist in things, and then as a matter of fact work our heads off and nearly barter our very souls in a frenzied effort to accumulate things. How many men, terribly active and appallingly busy, are really dead of spiritual suffocation? Really now, are first things first in our lives?

Facing of Consequences.

"That man is likewise guilty of moral madness who expects to reap what he does not sow or not to reap what he does sow. The law of the harvest is one law—precisely the same principle produces thorns as grapes. Any man has the right in the sense of choice to sow to the flesh, but that right carries with it another—from the flesh to reap corruption. Any man can sow to the spirit and none can hinder; of the spirit he will reap life everlasting. There is no mystery about it; it is sanity in an orderly universe. And the right to do as one chooses involves the right of facing the consequences of the choice.

"It is a sheer impossibility to spend one's life in pursuit of one set of values and then find one's self possessed of another. No man can through the years be mean and selfish, hard and grasping, and in a twinkling find himself unselfish, sympathetic and magnanimous. The mercy of our God is everlasting and His patience is infinite; men can burn life's candle in indulgence and literally blow the smoke in God's face, and then at the last fling themselves on His pity. But even God does not remove the consequences of a man's deeds, and such a man must begin at the beginning; he is a spiritual pauper and enters the kindergarten. No more than you can make a child a scholar, a philosopher or a scientist, in a day, do you change all the accumulated values of the long years by saying, however earnestly, 'I'm sorry.'

Setting of Example.

"And what shall be said of the man who hopes to escape responsibility for his influence on others? There is a sense in which every man is responsible for himself and must give an account of himself before God; there is likewise a very large measure of responsibility we must bear for our influence on others. 'No man liveth unto himself.' Out from every man there flows a stream on influence and he can not stop it; he can only determine whether it will bless or blight his fellows, sweeping them downward as a flood to destruction or bearing them like a mighty tide upward to God. One example has the power of many arguments, and if a man is foolish enough to urge others to do as he says and not as he does, it need be no surprise to him if they do as he does and not as he says.

"But most of all it is moral madness to ask Jesus to depart. Think who He was; think what He came to do; think of the great purposes that stirred in His soul; think of His dear hands so laden with rich gifts—and yet they sent Him away! All unconsciously, but no less certainly, when we refuse to walk His way and live His life we miss the very goals of our desire. We want to be happy, and He tells us how; we seek for peace, and He offers to point the way; we long for joy and He promises to give it; we search for the secret of victory, and He has overcome; we cry out for life, and He bestows it in an overflowing abundance. What unutterable madness, therefore, to turn from His fulness to find emptiness, from His rest to weariness, from His peace and blessedness to wretchedness and strife."

COLUMBUS KNIGHTS URGED TO EXPRESS LIGHT OF SAVIOUR

Rev. Joseph Buckley Speaks at Vesper Services of District Group.

MODERN SOCIETY EVILS STRESSED BY CHAPLAIN

Many Dignitaries of Order, Including Master, Attend Ceremony.

"Practice charity in your expressions and thoughts and thus express to the world the light of Jesus Christ as Catholic gentlemen."

This was the advice given to more than 500 members of the District Knights of Columbus by the Rev. Joseph V. Bucgley, pastor of St. Francis Xavier Church, and chaplain of the fourth degree Knights of Columbus, Washington Assembly, at the annual vesper service of the Knights of Columbus of the District last night in the Church of Immaculate Conception.

Stresses Modern Evils.

Father Buckley chose as the text for his sermon: "You are the light of the world; let your light so shine that men may see your good works and so glorify your faith in God." Stressing the evils of modern society, Father Buckley drew particular attention to the growing disregard of the marriage bonds, the laws of divorce and the philosophy of family life.

He bemoaned the tendency to deify wealth and extoll it over civic virtues, to uphold false idea of right, to believe that God does not exist, and that sin is a virtue.

"But Christ," he declared, "is still the Light of the World, and the remedy of all these evils is the teachings of the Catholic Church."

Father Hurney Celebrant.

The celebrant of the vesper service was the Rev. Francis J. Hurney, pastor of the Immaculate Conception. The Rev. F. X. Cavanaugh, State chaplain of the Knights of Columbus of the District, assisted as deacon and the Rev. Edward H. Roach as subdeacon.

Dignitaries of the Knights of Columbus, who attended the ceremony, included Chief Deputy William G. Feely, master of the fourth degree, Knights of Columbus; Andrew Scullan, Eugene Gallery, head of the fourth degrees of Maryland and the District. Fifty members of the fourth degree were present in uniform.

BOND PRICES MOVE AHEAD DURING WEEK

RAIL GROUPS IRREGULAR

New York, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—The bond market regained its equilibrium last week.

Resumption of the upward trend after more than a fortnight of unsettlement climaxed by some of the most drastic declines of the year originated in the rally of Latin-American issues starting Tuesday and continuing steadily through the short week. Brazilian, Chilean, Argentine, Peruvian, Colombian and Uruguayan municipal and bank bonds, which had lost 5 to 25 points, recovered a good portion of the loss.

This sharp recovery, which in turn imparted a better tone to the entire foreign list, was attributed not so much to any marked improvement in political and economic conditions there as to a feeling that the reaction had been carried too far. The result was that the list found support from bargain hunters attracted by the greatly increased yields afforded by the lower prices, and speculators who saw an opportunity for a quick profit.

Domestic Group Also Gains.

The improvement in the domestic group was more gradual and accompanied by considerable irregularity. Prices of bonds were a little higher at the end of the week as a result of cautious buying, and the averages showed an upturn for the first time in a fortnight.

The movement of domestics, however, was distinguished more by the drying up of liquidation than a renewal of large buying. Accumulation lacked the vigor which characterized the rise of bonds to within a small fraction of the high level of 1928. This was particularly apparent in the railroad group, where an irregular movement continued through most of the week. Progress for the most part was limited to small fractions. Declining earning statements have been responsible for the lack of buying interest in many railroad bonds.

Legal Requirements Cited.

Selling has been evident in issues that may be dropped from the New York State Savings Bank list. Under the law, to qualify as legal investments railroad mortgage bonds must be obligations of companies that in each year for at least five of the last six and in the fiscal year earned an amount available for fixed charges of not less than 1½ times the fixed charges. The list is revised each year.

Utilities have been fairly steady. Industrials continue to reflect economic conditions. The decline in stock market liquidation resulted in tightening of pressure against convertible and warrant issues. Few new lows for the year were established during the week.

Despite the shortened week, the volume of new financing increased. It totaled $127,298,000, compared with $119,739,000 in the previous week, and included a $50,000,000 Treasury bill issue.

$1,500 Found in Old Stump.

Gold was struck by a man while chopping wood in the back yard of his home at Perth, Australia, recently. Three ingots weighing over 75 ounces and valued at $1,500 were inside a hollow stump which had been taken out of the ground a year ago. It is thought the gold had been hidden there by a thief in the old pioneering days.

MOTORCYCLE CRASH IS FATAL TO BOY, 13

Father Watches Him Thrown on Railroad After He Smashes Fence.

SUFFERS BROKEN NECK

George E. Wolfe, 13 years old, of Capitol View, Md., was instantly killed yesterday when a motorcycle he was riding crashed through a fence.

The accident occurred in a large field near his home and was witnessed by his father, William N. Wolfe, who was watching him ride.

Young Wolfe took the machine to the field rather than ride on the congested highway, and was circling it for the second time when he suddenly lost control and crashed into a fence at one end. The impact threw him 25 feet over an embankment and onto the railroad tracks that run near the field. He suffered a broken neck.

Montgomery County police were summoned and the youth's body was removed to Pumphrey's undertaking establishment in Rockville, Md. The date for an inquest has not been set.

The boy's brother, Charles N. Wolfe, 15 years old, who wrote his will on the garage door and ran away from home last week, was located through a letter to his mother from Dayton, Ohio. Efforts were being made last night to find him and notify him of his brother's death.

Church Declared Culture's Mother

Foundation of Civilization Still Provided by Catholics, He Says.

Citing the Catholic Church as the mother of civilization, Dr. John Keating Cartwright, authority on church history, delivered a radio sermon yesterday afternoon over Station WOL in the Washington Catholic Radio Hour being presented weekly.

"In the past the church was the mother of civilization," he declared. "This is no longer the case. The nations of Europe and our own, having grown up, administer these things in their own right. But the foundation of these things, the inspiration and hope of man are still provided, and must always be provided, by religion.

"Numerically, the Catholic Church is the most important religion in the group of most highly civilized nationalities today. Therefore the faith in God and the belief in His providence as taught by the Catholic Church are not only valuable, they are vitally necessary to the world today. Without Catholicism, Christianity itself would perish. Without Christianity, the civilization of the world would relapse into barbarism."

Woman Suffers Injuries In Automobile Crash

Mrs. Georgia C. Lea, 60 years old, of 2112 Massachusetts avenue northwest, suffered head lacerations, bruises and shock about 11:40 o'clock yesterday morning when the electric coupe she was driving collided with a large sedan driven by Conrad A. Thomas, colored, of Harrisburg, Pa., at Fourth and B streets southeast.

Mrs. Lea was taken to Providence Hospital for treatment, where she was reported to be recovering. The sedan, according to Fifth Precinct police, who investigated, was owned by W. N. Conter, of Harrisburg, Pa.

LONG ILLNESS FATAL TO MRS. L. Y. HERRON

Was Well Known in Club and Education Circles of Washington.

RITES TO BE TOMORROW

Mrs. Lillian Young Herron, died Saturday at her home, 1840 Mintwood place northwest, after an illness of five years.

A native of Washington, Mrs. Herron was connected with many educational, philanthropic and glee club interests in the city. She was the wife of Maj. William H. Herron of the Geological Survey, who died about a year ago.

Educated in the public schools of this city, Mrs. Herron was one of the first women to graduate from George Washington University. She was president of the Twentieth Century Club for two years. Among her other activities, she was a member of St. Margaret's Church and served on the board of directors of the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital for a number of years. As vice president of the Board of Education she rendered valuable and conscientious service.

Mrs. Herron is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Young and one son, Lieut. Donald Herron, of the Coast Artillery, now stationed at Aberdeen, Md.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow from St. Margaret's Church, with interment in Arlington National Cemetery.

MARY H. FRANCE RITES.

Burial of Prominent Church Worker Will Be in Baltimore.

Funeral services for Miss Mary H. France, who died Saturday at Sibley Hospital, will be held tomorrow from her late residence, 1665 Harvard terrace northwest, with interment in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Baltimore.

Miss France, a native of Washington, was a member of Hamline Methodist Episcopal Church, Sixteenth and Allison streets northwest, and was prominent in Methodist activities throughout the city. She was membership secretary of the Women's Guild of Sibley Memorial Hospital. Her father, the late Rev. H. S. France, was formerly president of that institution.

A graduate of Goucher College, Baltimore, Miss France was a member of the National Society of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Church. She is survived by a number of relatives in Baltimore.

Three Love-Pirate Suits Name Same Woman

Los Angeles, Oct. 19.—Mrs. Bessie Brandven can lay claim to the heart-balm championship of local courts, it appeared from the third suit filed against her during the past year, taken to the clerk's office by Attorney William P. Redmond.

In it, Joseph and Henry Silverstein, eighteen and fourteen years of age, bring suit for $100,000, asserting that Mrs. Brandven enticed their father, Joseph, away from his home.

A previous suit, by Mrs. Sadie Golden, claiming that Mrs. Brandven lured Joseph Golden away from home, was filed by Attorney Herbert Ganahl, and has not been answered by Mrs. Brandven.

The first of such suits, that of Mrs. Ida Silverstein, mother of the two plaintiffs in yesterday's suit, was filed a year ago but was compromised.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

—The Once Over—Local Pge MON—.
MR. HOOVER AND MR. WHITNEY.

("The President breakfasted at the White House with Richard Whitney, head of the New York Stock Exchange."—News item.)

THE President—Just what's the trouble with the stock market, Mr. Whitney?

Mr. Whitney—Can you think of anything that isn't, Mr. President?

The President—I can't understand why security prices should show such weakness over such a long period.

Mr. Whitney—That makes it unanimous, Mr. President.

* * * *

MR. HOOVER—What embarrasses the administration is that just a year ago I assured the public that the bottom had been touched.

Mr. Whitney—Don't look at me that way. Didn't I bid 150 for Steel a year ago?

The President—You got some sort of medal for it from the Stock Exchange, did you not?

Mr. Whitney—Yes. It begins to look as if I was more of a hero than I realized at the time.

* * * *

THE President—I feel that countless Americans may have held on to securities or purchased them on the administration's expressions of optimism and faith.

Mr. Whitney—I think your optimism was well founded. After all, the country is fundamentally sound.

The President (wincing)—I wish you wouldn't use that phrase.

Mr. Whitney—It's your own statement.

The President—I know, but I hate to be reminded.

Mr. Whitney—We all say things we would like to forget.

The President—What, for instance, in your case?

Mr. Whitney (recalling it with regret)—One hundred thousand Steel common at 150!

* * * *

THE President: Can't the decline be stopped?

Mr. Whitney—You sound like a man who has been called for more margin.

The President—This market must not fall much lower, Mr. Whitney.

Mr. Whitney—Can I depend on it?

* * * *

MR. HOOVER—What of the operators who deliberately conduct short selling operations to break the market and undermine the morale of the investor?

Mr. Whitney—Something should be done about them.

The President—How about a congressional investigation?

Mr. Whitney—No. I think the matter should be attended to during the life of the present generation.

* * * *

THE President—Many securities are selling lower now than in the panic of last year. Look at General Electric.

Mr. Whitney—You look at it; I'm too easily depressed.

The President—Take the motor stocks. . . .

Mr. Whitney—Not at present levels; I think they're still a sale.

* * * *

THE President—If business is to pick up, if the people are to spend money freely, the stock market must show strength and confidence.

Mr. Whitney—I agree with you there. What do you suggest?

The President—Well, I had in mind issuing a public statement assuring the people that the country had shown a great pick-up and

Mr. Whitney (paling)—Not that, Mr. President, not that!

The President—Why not?

Mr. Whitney—Another sharp break in prices would be disastrous.

Expert on Foods To Attend Banquet

Dr. Hauser to Be Honored After Return From European Tour.

Dr. Benjamin Gaylord Hauser, a well-known food expert, will be welcomed back to Washington after an extensive tour of Europe at a banquet to be held tonight at the Mayflower Hotel, with representatives of various women's clubs here in attendance.

They will include Mrs. O. L. Beerhoff, president of the University Club; Mrs. Edgar B. Merritt, president of the District of Columbia Federation of Women; Mrs. M. M. Pollock, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union; Mrs. Virginia White Speel, Mrs. Ernest Daniel, first vice president of the Political Study Club; Mrs. Giles Scott Rafter, of the Parent-Teacher Association; Mrs. Harvey Wiley, prominent clubwoman; Alicia Maire Flager, lecturer, and Miss Ethel Bagley, president of the Business Women's Council.

Dr. Hauser has spent four months in Europe conferring with many of the best-known food and diet experts, visiting famous clinics and hygiene centers. In his address he will tell of new discoveries made recently in food science.

Rain Is Moving Slope of Mountain

Hawaii Observers Report Side of Peak Slides With Downpours.

Special to The Washington Post.

Honolulu, Oct. 19.—That rain on the surface of a mountain may weigh enough to tilt the whole mountain sidewise, like water poured on one pan of a drug store balance, is suggested by recent observations of H. A. Powers, of the scientific observatory, at the volcano of Kilauea, reported by the Hawaiian Volcano Research Association.

At this observatory instruments have been installed to keep careful track of the tilt of the land around the volcano, a slight back and forth tilting of this ground surface having been found to correspond with changes of the vast volcanic forces deep in the mountain's interior. Although this tilt of the ground is too slight to be perceptible to human senses, it is easily measured by scientific instruments.

During the second week of August heavy rains fell on the volcano and on nearby land. Immediately, Mr. Powers records, the neighborhood of the observatory tilted markedly.

Leaders Honored By Colored People

Thomas and Grimke Paid Tribute at Meeting of Organization.

Services in eulogy of the late Neval H. Thomas and the late Archibald H. Grimke, former presidents of the local branch of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, were held yesterday by that organization at the Lincoln Temple Congregational Church, the speakers being Dean Kelly Miller, Roscoe Conkling Bruce and Walter A. White.

Dean Miller eulogized Grimke as a product of the Civil War and reconstruction period, a Harvard graduate, a diplomat who served with credit in Santo Domingo, and a publicist, as the best equipped and finished type of manhood which the Negro race has produced in America.

Thomas was eulogized by Bruce as an educated man of unusual oratorical gifts who was "at one with the masses of the people." He cited various instances of his disregard for his sources of livelihood in his successful fight to secure equitable distribution of funds between colored and white schools. The spiritual integrity of both was paid tribute by White. Miss E. F. G. Merritt presided.

Mrs. Camela Rao Dies In Petersburg Home

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 19. — Mrs. Camela Rao, wife of Luther Rao, of this city, died this morning at her home. Mrs. Rao was a native of Italy, but for the past fourteen years had made her home in this city.

She is survived by her husband, Luther Rao, and the following children: Mrs. J. K. Hart, of Chesterfield; Mrs. John Fisher, of this city; Mrs. W. E. Gray, of Colonial Heights; the Misses Alvedo, Esther and Louise Rao, and Tony and Freddie Rao, all of this city.

Burning Process Studied By 'Installment' Method

Pittsburgh, Oct. 19 (A.P.).—A new method of learning exactly what happens to a burning particle is reported to the American Chemical Society by Austin Gudmendsen of Carnegie Institute of Technology, and David F. Smith, of the Bureau of Mines.

The particle is heated in an inert gas; that is, one in which it can not burn, then suddenly blasted with a stream of air. The touch of air produces instant burning, but before this has gone far the particle is plunged back into the inert gas. This puts out the fire without changing effects of burning. Thus a particle is burned step by step, with stops to study what happens after each air blast.
